Nazis Say They're Sure To Get Danzig Without War

Reich's Optimism Termed Wishful Thinking and Propaganda by Poles

By the Associated Press

Nazi Germany spoke out last night in an official statement of her government to declare she was "100 per cent optimistic that there will be no war" over the Free City of Danzig.

"On the contrary," an official spokesman told the foreign press in one of the most unequivocal statements yet issued in Berlin on the Free City, "we believe in the common sense of mankind and feel sincerely convinced the Danzig question soon will be solved without compromise but also without bloodshed."

It is understood that this explanation means that in any of the negotiations into which Germany enters, it will enter only with the understanding that it is to get everything it wants. No compromise, Nazi leaders say, is their motto, along with the expressed desire for peace.

The spokesman made it obvious beyond peradventure that by an uncompromising solution he meant the unconditional return of Danzig to Germany. Germany lost Danzig under the Treaty of Versailles.

His attitude disclosed that Germany expected this solution would be attained by pressure by Great Britain on Poland.

Attitude Outlined

The attitude of the Fuehrer and his government was summarized as follows:

History will reeat itself, with Danzig becoming another Sudetenland which Britain will help restore to Grmany, rather than risk a general conflict.

There will be no "August crisis;" Germany's political barometer is "100 per cent against war," and "all indications point t opeace."

But if the Gordian knot of danzig cannot be unraveled, despite Germany's peaceful intentions, then it will have to be "cut with the sword."

Success of the Anglo-French efforts to bring Soviet Russia into an alliance would embroil Britain so deply in eastern Europe that would do almost anything to avoid an armed clash.

On the other hand, failure of the Miscow negotiations would induce Poland to batk down, since any tst with Germany would find a "lukewarm, if not hostile," Russia at Poland's rear.

The German government stands and will continue to stand on the Reichstag pronouncement of Hitler last April 28 in which he proclaimed Danzig a "German City" that must "come home" without any strings attached.

Reaction to the declaration was prompt and included:

Fear a New Munich

Fears of a new "Munich" arose among opponents of Prime Minister Chamberlain's late appeasement policy, but British government spokesmen said any decision on Danzig still rested with Poland, and insisted Britain had not approached Poland or Germany for a settlement.

Polish circles called the German statement "a combination of wishful thinking and persistent propaganda," and one responsible official elaborated thus:

"This is one more example of the way Germany clings to certain illusions, not least to a faith

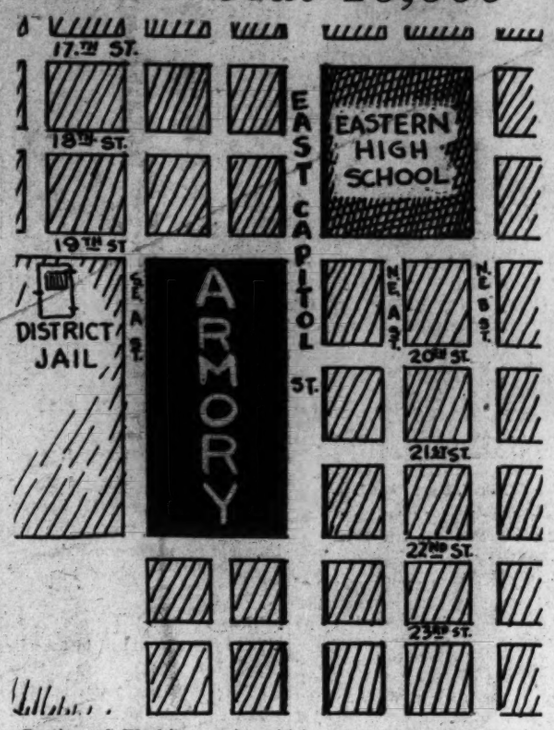
Lady Astor Sees Red in Commons Over Child Labor

London, July 21 (U.P.).—Lady Astor, American-born member of Parliament, drew ironical cries of "treason" in the House of Commons today when she exclaimed: "The red flag would not be red enough for me had one of my children been forced to enter a factory at the age of 11."

The debate arose over attacks by labor members on the proposed factories act, which would permit increase of the present 44-hour work week to 48 hours for those aged 14 to 18.

"Even the totalitarian states are taking great care of their children," Lady Astor said. "It would be a very good thing for the government if there was a nice little rebellion among the bright young things inside it. As a mother and a member of Parliament I ask the young men, on this (the Conservative) side especially, to start such a rebellion. We have a general election in the autumn. Are we going to the country with the cry that we want children of 14 to work a 48-hour week?"

Armory to Give D. C. Hall to Seat 10,000



Section of Washington in which the new armory for the National Guard is to be built. It will be on site bounded by East Capitol street, Nineteenth street, B street southeast and Twenty-second street

Structure to Cover Six Blocks at End Of East Capitol Street; Auditorium to Be Large Enough for City's Meeting-Place Needs

Washington is to have an auditorium, a large hall available for important civic and national functions and capable of seating more than 10,000 persons.

This was revealed yesterday as District officials drafted plans for the the new $2,750,000 National Guard Armory authorized in the District bill. The Armory, it was stated, will contain an auditorium-drill-hall of sufficient size to care for all public meeting-place needs of the Nation's Capital.

The Armory is to be constructed on a six-block tract at the end of East Capitol street. It is bounded by East Capitol, Twenty-second, B and Nineteenth streets southeast.

Ground for the new structure probably will not be broken before next March, but it is planned to have the auditorium completed before the next Presidential inauguration in January, 1941. Inaugural balls can be held within its walls

Army to Use Bolling Field To Train Pilots

Planes and Men to Be More Than Doubled In the Coming Year

Army officials revealed yesterday that Bolling Field has been selected as an Air Corps training center under the air expansion program and will have its complement of planes and men more than doubled during the coming year.

Six hundred men are to be added to the local air station's garrison, raising its strength to about 1,150. They will be recruits, trained as mechanics and other technicians to service the Army's greatly expanding air fleet.

And with the Air Corps being enlarged from 2,320 to 5,500 first line planes, Bolling Field's complement of 65 airplanes will be at least doubled.

$114,000 for Barracks

Temporary barracks for the new men will be built with 114,400 allotted yesterday by Secretary of War Woodring. The funds come from a $82,800,000 lump sum recently appropriated by Congress for Air Corps construction, and $3,961,900 just allocated to the War Department by the WPA.

Bolling Field's greatly enlarged garrison will be reduced when the new bases to be built become available. The 1,150 strength is expected to be maintained for about a year and a half with some of the new men then being ordered to other stations.

In addition to the new temporary barracks, and improvement of roads

Thetis Lifted, Plan to Beach Her Monday

She Will Be Moved By Slow Stages to Irish Sea Island

By the United Press.

Liverpool (Saturday), July 22.—The British submarine Thetis, which carried 99 men to death, was lifted from the bottom of Liverpool Bay early today.

The salvage ship Zelo fixed eight 9-inch steel hawsers under the Thetis and tightened them at low tide. When the tide rose the Thetis slowly left the sea bed.

The Zelo, with the Thetis slung beneath her, slowly started toward short, and it was expected the salvage boat would have to cover 4 miles before the submarine touches bottom in shallower water at low tide about 9 a. m. Then the hawsers will be tightened. This process of lifting and proceeding shoreward slowly will be continued until the Thetis is finally beached on Anglesey Island, about 50 miles west of here. This is expected to occur Monday night if the weather remains good.

An inquest on the victims will be held in a stable loft at Red Wharf Bay.

The 1,000-ton submarine dived June 1. Aboard were 103 navy men and civilians, the latter employes of Cammell Laird, builders of the craft. Four men escaped through the Davis hatch.

Doggerel About Fuehrer Lands American Lad in Nazi Jail

By the Associated Press

New York, July 21.—William Bardwell Curts, a stout, smiling American youngster of 20 who got mad in a Heidelberg beer hall, wrote unflatteringly of Germany to express his resentment and in consequence spent 32 days in prison, returned today and said there were no hard feelings.

But while he made it clear the incident had left no scars on a buoyant spirit, he felt far from reassured about what position his guardian, Bestor Robinson, of Oakland, Calif., was going to take in the matter.

"When I get there, I sure expect to catch hell," he said.

He arrived on the German liner Hamburg with this story:

He had been studying in Germany, and on May 12 went with friends to a Heidelberg haufbrau to celebrate his projected departure for France the next day. Everybody had a few drinks and then——

"I noticed a guest book, and glancing over it saw several of my friends' names. I wrote my name in the book and suddenly a big German grabbed me. Holding me with his left hand he scratched out my name and said "Raus.' I had been in Budapest some time before, and there I'd heard a ditty that seemed to fit the occasion. So I wrenched loose and grabbed the book and wrote in German what I had heard in Budapest.

(Here he translated it roughly:

Senate Killed Boom, Says Roosevelt

Vandenberg, Citing Stock Market Rise Of $1 to $3, Asks: 'Third-Term Boom?'

Stock prices yesterday registered gains of from $1 to $3 a share at about the same time President Roosevelt was asserting that the Senate's action in shelving neutrality legislation had killed off a business boom.

The President made the remark at a morning press conference at Hyde Park. A well-known businessman with whom he had a conference recently, he explained, said the action had killed the nicest little business boom you ever saw.

Vandenberg Replies

Other developments in the controversy over neutrality legislation were:

Senator Vandenberg (Republican), of Michigan, in a Senate reply to the President's assertion, cited reports of the stock market spurt and said: "I am not clear what boom it was that the Senate deflated unless it was the third term boom."

Mr. Roosevelt indicated he would not take the neutrality issue before the country. He made clear that it will take more than another European crisis to induce him to call a special session of Congress to consider neutrality legislation. Several crises which did not result in war have occurred, he pointed out.

The Pittman resolution to embargo arms shipments to Japan apparently was shelved for the session after Secretary of State Hull asked that action be delayed until the next session.

The President revealed another change in his plans for a trip to the World's Fair at San Francisco. Since fogs arise on Alaskan waters in August, he may not go to Alaska, he said.

Asked at his press conference whether the neutrality issue would be taken before the country, the President wanted to know what neutrality issue there was.

Holds Senate Responsible

He repeated several times that the Senate group opposing his foreign policy had taken the responsibility for shelving until the next session his proposal for repeal of the ban on arms shipments to belligerents.

Most of the gains in stock prices during the day came before the President's statement about the boom appeared in Wall Street. The market did not falter in its upward climb, however.

Berlin News Heartening

Advices from Berlin that the Nazi regime decried war talk and was receptive toward a peaceful settlement of the Danzig question were the main thing that sent the market up, according to Associated Press dispatches. Other favorable factors, brokers said, were good second quarter earnings reports from corporations and the projected House investigation of the National Labor Relations Board.

The businessman with whom he had talked, the President said, reported that industry generally was now afraid to make foreign commitments, not knowing exactly what

Dutch Visitors Sure Something Is Wrong With N. Y.

New York, July 21 (AP).—The Dutch came to town today to see what happened to New Amsterdam after their ancestors bought the likely-looking property of Manhattan for $24 and some trinkets, and amiably decided the traders would not have given it up unless there was something wrong with it.

There were 120 of them, men and women, members of the Dutch Tourist Association, on the deck of the liner Nieuw Amsterdam when she came up the bay. Many are descendants of pepole who settled the little village of New Amsterdam.

"There must be something wrong with it. We Dutch, you know, are very good traders—good business people," said one. "We wouldn't have let it go if there wasn't something wrong with it."

Freighter Rams Wharf and Sinks

New Orleans, July 21 (AP).—Fifteen hours after grazing a ferryboat and crashing into a wharf early today, the 3,787-ton freighter Edgar F. Luckenbach, of New York, sank in the Mississippi River with ship and cargo of 8,000 tons lost.

No one was injured in the collision with the ferry, which was only slightly damaged. The concrete wharf tore a 20-foot hole in the freighter's bow.

Senate Sends Hatch Bill to Roosevelt

Maneuver to Turn Measure Over to Conferees Beaten Despite Minton Plea

The Hatch-Dempsey bill forbidding political activity to the vast majority of appointive Federal officeholders was approved in its final form by the Senate yesterday and dispatched to the President.

Concurring in amendments inserted by the House in a turbulent session Thursday night, the Senate gave its indorsement without record vote to a measure which many observers believe will weaken the Administration's hold on the 1940 National Democratic Convention.

Fate of the bill is now squarely in the hands of the President.

Garner Believed Beneficiary

Senate action in accepting House changes in the bill, which in some respects strengthened and clarified the measure, took place under the benign eye of Vice President Garner. It was Garner, who a few weeks ago said the bill was certain of passage. The Vice President is widely considered to be a principal beneficiary of the measure, through its effect in barring Administration patronage officials from next year's convention.

In moving that the Senate concur in the House amendments, Senator Hatch (Democrat), of New Mexico, author of the original bill, warned his colleagues that to send the measure to conference would be the equivalent of sending it "to the graveyard."

The House Judiciary Committee, whose ranking members would be appointed to the conference committee, had greatly weakened the Senate measure, said Hatch, but the House itself had "rejected the philosophy" of its own committee and "accepted the philosophy of the Senate."

Hatch's speech, punctuated by desk-pounding, had shed "a great deal of heat and very little light," snapped Senator Minton (Democrat), of Indiana, the majority whip.

"I'm objecting to the attempt by the Senator from New Mexico to make me take this bill without looking at its new teeth," said Minton, a 100 per cent New Dealer.

No Knife in His Sleeve

"I want this bill to go to conference so we can see just what these teeth look like," Minton explained. He added, however, that "I have no dagger up my sleeve for the Senator's beloved bill. I have no desire to knife him in the back. He may have his bill—and may God bless him."

Principal changes the House made in the Senate bill were to protect nominations as well as elections from the official interference of Federal administrative officers, and to exempt, from the prohibition against political activity, the President, Vice President, persons in the office of the President and policy-making officials such as Cabinet officers, heads of independent agencies and ambassadors.

The thousands of minor Federal officials who in many communities form the backbone of national party organization — including marshals,

U. S. Pastor Seized By Arabs Urges Quick Ransom

Jerusalem, July 21 (AP).—Arabs and Grecian monks intensified efforts today to negotiate with kidnapers of the Rev. Geroud R. Goldner, of Mogodore, Ohio, as the preacher notified his father he was safe but asked quick payment of $5,000 ransom.

A donkey boy brought a note from the American to his father, Dr. Jacob Goldner, Cleveland pastor, in Jerusalem urging that the money be paid today if possible.

Another message came from the leader of the kidnapers who restated the $5,000 ransom demand and disclaimed responsibility for the captive's safety if the money were not paid soon.

WPA Dismisses Nonstriker, 54

Rochester, N. Y., July 21 (AP).—John Connolly, 54-year-old Works Projects Administration worker who won commendation and a promised pay increase when he stuck to his job instead of joining 300 others in walking out, lost it today.

WPA officials, checking employment records, discovered Connolly came under the new Federal law forcing all persons on the rolls for 18 consecutive months to take at least a 30-day furlough.

6 Reopened Playspots Lure 1,500 Youngsters

The sun broke through yesterday long enough to signal the opening of six playgrounds and more than 1,500 youngsters came out to play. Donald Milstead, 8, and Robert Daniel, 9, played leap-frog, safe from the dangers of motor traffic.

A two-week campaign to give Washington children safe summer recreation paid its first dividends yesterday as more than 1,500 youngsters frolicked in six newly opened playgrounds.

The stampede began at 9 a. m. when gates swung wide at four school playgrounds and WPA supervisors reported for duty at Stanton and Lincoln parks. By midafternoon several hundred children had made use of each school playground.

On the lawns of Stanton and Lincoln parks, the attendance statistics may have been less impressive, but the boys and girls from 3 to 8 who gathered around their new "teachers" played with enthusiasm.

"This is the place for kids," said an elderly man on a Lincoln Park bench. "Now if you can get the idea across to the whole neighborhood that the games and leaders

18 Policemen Refuse to Talk In FBI Quiz

Insist Superiors Be Present in Grilling; One Demands Counsel

Agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation resumed their questioning of members of the Washington Police Department yesterday and ran into something approximating a stone wall.

A majority of those summoned to the Department of Justice Building —18 detective sergeants and two police officials—refused to answer questions of the G-men unless a superior officer should be present.

One detective took along his attorney.

Finally Excused

"O. K., Sergeant, you're excused," the Federal agents told him when he insisted that his attorney be present.

Another detective sergeant not only refused to answer questions unless one of his superiors in the Police Department was present, but told the G-men to go to a more torrid region.

This contretemps in the long-drawn-out investigation came as bitterness against the Federal sleuths mounted at police headquarters. So far, approximately 90 uniformed and plainclothes members of the local department have been summoned to the Department of Justice, but none of them has come away with a clear idea of what the investigation is all about. In the case of men whose own business it is to investigate people, this is doubly irritating.

Some of them have been ques-

House to Get D. C. Lunacy Bill Monday

Committee Approves 6 Others but Drops Taxi, Optometry Measures

Legislation to correct abuses in the treatment of mental cases and to help relieve overcrowding at Gallinger Hospital was agreed upon yesterday by the House District Committee and scheduled for report on the floor Monday.

Under the new bill, substantially the one proposed by Representative Vreeland (Republican), of New Jersey, a mental patient entering Gallinger must be examined within five days and may be committed to St. Elizabeths for treatment as soon as medical authorities think it necessary.

During the patient's first 30 days at St. Elizabeths apportunity would be given for a hearing before the Commission on Mental Health, which must make its lunacy examination within that period.

Overcrowded Gallinger

At present, mental cases must be detained in Gallinger for at least ten days and often remain much longer. Designed to abolish compulsory open court trial in lunacy cases, the present law, through the detention feature, has resulted in overcrowding at Gallinger and worked a hardship on patients violently and obviously insane and needing the treatment St. Elizabeths is equipped to give.

Dr. Joseph L. Gilbert, District alienist and chief psychiatrist at Gallinger, said that the reforms decided upon will, if enacted, greatly

Kidnaping of Avenger's Son Feared in Church Murder Feud

By the Associated Press

New York, July 24.—Hovannes Dadourian, 16, was missing tonight under circumstances which caused his father to suggest they boy might have been kidnaped in a blood feud to avenge nine Armenians convicted of assassinating Archbishop Leon Tourian of the Armenian church in front of his altar on Christmas eve, 1933.

The father, Dickran Dadourian, a wealthy wholesale clothing dealer of suburban Yonkers, was one of a volunteer committee which helped finance the investigation of the archbishop's murder and at last brought his killers to justice. Two of the nine were sentenced to death; the others to prison terms of 19 to 20 years.

The boy's disappearance came to light with a disclosure that police were searching for him. Only then was it learned he had not been seen since he left his home July 8 to attend a neighborhood movie.

Had he simply meant to run away, his family said, he would not have gone with only $2.25 in his pockets, since some $300 lay in a drawer in his own dresser.

Archbishop Tourian was stabbed as he walked down the aisle in the half-dark to intone mass. Men from his own flock dashed from their pews and knifed him. A hundred and fifty were in the congregation.

Senators Ban Competitive Ventures in Lending Bill

$310,000,000 Pared From Roosevelt's Plan by Committee; Mead Proposals Lose

By Robert C. Albright

The Senate Banking Committee last night pruned $310,000,000 from the President's $2,800,000,000 lending program, rejected all efforts to extend its scope and wrote a flat prohibition against use of the funds in competition with private enterprise.

Studded with modifications, the bill was virtually completed when the committee recessed at 7:30 p. m., but another meeting was called for today for possible eleventh-hour action.

Senate Majority Leader Barkley said he might attempt to report the measure today and call it up in the Senate on Monday. Republicans still clamored for further cuts, and a fight may ensue delaying adjournment.

Mead Measures Lose

Overwhelmingly defeated by the committee last night were amendments offered by Senator Mead (Democrat), of New York, and indorsed by the President, authorizing the RFC to insure long-term loans to small business. Another proposal by Mead for the Federal Reserve banks to extend similar credit met the same fate.

Rejected also by a 13-to-4 vote was an amendment by Senator Maloney (Democrat), of Connecticut, appropriating $350,000,000 for continuing the PWA program, on a 30 per cent grant and 70 per cent loan basis. Maloney said he would renew his fight on the Senate floor, where he has strong backing.

As revised, the lending bill carries $2,490,000,000 in total loan authorizations, as against $2,800,000,000 originally proposed. Barkley said between $780,000,000 and $1,000,000,000 might be paid out the first year in "works financing."

"A Pretty Good Bill"

"It's a pretty good bill even now," said the majority leader, predicting the Senate would pass the measure after three days' debate.

The ban on Government competition with private business was offered by Senator Adams (Democrat), of Colorado, and approved by a voice vote. It provides that none of the money shall be used for "building, establishing or expanding any industry or enterprise which is or will be in substantial competition with any existing enterprise." On motion of Barkley, loans for hospitals were exempted.

Another change earmarked at least $300,000,000 of the $600,000,000 farm security loans for the Bankhead farm tenant program, permitting the remaining $300,000,000 to be used for farm rehabilitation. A prior $100,000,000 appropriation for farm tenant loans was wiped out, as the item had been covered in the lending pool.

REA Sum Wiped Out

A previous $40,000,000 appropriation for the Rural Electrification Administration also was canceled. The bill already carries $500,000,000 in loan power for the REA, and a limitation to this amount, regardless of other appropriations, was written into the bill.

Chief lending reduction made by the committee was a slash from $750,000,000 to $500,000,000 in the toll highway authorization, on motion of Adams. This sum was accepted as a compromise after a motion completely to eliminate the road fund had failed. Dissatisfied with the extent of the cut, Senator Taft (Republican), of Ohio, said he would offer a further modification when the committee meets today.

The committee also reduced the amount the RFC could spend on new railway equipment from $500,000,000 to $350,000,000, and denied the RFC power to build, lease or sell rail equipment except on application by and contracts with the railroads.

The single additional authorization inserted in the bill set aside

Barden Wins Hearing on Pay Act Revision

House Rules Group to Weigh Discharge of Labor Committee

A speedy showdown in the bitterly debated question of amending the wage-hour law was anticipated yesterday as the House Rules Committee scheduled a hearing Tuesday on proposals to revise the act.

A victory for the conservative Southern Democratic bloc, the committee's action brought closer a final decision on the proposed amendments of Representative Barden (Democrat), of North Carolina.

Barden's amendments, which would exempt some white-collar workers and a wide variety of employes in industries related to agriculture, are vigorously opposed by President Roosevelt, Wage-Hour Administrator Andrews and Chairman Norton, of the House Labor Committee.

Action Almost Unprecedented

Andrews and Barden both were invited to appear at Tuesday's hearing, and Mrs. Norton indicated she would be present.

In appearing before the committee to ask that his amendments be permitted to reach the floor of the House, Barden will be making an almost unprecedented move. Rarely has the House Rules Committee entertained a request for action on a bill which does not have the support of the chairman of the committee originally handling the bill.

In Barden's case, the measure not only is opposed by Mrs. Norton, but is unreported by the Labor Committee.

"Pressure Groups" Attacked

Some observers saw the Rules Committee decision as an effort to induce a compromise between Barden and Andrews in the interim. A special subcommittee of the Labor Committee is attempting to work out such a compromise but its chances for success before Tuesday are slim.

Nina P. Collier, secretary of the Emergency Committe for Preserving the Fair Labor Standards Act, yesterday asked the subcommittee to hear workers who would be affected adversely by changes in the wage-hour law.

Mrs. Collier charged that "high-priced pressure groups, representing an infinitesimal percentage of the voting population of the United States, have been received with open arms in the halls of Congress and have been permitted by back-door methods to embody their proposals for emasculation of the Fair Labor Standards Act in various bills now before the House."

Roosevelt Mourns Boom; Stocks Up

neutrality legislation might finally be adopted at the next session.

Some industrialists and financial leaders, according to reports from New York, were puzzled by the President's remarks. There was a certain amount of agreement with the President's view that neutrality act revision would tend to prevent war, but leaders did not agree that postponement of the arms embargo question would hurt business.

Poppycock, Says Johnson

The President's assertion brought scoffing replies from several Senators. "That's poppycock," Senator Johnson (Republican), of California, declared. Senator McNary, Oregon, Republican leader, said he could "see no reason why there should be any slowing up in the economic procession because Congress failed to follow the President on neutrality legislation."

Mr. Roosevelt, at his Hyde Park conference, said information from every European capital, without exception, gives evidence that European governments are making preparations for an eventuality which they apparently feel may be very close.

Mr. Roosevelt denied that any clashes had occurred at the Tuesday night conference. Reports to this effect, he declared, are made up out of whole cloth. A disagreement arose, he said, between Senator Borah, Idaho Republican, and Secretary of State Hull. The whole discussion, the President said, was couched in very parliamentary language.

Borah, the President declared, intimated his private information about the European situation was better than the State Department's. After Hull had taken Borah up on the point, Mr. Roosevelt said, Borah finally said he had not meant to imply his information was better.

Borah Assails Gag

Informed of what the President had said, Borah replied: "I don't propose to enter into a controversy with the President if it can be avoided, but I do think that these bans on discussion on what took place at White House conferences ought to be lifted so that more than one side can do the talking."

Some of those attending the White House parley reported that an exchange occurred between Borah and the President. When the President insisted that the Senate would have to bear the responsibility for failure to act on the arms embargo question, it was said, Borah replied that it would assume the responsibility—that the country was not operating "under a Hitler."

The way Senators talked about the conference, the President declared, was like the story of the Congressman who spent a minute and a half in former President Hoover's office and then took ten minutes to tell reporters covering the White House what he had told Hoover.

Fascist Chief Hurt Showing Boys How

Catholic U. Scholar Tells Last Word on Ovid in 2,220 Pages

Result of 15 years work is the 2220-page concordance for Ovid, bound in the papal colors, white and gold, which will be presented to Pope Pius XII. It was compiled by Dr. Roy J. Defarrai and other members of the department of Greek and Latin at Catholic University. The Right Rev. Joseph M. Corrigan (right), rector of the university, and Dr. Defarrai are shown with the book

Monumental Concordance for Works of Latin Poet Was 15 Years in Making; Special Copy to Be Sent to Pope Pius XII

A monumental concordance for the works of Ovid, listing and indexing every word used by the Latin poet in all his works, and showing where each occurred and in what context, has just been completed by Catholic University under the direction of Prof. J. Deferrari, head of the Greek and Latin Department and Secretary-General of the University.

The 2,220-page volume, weighing 13½ pounds—about the size of an unabridged dictionary—has been in the making for 15 years. A special copy, bound in white buckram and stamped in gold, to conform with all the volumes in the papal library, has been prepared for presentation to Pope Pius XII.

The concordance, the first of Ovid's works ever to have been completed, is of particular value to classical scholars, students of medieval literature and philologists. Except for Vergil, Ovid is said to have exerted more influence on literature than any other classical writer.

Dr. Deferrari, who originated the work and planned its execution, has been assisted by Sister M. Inviolata Barry, a member of the faculty of Our Lady of the Lake College in San Antonio, Tex., and by Dr. Martin R. P. McGuire, dean of the university's graduate school of arts and sciences. Graduate students who have been members of the classical seminar in the last 10 years also have assisted. The cost of the volume's preparation amounted to nearly $9,000.

Far from exhausted by their efforts, Dr. Deferrari and Sister Inviolata are now working on a similar concordance for the "Summa Theologica" of St. Thomas Aquinas. The first volume will be published in three years, and the remaining two volumes in the two succeeding years. Each approximately as large as the Ovid concordance.

Senate Passes Bill Requiring That Labels on Woolen Goods Show Exact Content of Fiber

By the Associated Press

The Senate passed and sent to the House yesterday the bill by Senator Schwartz (Democrat), of Wyoming, requiring that most manufactured woolen products bear labels showing their exact fiber content.

SCHWARTZ

Manufacturers would have to distinguish between new and reclaimed wool in their products to comply would subject violators to confiscation of their goods and a $5,000 fine, a year in jail, or both.

The vote was 48 to 23, and came after the Senate had accepted an amendment by Senator Thomas (Democrat), of Oklahoma, limiting the definition of wool to the fleece of lambs or sheep. The committee bill interpreted wool to include the hair of the camel, llama, rabbit or Vicuna.

New England Senators and woolen manufacturers charged the measure was impractical. Strongest supporters were Western Senators.

A similar bill by Representative Martin (Democrat), of Colorado, has been approved by a House committee.

The House passed and sent to the White House a Senate-approved bill authorizing the United States Marine Band to participate in the celebration of Maryland Day at the New York World's Fair, July 28.

Representative Stefan (Republican), of Nebraska, will leave Wednesday for Oslo, Norway, to attend the annual meeting of the Interparliamentary Union as a representative of Congress.

Stefan later will inspect the United States' diplomatic establishments in Germany, Slovakia, Hungary, Yugoslavia, Italy, France and England.

Senator Burke (Democrat), of Nebraska, first vice president of the Interparliamentary Union, said he probably would attend the Oslo meeting if Congress adjourned by August 5.

The Senate completed Congressional action on legislation to give the Securities and Exchange Commission broad powers over corporate trust indentures. At the request of Majority Leader Barkley (Democrat), Kentucky, author of the measure, the chamber agreed unanimously to minor House amendments and sent the measure to the White House.

The Senate ratified a treaty signed in Cairo in 1938 providing for concurrence of the United States in general transoceanic radio regulations with other foreign nations.

It also ratified a treaty dealing with radio regulations in Central America, Panama and the Canal Zone.

The House completed Congressional action on a bill providing for transportation and maintenance of noncitizen Filipinos desiring to return to the Philippine Islands from the United States or its territories. The measure now goes to the White House.

McNutt Back to Take Federal Security Post

Paul V. McNutt returned yesterday from Indiana to settle down to his new job as Federal Security Administrator.

McNutt refused to discuss politics but said he was pleased with the results of his visit to his home State. His next scheduled public speech, he said, would be at the International Poultry Show's International Peace Day at Cleveland, July 30.

3 Senators Sponsor WPA Arts Project Revival

Hull Defers Ruling on Japan Embargo Plan

Will Wait Until Next Session; to Consider Vandenburg Resolution

Consideration of a proposed embargo on war supplies to Japan was put off until the 1940 session of Congress yesterday when Secretary of State Hull delayed giving an opinion on whether it would violate this country's 1911 treaty of commerce with Japan.

The Secretary had been asked for such an opinion in connection with an embargo resolution offered by Senator Pittman (Democrat), of Nevada, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee. He replied that since it seemed clear there was little disposition in Congress to act "on this general subject," he suggested that comment by the department be withheld until next session.

Pittman said he would move at next Wednesday's meeting of the committee to have the embargo made the first order of business when Congress reconvenes in January.

To Consider Resolution

In another letter, Hull said the President would give "full and careful" consideration to a resolution by Senator Vandenberg (Republican), of Michigan, if it is passed, to put the Senate on record as favoring the denunciation of the 1911 treaty. Vandenberg also has proposed that the signatories of the nine-power treaty guaranteeing China's integrity be convened to determine whether Japan has violated that pact in her war on China.

Hull's letter relating to the Pittman embargo proposal said:

"In the light of the legislative situation relating to this and kindred proposals in regard to our foreign relations, it is reasonably apparent that there is a disposition in Congress to defer until the next session full and final consideration of proposed legislation on this general subject. Furthermore, as an early adjournment of Congress appears to be tacitly agreed upon, it seems clear that there may not be sufficient time in which to consider and enact legislation such as is proposed.

Pleased to Have Advice

"In these circumstances, I venture respectfully to inquire whether comment by the Department of State on the various proposals pertaining to this phase of our foreign relations could not be offered to a better advantage when Congress at its next session is ready to give full consideration to these and related proposals."

The one on denunciation of the 1911 treaty, said:

"Notwithstanding the authority which is vested in the Executive in regard to the matters mentioned in the resolution, I am glad to say that the Executive is always pleased to have advice from the Senate and to give such advice full and careful consideration consonant with the great weight to which the opinions of the Senate are entitled. Such consideration will, therefore, be given to the opinion of the Senate as set forth in the resolution under reference, in the event of its passage."

Lending Bill Made Noncompetitive

$90,000,000 of the loan funds for reclamation projects already authorized or in the construction stage. Senator Clark (Democrat), of Idaho, made the motion, backed by other Western Senators.

Other committee modifications:

Reduced the maturity term of the bonds to be issued by RFC to finance the program from 40 to 30 years.

Abolished permanent revolving fund features of the original program.

Eliminated authority to create new State corporations to assist with the program.

Denied Federal officers the right to make arrests on the new toll roads, or Federal powers to establish rules and regulations governing the projects.

Title Is Changed

The committee changed the title of the program from "Self-Liquidating" to "Works Financing," as suggested by Barkley. Other changes in the original character of the plan conform by making it unnecessary for a project to liquidate its own cost, if a community finds other means of repaying the Government.

Although the sweeping concessions made by the committee reduced opposition, a bipartisan coalition of Republicans and conservative Democrats were planning a floor drive for further restrictions. A move by Senator McCarran (Democrat), of Nevada, to inject the WPA wage controversy into the discussion with a prevailing wage amendment unless separate action is taken may further slow down proceedings. Also threatened is a "rider" by Senator Townsend (Republican), of Delaware, banning further Treasury purchase of foreign silver.

Friend of Hitler? 'Libel,' Says Pola; Paris Court Agrees

Paris, July 21 (U.P.).—The First Seine Court today ruled that Pola Negri, "vamp" of silent movies, had been libeled when the magazine Pour Vous described her as an intimate of Fuehrer Hitler, awarded her $260 damages and fined the magazine $5.20. Miss Negri had sued for $26,000.

The magazine, a movie weekly, suggested that she was a rival of Leni Riefenstahl and other "mysterious women of the Reich" for the favor of the Fuehrer.

"I choose my own friends and Hitler certainly isn't one of them," Miss Negri said.

Armory Planned To Seat 10,000

Maximum Seating 15,000

Col. John W. Oehmann, District building inspector and commander of the 121st National Guard Engineer Regiment, said yesterday that it will be several months before the design of the armory is agreed upon, but that the decision to construct an auditorium as part of the project had already been made.

The interior of the combination auditorium-drill hall will be from 180 to 200 feet wide and 350 feet long, Col. Oehmann said. This area should provide a seating capacity of from 4,000 to 9,000, depending upon how much of the room is needed for platform or the show to be staged. These seats will be removable. In addition, Col. Oehmann said, there will be a balcony with 6,000 fixed seats.

Besides public meetings, the building will be available for boxing bouts, horse shows, baseketball games and other sports. It will be used for roller skating but not ice skating or hockey, Col. Oehmann said. The Guard does not intend to install freezing plants to compete with existing ice skating establishments, he declared.

Under the general plan drawn up by District Guard officials, the auditorium drill hall will be the central unit of either a group of buildings or one sprawling connecting structure. The surrounding buildings or wings will contain the offices, lecture rooms and storerooms of the Guard regiments.

Few Halls to Surpass It

Officials declare that when completed the city will have an auditorium comparable with the best in the country, with but few municipalities having halls surpassing it in size. It will be considerably larger than the old privately owned Washington Auditorium, at Nineteenth street and New York avenue, now occupied by the WPA. It seated 6,500.

Control of the building will be entirely in the National Guard, which will use it three or four nights a week as a drill hall. At other times, however, it will be available for public functions or rental for concerts, shows and sports events.

The need for such a public hall has been demonstrated often in the past. Conventions of large organizations have gone elsewhere because of the lack of a suitable meeting place. Four years ago, when the World Power Conference met here, it was necessary to hold its final dinner in the Union Station.

Only One Block Occupied

The six-block tract designated for the armory consists wholly of undeveloped land, partly covered by woods, except a single block on Nineteenth street, between A and B. This block contains a group of new duplex apartments, less than a year old, and three stores. The owner of the stores said last night he had received no notice that the property would be wanted for the armory.

While the tract is probably large enough for the Armory without acquiring these structures, it is thought likely that the whole area might be purchased. This remains to be determined, however.

Brig. Gen. Albert W. Cox, commander of the District National Guard, and ranking officers of the local unit will go to Baltimore tomorrow morning to inspect the new Fifth Regiment Armory there. Recently completed, the structure is regarded as a model structure of its kind. Organization commanders are then to submit recommendations to Gen. Cox for the space needed for their units.

are waiting here, I think they'll be off the streets in a few days."

Supervisor Added

The first step in another phase of the expanding summer recreation program was taken yesterday with assignment of an extra supervisor to Rosedale Playground, Seventeenth and Gales streets northeast, which has been in operation all summer, but lacked a well-rounded program for young children.

Eight more play centers will be furnished additional leadership Monday, according to Lewis R. Barrett, recreation co-ordinator. Simultaneously six more school playgrounds will be opened, it was stated at the Recreation Commission yesterday. Approximately 30 supervisors have reported to the commission from District WPA headquarters.

Supervisors at the grounds opened yesterday talked with enthusiasm of new equipment expected to arrive Monday and the attractive programs they hope to offer through the summer.

Programs Arranged

Otis Trouper, in charge of Harrison School Ground, said the program for older boys will feature volleyball and paddle tennis. A woman instructor will report Monday, he said, to take charge of dancing lessons and sewing for the girls. The youngest group, boys and girls alike, can take their choice of basketry, clay modeling and other varieties of craftwork.

"We can adjust the program to follow along the lines the children seem to want most," Trouper said. "The main thing is to let all of them know that we can put on any of these things if enough of them are

Older Boys Monitors

Miss Marian Bowden, director at Grimke, was full of plans. "There's going to be singing and story-telling and dramatics," she said, "and, of course, the slide, swings sandboxes and all the regular games. There will be lots of things for them to do with their hands—like marionettes.

"The program is really meant for children under 12," she explained, looking dubiously at three rangy lads "who tell me they're only 11."

At all the school grounds supervisors are enrolling older boys as monitors responsible for playground discipline and equipment and for safety patrol duty at nearby intersections.

McCarran Beats President, Pittman On Appointment

Rebuffed on confirmation of William S. Boyle as Nevada district attorney, the President yesterday accepted the "advice" of Nevada's two Senators and nominated Miles N. Pike, of Reno, to the post.

In one of many recent Senatorial courtesy tests, Boyle had been rejected because his appointment was "personally obnoxious" to Senator McCarran (Democrat), of Nevada. Senator Pittman, the other Nevada Senator, backed Boyle, but was overridden in committee and on the Senate floor.

Following this rejection, McCarran and Pittman agreed to recommend the same list of candidates, and from these Pike was chosen by the President. Both Pittman and McCarran predicted the nominee would be confirmed.

$21,324,000 Allotted

The largest allotment in the distribution of funds announced by the War Department was $21,324,000 for a new air base and reinforcement of three existing posts in the Panama Canal Zone. A total of $9,181,950, including $1,000,000 from the WPA, was allotted for a new base in Puerto Rico. Hawaii received $9,334,800 for various posts including Hickam Field, while $3,600,000 was allocated for an air base in Alaska, and $3,763,000 was set aside for an air station in New England.

Other major allotments include Chanute Field, Ill., $3,148,800; new base at Tampa, Fla., $2,835,800; Lowry Field, Colo., $3,061,550; McChord Field, Wash., $1,087,450; Wright Field, Ohio, $1,500,000; Langley Field, Va., $644,300; Aberdeen Proving Ground, Md., $300,000.

Tokyo Orders Fleet to Protect Sakhalin Oil

Assembles Warships To Block Threatened Seizure by Russians

By the Associated Press

Tokyo, July 21.—Japan assembled warships in northern waters to back her stand against Soviet Russia in a dispute over vital coal and oil supply sources today while land forces of the two powers remained in conflict along the Manchukuo-Outer Mongolia frontier.

A naval spokesman called the situation "extremely serious" as the result of a Russian threat to confiscate Japanese-operated oil concessions on the Soviet half of Sakhalin Island, north of Japan.

Another serious quarrel, involving Japan with Britain at Tientsin, was discussed by Foreign Minister Arita and British Ambassador Sir Robert Leslie Craigie for the third time in a conference which the foreign office said brought "some progress" toward solution.

British Concession Reported

As "important" British concession "on assistance to China" was made, a Japanese informant said, but no further details were made known.

At stake in the dispute with Russia were oil concessions which the Japanese navy hopes to develop into an important source of fuel supply.

The concessions lie in the Soviet half of Sakhalin Island, which is divided between Japan and Russia. Recently a Soviet court levied two fines amounting to 700,000 yen ($190,000) against the Japanese concessionaires but the Japanese appealed, saying the Soviet charges of violation of labor union contracts were groundless.

Shigemori Togo, Japanese ambassador to Moscow, protested July 4 against Soviet "obstructionist tactics" in a note which Russians said was in "ultimatum form."

Confiscation Threatened

When no compromise was reached, Soviet authorities announced they would confiscate the concessions Thursday midnight if payment of the fines was not made.

Dispatches from Manchukuo, meanwhile said official circles were continuing to discuss prospects for early peace negotiations to end border warfare between Manchukuo and Outer Mongolia, protectorates respectively of Japan and the Soviet Union.

Authoritative sources in Hsinking, Manchukuo's capital, indicated yesterday that Japan was willing to negotiate but military circles said new Japanese military action would start soon unless there is a formal truce.

CAA May Get Quarters Near New Airport

Now in 7 Different Buildings; Chief Says It's Only a Suggestion

Occupation of the Bureau of Public Roads laboratory at Gravelly Point by the Civil Aeronautics Authority has been suggested, Chairman Robert H. Hinckley, of the CAA, admitted yesterday.

Although emphasizing the proposal is not under serious consideration at this time, Hinckley pointed out that his organization now is lodged in seven different buildings here and efficient operation is extremely difficult.

On a trip to Gravelly Point Wednesday, Hinckley declared he was "astounded" at the progress that has been made.

Surfacing by 1940

Engineers informed him during the excursion that filling operations are expected to be finished by the end of the year. Surfacing the terminal should be completed by July 1, 1940, when several hangars also may be available, Hinckley added.

Which Government agency will operate the airport has yet to be determined, he continued, but the possibility the city will run the terminal is "remote." Hinckley hinted the National Park Service may operate the flying field, "as it runs the Government buildings here."

Asked about the possibility of operating deficits at the terminal, the chairman remarked, "whoever foots the bill ought to have charge of the airport." The CAA, he stated, is interested in the operation of the terminal, but not anxious for the job.

11 Agencies Interested

At the present time, Hinckley explained, 11 Government agencies are interested in the area of which the terminal is part and efforts are under way to co-ordinate activities.

Among offices concerned are the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, Army Engineers, Bureau of Public Roads, Public Works Administration, Works Progress Administration, Fine Arts Commission and the National Park Service, he said.

Mrs. McConihe Fined for Speeding, Running Stop Sign

Mrs. Marguerite Hagner McConihe, daughter of Mrs. Randall Hagner, and wife of F. Moran McConihe, real estate operator, pleaded guilty in Police Court yesterday to charges of speeding and passing a stop sign.

Judge Walter J. Casey assessed a fine of $5 on the speeding count. A $3 fine was suspended on the second charge.

Mrs. McConihe, whose husband is the son of Malcolm McConihe, Democratic national committeeman of the District, was stopped by Policeman Clark Coleman at Reno road and Nebraska avenue northwest, Wednesday. He testified that she was driving 40 miles an hour and that she failed to come to a complete stop at the intersection.

Admitting that she knew she was exceeding the speed limit, Mrs. McConihe explained she "did not think she was driving in a reckless or careless manner."

She lives at 2127 R street northwest.

Mexico Expresses Thanks on Probe Of Sarabia Crash

Dr. Luis Quintanilla, Mexican Charge d'Affaires here, yesterday expressed gratification to the State Department and on behalf of his country declined the invitation of the War Department and the Air Safety Board to send experts here to investigate the death of Francisco Sarabia, Mexican ace, who was killed when his plane fell in the Potomac River June 7.

"Both the government of Mexico and the family of the ill-fated flier have full confidence in the investigating committee already at work, and feel certain that its findings . . . will be the result of an exhaustive and objective investigation," embassy officials said.

The invitation was extended after a rag had been found in the air intake of the plane's carburetor.

120 Youngsters Depart for Camp

From 12 Washington agencies for underprivileged children, 120 youngsters left yesterday for Camp Goodwill, run by the Community Chest. The camp, now running its second two-week period, selected campers from the Juvenile Court, Child Guidance Clinic, Neighborhood House, Children's Protective Association, Friendship House, Hillcrest Children's Home, Children's Hospital, Providence Hospital, the Blind Department of Family Service Association, Opportunity House, Catholic Charities, Georgetown's Children's House and the Americanization School.

Venereal Clinic Reopened

Charles Town, W. Va., July 21.—Reopening of the Jefferson County venereal disease clinic here today was authorized yesterday by Dr. Albert H. Price, of the State Health Department, after a conference with Mrs. Mary Sweeney Terry, director of the Jefferson County Department of Public Assistance, and Dr. G. P. Morison, who recently resigned. Dr. Price said Dr. Morison would again direct the work.

Debutante Released on Bond in Reckless-Driving Charge

Associated Press WIREPHOTOS.

Audrey Gray (right), 21-year-old Long Island debutante, was released on $1,500 bond yesterday at Putnam, Conn., and was charged with reckless driving after two brothers (above) were struck by a speedy roadster, allegedly driven by her. Wilfred Martineau (top), 14, suffered amputation of his left arm, but appeared cheerful after the ordeal. Gerald Martineau (lower), 10, was suffering from a possible skull fracture. Henry Gray, the debutante's father, offered to spend "even $10,000" for medical specialists to save their lives. (The picture published in yesterday's Post as Audrey Gray was incorrectly identified. It was a pactiure of her sister, Beatrice Gray, who is in no way involved in the case)

Mothers Seek Nursery School Reopening

Funds for Projects Left Out of 1940 Appropriation Bill

Making a pilgrimage to local papers yesterday to spread the news of their fight for the re-opening of nursery schools, funds for which were left out of the District Appropriations bill for 1940, the mother's club of the S. J. Bowen nursery center, at Second and I streets northwest, said they didn't know where to turn for help.

Despairing over a situation that has padlocked seven of the nursery projects here, one mother said, "I had two children in the school. They were getting along fine. But now . . ." Another had three at the nursery. Still another mother told how her little boy "forged right ahead" in kindergarten because of his pre-school training.

John Rockwood, director of the WPA staff for the projects, said yesterday that he believed the only recourse left to the mothers who have already made pleas to Congress to restore the projects is for a sponsor and co-sponsors to volunteer their aid. The sponsor, which must be a tax-supported institution of the city, could furnish its name. The co-sponsors, which could include groups like the parent-teacher associations, the churches or the Community Chest, might find some space in which the nurseries, pushed out of buildings under the jurisdiction of the Board of Education, could continue to operate. Another thing needed, according to Rockwood, is an extra $12,000 to buy milk and free lunches for the children. This could come from a private source.

Two of the nursery schools not in public school buildings—one at the Georgetown Children's Home and the other at the Georgetown branch of the Salvation Army—are still open, as WPA workers make inventories of equipment. The center at the Webster School, under the aegis of the Americanization School project, is not affected.

The nurseries, begun about five years ago, were under the sponsorship of the District Board of Education and the Board of Public Welfare and were staffed by WPA workers specially trained.

Anyone over 18 years old may participate in the auditions at 7:30 p. m. Tuesdays at the N. B. C. studios. Performers are paid $5 for their appearance on this program.

Woman Gets Bad Tip on Playing Parking Meters

"I'm through with parking meters forever."

With these words the District lost for all time the nickels of Mrs. Melanie M. Stewart, of 815 Eighteenth street northwest, who received a ticket for overtime parking after having paid for three hours.

Policeman C. L. Smith wrote the violation notice last Tuesday while Mrs. Stewart's machine was parked on E street northwest, between Eleventh and Twelfth streets. According to Smith's testimony yesterday, Mrs. Stewart said at that time she was told by a policeman at Ninth and F streets northwest, she could deposit as many nickels as hours she wanted to park.

"I put in three and my time is not up," Smith quoted the woman.

Traffic Court Judge Walter J. Casey inquired the identity of the policeman who misinformed Mrs. Stewart, but she replied she did not know.

"I'll take your personal bond, but that officer should go back to traffic school," Judge Casey remarked.

Board Stands Pat On Suspensions Of 18 Students

Baltimore, July 21 (AP).—School board members "stood pat" on their decision to suspend 18 Gwynns Falls Junior High School students for an attack on a Jewish boy when they asked city court to quash the petition of Carroll Phillips, jr., for reinstatement.

The board's answer and demurrer petition cited that Phillips admitted twice marking a swastika in ink on the forehead of Melvin Bridge, 14, Jewish student at the school. For the offense, the 18 participants were suspended for the balance of the school year, with the proviso they could return in September, on probation.

The board, in an investigation after the "branding" incident, found there was no organized anti-Jewish program among Gwynns Falls students, and blamed the occurrence on youthful mischief.

Man's Suit Says Wife Never Lived With Him

W. J. Richmond Overath, 22, of 2055 Park road northwest, yesterday asked District Court to annul his marriage to Mrs. Lucille R. Graves Overath, of Kansas City, Mo.

Overath's suit said that after their marriage in Arlington County, Va., last November, the couple never lived together.

Weiss Quits 3 New Orleans Jobs; Faces Jury

Will Be Arraigned on Monday on Mail Fraud Indictments

By the United Press.

New Orleans, July 21.—Seymour Weiss, who rose from washing windows to wealth and power, tonight resigned from three public offices, leaving active in politics only one of the triumvirate that succeeded Huey P. Long.

Weiss telephoned Gov. Earl K. Long from New York that, effective immediately, he resigned as president of the Commission of the Port of New Orleans, commissioner of the New Orleans police and fire departments.

Weiss will be arraigned Monday, along with four alleged confederates, on indictments charging they used the mails to perpetrate a $75,000 swindle on Louisiana State University.

Maestri Still in Office

His resignation left only one member of the triumvirate Kingfish Huey appointed to perpetuate his political machine. Richard W. Leche resigned June 26 as governor and left that post to Earl K. Long, Huey's brother. Mayor Robert S. Maestri of New Orleans is still in office and reckoned as the most powerful political figure in Louisiana. Earl Long sought the poker-faced Maestri's aid in his campaign for governor in 1940.

Dr. James Monroe Smith, the president of L. S. U., whose market plunges had unleashed a horde of investigators on the faltering Long dynasty, went back to Federal Prison. Instead of getting a modification of a writ that would permit him to spend the week-end in East Baton Rouge Parish Jail, he was indicted by a Federal grand jury here again and his bond raised to $204,500.

Smith, Hart Reindicted

Smith and Monte Hart, indicted in the alleged hotel furnishings swindle, were indicted again for using the mails to defraud in a tax scheme. Weiss, Hart, member of a prominent contracting firm; Louis X. Lesage, contact man for an oil company, and J. Emory Adams, Mrs. J. M. Smith's nephew, previously were indicted by the U. S. District grand jury for selling L. S. U. $75,000 worth of hotel furnishings it already had bought.

The indictment today charged that $14,196.07 in taxes had been included in the $575,000 purchase price and that Hart had billed L. S. U. for that amount on a letterhead of the National Equipment Co., of which he was president. Smith approved the bill and ordered a check mailed to Hart, the indictment charged.

Fredericksburg Gives Boxwood, Pageant at Fair

A delegation attended from Fredericksburg, headed by Mayor Marshall W. King, Claude Parcell, president of the city council; George L. Hunter, jr., member of the council, and L. J. Houston, jr., city manager.

A brief pageant, presented in colonial costume with characters portraying George, Mary and Betty Washington and others, depicted Washington bidding farewell to his mother before leaving for New York to take the oath as first President. John Ferguson directed the presentation.

The program also included an address by Grover Whelan, president, of the fair, to the visitors, including Virginians living in New York, members of the Virginia Society, Dixie Society and the Kenmore Association.

Glass Asks Data On Glenn Dale Colored Nurses

Queries Hazen on Who Ordered Them to Begin Duties Aug. 1

Commissioner Hazen last night had not replied to the letter Senator Carter Glass wrote him yesterday asking who ordered colored nurses in the Glenn Dale Tuberculosis Sanitarium.

The letter said: "Will you be good enough to let me know who is responsible for the order said to have been issued to require the employment of Negro nurses for association with white nurses at Glenn Dale Tuberculosis Sanitarium as set out in the attached protests of 163 patients at the sanitarium?

"Please return this protest to me after reading it."

Scheduled to become effective August 1, the plans to put 16 colored nurses on duty have drawn protests from white nurses, who have understood that 8 white nurses would be transferred to Gallinger Hospital when the change was made.

Opposed Working Together

Colored nurses were to care for colored patients and white nurses for white patients. Colored organizations in the District have been supporting the right of the former to employment at Glenn Dale.

The white nurses directed their protests against the shift to Gallinger and the alleged plans to have both groups work together in certain parts of the hospital—such as the diet kitchen.

Both Commissioner Hazen and Dr. George C. Ruhland, District health officer, have remained noncommittal on the proposal.

Business, including election of officers and selection of a 1940 meeting place, will be transacted Thursday night in Middletown Memorial Hall.

Companies identified with the county organization are the four local fire-fighting units, Guardian Hose Company, Thurmont; Walkersville Fire Department, Myersville Volunteer Fire Company, Graceham Volunteer Fire Company, Braddock Heights Fire Department, Vigilant Hose Company, Emmitsburg; Brunswick Volunteer Fire Company, New Midway Fire Company, and Middletown Fire Department. Albert Y. Boileau, Middletown, is president of the organization.

4-County Beauties Vie in Mt. Airy Firemen's Fete

Special Dispatch to The Post

Mount Airy, Md., July 21.—Beauties from Frederick, Carroll, Howard and Montgomery counties are contesting for the queenly right to preside over the annual carnival of the Mount Airy Volunteer Fire Department next week. A queen and two princesses will be selected at ceremonies Monday night at the carnival grounds.

P. C. Smith, chairman of the beauty contest, said today that approximately 30 young women have entered thus far and more are expected over the week-end.

Events are planned each night of the carnival, which is held annually to provide equipment for the company. An amateur contest is scheduled next Tuesday night, with boxing a feature on Wednesday. About 12 visiting companies are expected to participate in a firemen's parade Thursday night. Mayor Howard W. Jackson, Baltimore, will present awards to the beauty contest winners on Friday. The carnival closes July 29 with fireworks.

Top Age for Md. Police Applicants Set at 30

Baltimore, July 21 (AP).—State Employment Commissioner Harry C. Jones announced a new ruling establishing the eligibility age limit at 21 to 30 for State police force applicants, instead of 21 to 35 years. The new rule will be in effect when 10 new jobs are filled October 1.

Jones said Col. Beverly Ober, superintendent of the State Police, concurred in the order.

Doggerel About Fuehrer Lands American Lad in a Nazi Jail

Associated Press WIREPHOTO.

William Bardwell Curts, who spent a month and two days in a German prison camp for writing a piece of doggerel in a beer hall register, can write verse to his heart's content, now. The 20-year-old youth arrived in New York aboard ship yesterday, this time afraid of only what his guardian, Bestor Robinson, of Oakland, Calif., would say about the incident

"The Fuehrer has no wife; the farmer has no sow; the butcher has no meat—and that's the Third Reich.")

"I had no intention," he went on, "of insulting the Fuehrer or the Reich and I realize now that what I should have done was to have socked the big German in the nose instead of writing what I did. I knew immediately I had done wrong because suddenly several people began to beat me."

Then, he said, he was rescued by an agent of the Gestapo (the secret police) and an officer of the S. S. (the Elite Guard) and put under arrest. He was allowed, however, to spend the night in his hotel, without guard, and formally surrendered next day.

There followed a series of conferences about his case and finally, after he'd spent a month and two days in prison, he was released on June 14, "with the understanding that I would leave Germany immediately. As the alternative I was to stand trial for violating the German penal code. I left."

Jail Not So Bad

He said his captors acted "civilly" toward him and let him buy special food without overcharging him.

Concerning a letter he had written to his guardian, in which there was unrestrained praise of how the German people "fight for their Fuehrer," young Curts was asked if that had been a tongue-in-cheek phrase to pass the censors and notify the home folks of the fix he was in.

"I like Germany," he answered, "and if I ever go back to Europe I hope to visit it again."

1,962 Arrests Made In Montgomery in First Half of 1939

Montgomery County police made 1,962 arrests in the first six months of 1939, the report of Police Chief Charles M. Orme reveals. In the entire year of 1938 there were 3,338 arrests.

Traffic offenses led all others in the six months' period, with 571 arrests for violation of road and driving laws, 27 cases of driving while drunk and 108 others. The 27 drunk driving arrests resulted in 24 convictions.

Orme reported a decrease in the more serious crimes as compared with the previous year. There were 7 robbery, 86 burglary, 37 larceny of more than $50, 141 larceny less than $50, 13 auto thefts and no murders. The only increase in serious crime was in rape, with six cases in the six months and eight cases reported in all of 1938.

Wells in Schools Being Renovated In Montgomery

Wells at Montgomery County's smaller schools are undergoing renovation, Dr. V. L. Ellicott, county health officer, said yesterday.

At Montrose School a platform has been erected, first to be built at 30 school wells. The model, well planned for all county schools, will have a watertight concrete platform and a ledge encircling the pump to prevent seepage of surface water into the shaft.

Analysis of water taken from the wells has shown in several cases a slight contamination, although no record has been found of any of the children having been affected, the health officer said. Danger of contamination existed when water used to wash hands of the children could seep back into the well. Modernization is being supervised by Frank I. Davis, supervisor of school property, and Dr. Ellicott.

J. Stevens Commissioned

John Stevens, son of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Stevens, of 249 Ethan Allen avenue, Takoma Park, Md., has been commissioned a lieutenant in the United States Marine Corps. Stevens was in the cadet corps at Central High School and a colonel in the R. O. T. C. of the University of Maryland.

Md., Virginia Hospitals to Get U. S. Radium

18 Other States and Hawaii Also on List; D. C. Makes No Request

Hospitals in Maryland, Virginia, 18 other States and the territory of Hawaii will receive a total of eight and one-half grams of radium within the next few weeks, loaned by the National Cancer Institute.

Dr. Thomas Parran, Surgeon General of the United States and chairman of the National Advisory Cancer Council, made the announcement yesterday.

No applications have been received as yet from 28 other States or the District, Dr. Parran asserted. The eight and one-half grams soon to be distributed are valued at $180,000. The Bureau of Standards is completing tests on the huge radium supply and preparing it for shipment in specially constructed lead containers.

Some Goes to Honolulu

Johns Hopkins and university hospitals in Baltimore and the medical college hospital at Charlottesville will be beneficiaries in Maryland and Virginia, respectively.

Other States on the "application approved" list are California, Colorado, Connecticut, Georgia, Kansas, Louisiana, Michigan, Missouri, Nebraska, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Texas, Vermont and Washington.

Radium sent to Hawaii will be used at Queen's Hospital, Honolulu.

While costly at the outset, radium can be used over and over again for hundreds of years. It has been scientifically estimated that the element loses half its strength every 1,700 years. Its rays are the most penetrating known, next to cosmic rays.

No Charge for Radium Use

Dr. Parran said the National Advisory Cancer Council made its designations on the basis of need, competence of personnel and adequacy of facilities for cancer treatment.

The Institute still has about 1,300 milligrams of radium unassigned and applications will continue to be considered. Institutions accepting the Government-owned radium must agree to make no charges to the patients for its use and meet high standards regarding medical, nursing and laboratory personnel.

worshippers, but one of them rose from his pew and grasped one of the assassins. The roundup of all followed.

The prosecution sought to show that members of a secret Armenian revolutionary society were participants in the attack.

The apparent motive for the killing was political.

The father, a close friend of the murdered archbishop, said obliquely what he apparently feared to say publicly.

"Suppose," he cried, "they kidnaped my son and they read that I gave the news? They might kill him."

The successor to the murdered prelate, Archbishop Karekin Hovsepian, is a house guest now at the Dadourian home.

Hovannes is one of the two Dadourian children born in the United States. Dadourian brought his wife, Katherine, to this country after the Turkish-Armenian massacres around 1919 in which four of their sons and a daughter were slain.

Unique Film Scores a Hit At the Capitol

"On Borrowed Time" Is Splendidly Acted; Comedy Rules Stage

"ON BORROWED TIME." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picturization of a play by Paul Osborn, based on a novel by Lawrence Edward Watkin, adapted to the screen by Alice D. G. Miller, Frank O'Neill and Claudine West, with Lionel Barrymore Sir Cedric Hardwicke, Bobs Watson, Beulah Bondi, Una Merkel, Nat Pendleton, Henry Travers, Grant Mitchell, Ely Malyon, Charles Waldron, Ian Wolfe Phillip Terry and Truman Bradley. Directed by Harold S. Bucquet. Reviewed Friday afternoon. At the Capitol Theater.

A completely different and imaginative film is "On Borrowed Time," the Capitol's new feature.

A film which, with earthly humor, brings one of life's mysteries into the cinematic spotlight, in which, as a rule, only our fleshly amours and transgressions bask, is bound to be an interesting one. "On Borrowed Time" is exactly that and if, in the last 100 feet, it makes a concession to the saccharine celestial, even that does not keep it from being a thoroughly warming experience.

The story it tells is simplicity itself. Salty-tongued Gramps hopes to put off his death long enough to keep mercenary Aunt Demetria from getting her talons on grandson Pud and the money his father had left him.

What makes one care why Gramps should succeed, is that he is so natural. No sanctimonious old codger he, but an outspoken old fellow, who goes fishing Sunday morning and on the way home has the tough luck to have his rickety bus break down in front of the village church, just as service is over. When he calls a grasping female relative a "pickle puss" he not only means it, but, you are very sure, a lot more besides.

Stalling "Mr. Brink"

By his side, at all times, is rollicking little Pud, copying each saying and gesture, and calling prissy Aunt Demetria "a pismire." And when Aunt Demetria comes near winning, after the little fellow is an orphan and even his grandmother has passed away, Gramps and Pud run death, in the person of a pleasant Mr. Brink, up a tree and won't let him down.

The charm of this fantasy is inherent. Both the novel and play, upon which the film has been based, may have had an even more earthy strain, but whatever hedging Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has had to do in the matter of toning down Gramp's vocabulary, the studio should be warmly applauded for bringing to the screen a play which Washington, because of the local child labor law, has never seen on the stage.

Lionel Barrymore's Gramps is one of the most moving characters he has played recently. Through a long series of crotchety but lovable old-men roles have shone some of the more pronounced of his mannerisms, but as Gramps he is fine. Sir Cedric Hardwicke's Mr. Brink is similarly excellent.

Bobs Watson, in an exceptionally difficult part for a child, is even better as the loving Pud. Beulah Bondi, as the tired grandmother, is quietly effective. The other characters are portrayed by some of the most experienced supporting players in films, a casting that results in an assured and well-toned level.

Johnny Burke Scores

The Capitol's stage revue is called "Laffs Over F Street," the laughs being from Johnny Burke, who digs up the hoariest puns and made yesterday's first house love them, and Les Chesterfield, a continental duo, who have one heck of a time making a pump organ and a cello behave.

Marjorie Gainsworth, getting to be a familiar face on the F street stage, returns with a medley of songs, the best of which is the new Irving Berlin ballad, "When Winter Comes." The blonde—and very—Miss Gainsworth also sings Bishop's trilly, "Lo, Hear the Gentle Lark," and a cryptically titled lyric dedicated to "the Nation."

Florence and Bob Robinson open the bill. Two bobbing redheads, they offer a lively dance routine. Len Manning and his versatile dog, Mitzie, got a big hand from a packed house and as the orchestra pit sinks down after the vaudeville is over, one of the theater porters comes out to clean up the platform and sings "Goin' Home." It's all very informal! RICHARD L. COE.

Columbia

"Maisie" is a truly extraordinary blonde whom you must not miss seeing in action. Stranded in a Western cowtown, she lassoes the most eligible man in yodeling distance, solves a triangle and is even mistress of the retort snappy.

Ann Southern, who has been farmed out to too many studios, finally comes into her deserved star billing. The part is made for her. Fast talking, honest, capricious chorus girl who always lands on her feet, she will probably make the traditional idea about blondes die of malnutrition.

Robert Young is the ranch foreman who is lucky enough to captivate Maisie's big-as-all-outdoors heart. Ian Hunter and Ruth Hussey are the couple whose duet flattens out in tragedy. Miss Hussey is one of the most attractive heavies who have lifted sulphurous eyelashes in many a feature.

But it is Maisie's party and it would seem in order to suggest a cycle of films about her and her adventures.

Robert Benchley blunders through a comedy about dark magic which is appealing and ludricous. Sara Haden makes "Angel of Mercy," a short about Clara Barton, movingly dramatic. There is a newsreel containing, among other things, some fine clips about the failure of the Squalus salvaging attempts.

12-Car Train For 3 Hobo Stars

It will be what amounts to a preview of hobo heaven one night soon when Warner Bros. studio charters a complete 12-car freight train for the exclusive use of three tramps.

The tramps will be John Garfield, Bobby Jordan and Billy Halop, stars of the new movie, "Dust Be My Destiny." Their private chartered train will puff along a stretch of Southern Pacific track in the San Fernando Valley.

Garfield will renew an old technique when he hops the moving freight train. In the days before he became a stage and screen star, Garfield once traveled across the country in "side-door pullmans."

'Man About Town,' at the Earle, Is a Top-Hole Musical Frolic

Jack Benny and Ace Cast Score Popular Bullseye; Stage Bill a Hit

"MAN ABOUT TOWN." Paramount picturization of a story by Morrie Ryskind, Allan Scott and E. Meyers, adapted to the screen by Morrie Ryskind, starring Jack Benny, Dorothy Lamour and Edward Arnold, with Binnie Barnes, Monty Woolley, Isabel Jeans Phil Harris, Betty Grable, E. E. Clive, Eddie Anderson, the Merriel Abbott Dancers, Matty Malneck's Orchestra and the Pina Troupe. Directed by Mark Sandrich. Reviewed Friday afternoon. At the Earle Theater.

It has remained for Morrie Ryskind to discover the proper formula for a successful Jack Benny screen vehicle. An expert at the contrivance of flippant plot, sparkling dialogue and the deft interpolation of musical numbers into his scripts, Mr. Ryskind, in "Man About Town," has fashioned the first celluloid outlet for the Benny talents at all commensurate with their worth.

BELL

Perhaps the secret is that the resourceful Mr. Ryskind has turned out a full-fledged comedy, to which the music is only incidental, that does not place the entire amusement burden upon the high Benny shoulders. There are several roles in the piece quite as important as his and at least one that is considerably funnier. They all add up to a breezy, well-played, handsomely staged and musically enlivened frolic that scored tremendously with yesterday afternoon's overflow audience.

"Man About Town" relates the inconsequential story of an American theatrical producer about to put on a show in London. He is an ardent wooer of certain feminine members of his cast, who will have nothing to do with him beyond the demands of their contracts. So he sets forth in a blanket of pea-soup fog to encounter adventure and maybe "pick up" the means of making his indifferent beauties jealous. All he picks up the first evening is a black eye, but at a luncheon the next day he has better—or worse—luck. He "picks up" Lady Arlington, whose husband has broken his appointment to dine and wine her and left her in resentful mood. This chance meeting develops into a series of contretemps that lend the comedy its principal motivation and much of its verve.

So They Get Their Guns!

Bob Temple is surreptitiously invited to a week-end house party at the estate of Lord Arlington and takes along Diana Wilson, the girl who will have none of him, and Ted Nash, the lad of whom she will have a great deal, just to prove that he isn't making up the fantastic tale of his social eminence. The piqued Lady Arlington and her friend, the equally angered wife of Mons. Dubois, Lord Arlington's business partner, utilize the unsuspecting Mr. Temple as a means of making their husbands jealous. They succeed to the point of revolvers and much storming about.

Since it is a musical show that Temple is putting on in London, the introduction of songs, dances and spectacular stage scenes is wholly in the spirit of the picture. The musical revue scenes, incidentally, are staged with utmost opulence and make good use of the Merriel Abbott Dancers—a dozen or so amazingly agile and graceful terpsichorean acrobats—the Pina troupe of Arabian tumblers and Matty Malneck's Orchestra, led most of the time by Phil Harris as Ted Nash.

The title role has been so adroitly patterned as to make this by far Benny's best assignment to date before the cameras. He opens proceedings with an atrocious violin solo and continues in highly hilarious vein throughout the remainder of the play. Dorothy Lamour is a decoration without much of importance to do beyond singing "Strange Enchantment," in the harem scene, and making life miserable for Mr. Benny. Edward Arnold's robust talents are perfectly adjusted to the role of Lord Arlington and Binnie Barnes and Isabel Jeans make the most of their roles of the neglected wives. Monty Woolley is the bewhiskered and belligerent Dubois. Phil Harris joins Dorothy Lamour in a tricky song., Betty Grable sings one solo number, with chorus background, and "Rochester" stops the show in two solo dances.

This "Rochester" fellow—Benny's valet on the broadcasts—in the person of Eddie Anderson comes nearer stealing the picture than any other member of the cast. He has been given a "fat" part, with some of the meatiest lines, and "goes to town" with it in torrid fashion.

Stage Revue a Hit

The "Hollywood Bandwagon" revue, devised by Production Manager Harry Anger for the stage this week, was as enthusiastically received as the screen feature yesterday at the performance reviewed. The headline act and the hit of the show is provided by Texas Jim Lewis and His Lone Star Cowboys, the singing instrumentalists, who never fail to click in a big way in this town. They are preceded by Wynn, Brach and Ames, a dancing team consisting of two men and a girl, and followed by Whitey and Ed Ford and Motter and Davis. It must be known to everyone by now that "Whitey" is an exceptionally well-trained fox terrier that contributes more to the act than his master does. Motter and Davis are two gymnasts who rank at the top among the hand-balancers and strong men.

The Roxyettes this week introduce a clever puppet number and an interval of tom-tomming that is strikingly effective.

A Leon Errol comedy, "Moving Vanities," and the Paramount News complete a bill that seems headed for another capacity week on Thirteenth street.

Black-Face Comic

Bob Burns, starred in "I'm From Missouri," was once a member of the black-face comic team of Burns and Sour, vaudeville headliners.

Don't Let His Smile Fool You

JACK BENNY,

who is not always as carefree and debonair as here pictured in the title role of Paramount's production of "Man About Town," the current week's screen attraction at the Warner Brothers' Earle Theater. There are times during the action when Mr. Benny is looking down gun barrels and such as a reward for his philandering. Dorothy Lamour and Edward Arnold share stellar honors with Benny, with able cast and ensemble in support

The New Yorker

New York, July 21.

JOE LOUIS: A Washington official came to New York the other day to bring the movies of your fight against Tony Galento back to the Capital. Although a Federal statute forbids the transportation of fight films across the State lines, there will be no prosecution. The pictures are being exhibited at the White House! . . . Gov. Earl Long: Seymour Weiss, who was indicted in the Louisiana scandal, is positive he's innocent . . . Mrs. Gregory Mangin: Are you going to send postcards to your friends, from Nevada? . . . Loretta Young: William P. Buckner, jr., your fiance, who was convicted recently, has been going to Siegmund Klein's, taking weight-lifting lessons.

GROVER WHALEN: The Group Booking Plan Co. will bring suit against you and the Fair officials, alleging that your new $1 coupon plan was originated by them and had been submitted to you . . . Incidentally, you expect 200,000 people to avail themselves of the coupon plan, which will include passes for them to see five shows. How can that work out—with at least 20,000 people seeing a single show in a place not equipped to hold one-tenth that many?

MAGAZINE GUILD: The SEC will bring charges soon against some magazine operators, on the charge of stock manipulation . . . Lazaro Cardenas: Washington hears reports that a blowoff's coming next month in Mexico . . . Louella Parsons: Nunnally Johnson, who helped rewrite that Thomas Wood article about you, received no pay. It was a labor of love . . . Ginger Rogers: Heywood Broun and Harold Ross will occupy your Hollywood home during their vacation. Your mother called Ross and suggested: "We'll have a car meet you at the train. Which car would you prefer—the limousine or the station wagon?" . . . "Listen," Ross replied, "I knew you and Ginger when you didn't have a kiddie car between you."

MABEL BOLL: Sam Rosoff, the subway builder, saw Christine Fisher wearing a huge sapphire. He phoned her and asked where he could purchase a sapphire like that . . . Christine immediately sent a group of jewelers laden with sapphires to Rosoff's apartment—but Sam displayed no interest. The next day he phoned Christine and complained: "I didn't want those sapphires they showed me. The one I want is a big, green one."

GEORGIE PRICE: What are your doing in Florida at this time of the year? . . . F. D. R.: McNary, the Republican leader, expects Congress to adjourn by July 28 . . . Dixie Davis: So you were surprised last week when the front pages reported that United States Internal Revenue men were interested in your income-tax status? It was published in this column on August 25, last year . . . George VI: The stewardesses aboard the ship which brought Crown Prince Olaf to this country and back confide that—despite all the attention ready to be paid to this ruler-to-be—only once during the trip did he ring for help. He called the stewardess to say: "I'm sorry, miss—but I upset the vase."

SENATOR BORAH: Joe E. Lewis, the clown, was in excellent form at the Riviera the other night . . . After his performance one of the guests—a legislator who favored the President's neutrality bill, which you oppose—complimented Lewis and added: "To me you're even funnier than Borah" . . . "G'wan," Joe replied, "how can you compare me with Minnevitch?"

GERTRUDE NIESEN: London producers want you to return to London to star in "She Had to Get Married." Tullio Carminati will have the male lead . . . Raymond Massey: Bob Sherwood, who wrote your play, "Abe Lincoln in Illinois," has a new interest—playing with toy aeroplanes . . . Henry Fonda: John Steinbeck, author of "Grapes of Wrath," will go to Hollywood to inspect the screen play in which you're to have the leading role . . . Newspaper Guild: The police department will remove all those phony "Press" signs from cars whose owners secured these signs by paying a $5 fee to a Washington organization which manufactures them.

Metropolitan

Having completed two weeks of exceptional favor at the Earle no longer ago than Thursday night, "Daughters Courageous" yesterday morning continued its downtown run as chief feature of the new bill at the Metropolitan.

This is the Warner Brothers production that perpetuates the domestic complications that enter the home life of the Masters family, first introduced to the public in "Four Daughters." The four daughters, in the persons of Priscilla, Lola and Rosemary Lane and Gale Page, are the mainsprings of the new film just as they were of the first, although an added interest is supplied by the perplexities that confront Mrs. Masters when her husband, Jim, returns home from 20 years of wandering, just as she is about to marry the town's most substantial citizen. These three more adult roles are played by Fay Bainter, Claude Rains and Donald Crisp. May Robson, also, again is in the cast. The youthful romances are intrusted to Dick Foran, John Garfield and Frank McHugh, in addition to the girls already mentioned.

"Daughters Courageous" is a picture that abounds in humor as well as in those more serious concerns that strike deeply at the roots of happy home life. It is played with consummate skill by all concerned and has been admirably directed by Michael Curtiz, who also was reponsible for "Four Daughters."

The new bill at the Metropolitan is augmented by the usual array of shorter features and a new release of the picturized news events.

Palace

The exceptionally faithful transcription of "Goodbye Mr. Chips," the sentimental James Hilton novel of the life of an English schoolmaster, has been continued for a third week at Loew's Palace Theater.

Robert Donat's remarkably moving portrait of the shy, but genial, latin instructor and house-master, Mr. Chipping by name, is the major factor in the unqualified success of this Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production, filmed in England. From the excitement of a youth, as he approaches his new work, to the warm understanding of an Englishman of 63, the star builds a figure so sympathetic, that the most hardboiled of any audience will feel a nostalgia for the things that are past, but always with us, just as Mr. Chips does.

Nothing very much, at least cinematically speaking, happens to Chips. The school is his life and a brief marriage with a lovely soul, who brings out the best in him, gives way to thirty years of widowerhood. But as he grows older, he sees the perfect pattern of life and how each generation at Brookfield is succeeded by one strikingly similar to the one before it.

The debut of Greer Garson, as the woman who destroys Chips' shyness, is an exceptionally effective one, for into her brief role the actress pours a wealth of understanding.

The short subjects also are continued.

George Raft Is Perfectly Cast In Keith Film

'I Stole a Million' Is a Well-Acted Crime Melodrama

"I STOLE A MILLION." Universal picturization of a story by Lester Cole, adapted to the screen by Nathaniel West, starring George Raft, with Claire Trevor, Dick Foran, Henry Armetta, Victor Jory, George Chandler, Irving Bacon, Tom Fadden, Robert Elliot and Joe Sawyer. Directed by Frank Tuttle. Reviewed Friday afternoon. At RKO-Keith's Theater.

You can steal a million dollars and not have a nickel. But the ill luck of George Raft in lifting a million dollars' worth of bonds and then finding they are nonnegotiable, is just a minor misfortune amid the woes he piles on his own head as a top-hole gangster in "I Stole a Million." George steals a million, but he has a billion dollars' worth of trouble.

This latest celluloid to be constructed around the modern adage, "Crime does not pay," pictures a criminal career grounded in accident, built up through circumstance.

Playing a moderately tough taxi driver, George is shown in the greedy clutchs of a taxicab finance company. He manages to pay up completely, he thinks. But there are extra charges. He doesn't get his cab and the finance company refuses to make any refund. So Master Georgie grabs the credit manager by the collar and literally shakes the back payments out of him. Come the police, but George makes a getaway. But he has a handcuff dangling to his wrist. A casual bum refers him to an underworld connection to have the bracelet removed. But before the hoodlum will remove the police jewelry, he insists that George act as the getaway driver in a bank robbery. So a criminal is born.

His Past Bobs Up

No matter how hard George tries to be good, he just seems to get on the hook of Satan. He marries a sweet girl and becomes a successful garage owner, but the police come looking for him not only on the score of his first error, but the bank mix-up and a little matter of holding up a crooked crap game where he'd been gyped. His garage assistant misleads the detectives, but blackmails George out of the garage. Also, the little wife is "expecting." George holds up a postoffice so that she won't have to go to a charity hospital. If ever there was a fellow bedeviled by fate, it is George. His wife is sent to prison for aiding in his escape. Then George really goes in for big-time robbery, just to build up a fortune so that his wife and baby will be well fixed.

"I Stole a Million" deserves especial credit for its background of criminal development. True, young Mr. Raft is made to seem a good deal of a dunderhead in situations that call more for thought than gunplay. But that sort of thing, it's said, obtains in real life.

Exciting sequences stud the story. Raft's escape after the bank robbery will give the chills to safe and sane drivers. The crap game shots are sharp, too.

Role Tailored to Star

This bandit role is tailored to order for Raft and he does it in his best form. Claire Trevor again proves herself a very fine young actress as the little former factory girl and flower shop manager, who marries Raft. Her accents, mannerisms and appearances exactly fit the part. Dick Foran is again cast as one of those big, good-hearted, mushy guys who can't make the grade with the girl of his heart but continues as her best friend. No end of good acting is offered by a dozen or so crack character actors.

That great star, Mickey Mouse, and his stanch friend, Pluto, go a-hunting in the current Disney cartoon. Mickey and Pluto finally flush a grizzly and it's, yoicks! back to camp. "Devil Drivers," another fine short, shows both continental road racing and American track racing, with the former proving more exciting, though less fatal. "Wrong Way" Corrigan's wedding stops the newsreel which is one of the best.

MARY HARRIS.

Louella O. Parsons

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Hollywood, July 21 (DST).—Personally, I don't envy Hal Wallis his search for an actor to play Edgar Allan Poe in the Warner biography of the great American poet. Weak, arrogant and self-indulgent, Poe's life was a tragedy—but his works live on as deathless literary classics. His wife, who died at the age of 24, was the one inspiring influence in his career, and many of his greatest poems, including "The Raven," were dedicated to her.

LOUELLA PARSONS

Very few of Poe's grim poems or stories have been made on the screen. I remember one, "The Tell-Tale Heart," made years ago by D. W. Griffith, a one-reeler with Henry Walthall, which made such a vivid impression on me I shall never forget it. So far, the only actor cast for the Poe biography, now being scripted by Robert Kent and Ted Reed, is Jeffrey Lynn—and this means he's in for a session of long hair and dyed locks in keeping with the early period.

You could have knocked me over with a feather when I heard Paramount was loaning Fred MacMurray to Darryl Zanuck for "Little Old New York." His home studio has been buying stories for Fred like mad, planning to give him a variety of parts, from heroes to gangsters. But the chance to play in this delightful comedy drama is enough to make both Fred and Para change their minds. As I've told you before, Alice Faye will play the part Marion Davies created on the silent screen and Richard Greene is the third top name in the cast. "The Night of January 16," recently announced as Fred's next, will be postponed until "Little Old New York," which Henry King is directing, is finished.

The Hollywood gold offered Ralph Richardson has failed to lure him away from his native England. He is the fine character actor who played the never-to-be-forgotten Denny in "The Citadel." He was also seen here as the husband in "South Riding," and does a highly creditable job in "Four Feathers," the new Alexander Korda picture. Offers aplenty have gone to him from every company in the business, but now he has signed a five-year contract with Korda and will only come to the U. S. A. should his boss need him in "The Constant Nymph," Merle Oberon's picture. A pity, too, for Richardson is really a swell actor.

The hottest rivalries in Hollywood are not between the box office kings and queens. No, it is the press agents who are turning on the big competition. Just the other morning I was awakened by two glamour girls at the front door, dressed too exotically for words, delivering my invitation to the "Four Feathers" preview. Another bright idea is displaying paste replicas of England's royal jewels, as a stunt in connection with "Sherlock Holmes" at Twentieth Century. The real crown jewels are valued at $15,000,000—but the studio has copied them exactly for $1,000. One of the best exploitation gags comes from Warners, where they are putting out a gossip sheet, couched in good old Elizabethan phraseology, in connection with "Elizabeth and Essex." "The Old Maid" will be tied up with the old maid's convention in New York in September. And last, but not least, Maurice Maeterlinck himself has agreed to make the trailer for Shirley Temple's "The Bluebird."

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: A third boy at the Don Ameche home made welcome, even though a little sister was ordered; Mrs. Dick Foran, who has a date with the stork, is very sick and in the hospital; Charlie Chaplin and Rose Heitner, an Earl Carroll beauty, chatting over a midnight snack; Joe Frisco won a goodly amount at the track and bought himself a complete new outfit—a study in yellow; C. Aubrey Smith celebrated his seventy-sixth birthday anniversary today and was feted with a cake and all the trimmings; a roast beef sextet at the La Conga tonight were the Nigel Bruces, Errol Flynn, his sister and parents; Mrs. Jack Warner and Cedric Gibbons are inviting social Hollywood to a supper dance on July 29 in honor of Jack's and Dolores Del Rio's natal days.

Hope Hampton and Jules Brulatour, who remain in Hollywood for the racing season, are hosting a dinner at the Bel Air Country Club July 31; Greta Garbo walked unannounced into a Westwood shop and stocked up on sweaters, berets and slacks—all very inexpensive. She's smart enough to save her money; Beryl Wallace, Earl Carroll's most beautiful showgirl, with her boss at the Cafe Lamaze; Joan Bennett and John McClain doing all the concessions at Ocean Park and bringing home dozens of trophies; J. Carroll Naish keeping his boyish figure by chopping down trees. Nice exercise, if you can take it; Rosa Ponselle, tanned a very dark shade, at the Hal Roaches' for dinner. Young Margaret sang for Rosa, who complimented her.

That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

Nightmare Causes Him to Study Sea

Donald Crisp went to a tutor for more than a year because he had a nightmare about being lost at sea.

Crisp's tutor taught him the science of navigation. After taking the course, the Warner Bros. star passed the rigid examinations entitling him to a navigator's license and a ship master's papers. He is one of the few motion picture yachtsmen to attain such classification.

"I was dreaming about what I would do if I were eight days out from shore and my captain suddenly fell overboard or had heart failure," the actor said. "So I decided I would fit myself to be my own navigator.

He fitted himself so well that he recently sailed his 106-foot schooner from Kingston, Jamaica, to San Pedro.

THE U.S.A. CAN BE PROUD OF MARYLAND'S FAMOUS DRY LAGER BEER

Gunther's Special Dry Lager ... the beer so famous in Baltimore and Washington ... today outclasses some of Europe's world-famous brews. Other U. S. beers also lauded by Experts

SOME IMPORTED BEERS COST AS MUCH AS 30¢.. YET GUNTHER'S MATCHES THEM FOR TASTE AT A DIME!
GUNTHER'S HAS IT! IT'S DRY AND BEER-Y... NOT HEAVY AND SWEET... THAT'S THE TIP-OFF TO A REAL BEER DRINKER
A REAL MAN'S BEER YET IT DOESN'T SEEM TO "FILL" ME UP!
WOMEN WHO KNOW MEN BEST... SERVE GUNTHER'S .... A MAN'S BEER

EUROPE better watch its step. That's the opinion of international experts who know beer. For the go-getting U. S. A. has learned in a few years how to make beers equal to those it took Europe a lifetime to perfect!

And the experts say to you who live in Maryland and Washington ... if you want to taste beer that is equal in every way to the most famous European beers ... try Gunther's Special Dry Lager! It doesn't cost you 20¢ or 30¢ as you might expect from its reputation, but only a dime.

How Can Gunther's Do It?

How can Gunther's offer such high quality beer at the price of regular beers? There are three big reasons: 1. Gunther's makes hundreds of thousands of BARRELS of beer (the equivalent of over 90 MILLION bottles) ... more than any other beer in this part of the country! This big volume means big savings on ingredient and brewing costs. 2. Most all of Gunther's is sold to folks right here in Maryland and D. C. ... this means that no long-haul shipping charges are added to the cost of Gunther's. 3. Most of it is delivered direct from the brewery to your dealer in our own trucks ... another enormous saving, because breweries from other states have to pay as much as 30¢ to 50¢ per case to the wholesalers who handle their beer.

Put all these big savings together and you can see why folks around here can have Gunther's quality at a dime, whereas if you lived in New York, Milwaukee, St. Louis, etc., you would have to pay at least 15¢ per bottle for it.

Gunther Brewing Co., Baltimore, Md.

EUROPE MEETS ITS MATCH WHEN THE U.S.A. CAN MAKE BEER LIKE GUNTHER'S!
IT'S AMAZING THE PROGRESS THE U.S.A. HAS MADE IN SO SHORT A TIME!
INTERNATIONAL BARMEN ASSOCIATION
By this Pledge
Let it be known that Gunther's beer will always be brewed according to the highest standards of the art of brewing. We will never use any but the finest ingredients, and thus maintain the same remarkable dry lager quality that places it among the finest beers, domestic or imported.
The high cost of making Gunther's prohibits the giving away of premiums or prizes. All the value is in the Beer!
Gunther dry beer

Win, lose or break even—you'll enjoy the races a lot more if you drink Gunther's! It's the only "Special Dry Lager" ... the taste REAL beer drinkers prefer!

For rich, hearty, full-bodied ALE ... look for Gunther's in the beautiful green bottle.

MARYLAND IS FAMOUS FOR GUNTHER'S DRY BEER-Y BEER

Slap For The NLRB

Members of the House Labor Committee took a vigorous stand against the Smith resolution providing for a special investigation of the National Labor Relations Board on the ground that it was a "slap in the face" for them. That may have been a minor purpose of the resolution. Its major purpose appears to have been a slap on the wrist for the NLRB.

There is no way of determining whether the labor committee deliberately thwarted action on amendments to the national labor relations act at this session. It appears to have been reasonably diligent in the conduct of hearings during more than two months. With the ranks of labor divided into two hostile factions, the task of formulating amendments to this controversial statute will be, at best, a dilemma. It is not unnatural that the committee has continued taking testimony and thus delayed its greater task of agreeing upon the changes to be recommended.

Whether or not this slow procedure can be justified, the House is irritated at the outcome. Many members had hoped for an opportunity to vote for substantial changes in the NLRB before adjournment. Everyone now realizes that such a complicated subject cannot be disposed of this year. Congressmen actively opposed to the act in its present form have had no opportunity to strike at either the statute or the board operating under it. So they seized upon the Smith resolution as a means of disciplining the board and expressing their resentment over some of its decisions.

Of course, the investigation ordered would be much broader than the labor committee's hearing on proposed amendments. In large measure, the special probe is aimed at the conduct of the board, rather than the short-comings of the law. Yet it is difficult to see how the special committee will avoid duplication of much of the work already done by standing committees of the House and Senate.

As an indication that a majority in the House is keeping a close watch on the NLRB and is determined to improve the act early next year, the vote of Thursday carries a welcome note of assurance. But there is a real danger that three separate studies of the same subject may add to the present confusion, instead of hastening a satisfactory solution.

Poor Timing

The Administration has certainly chosen a very inopportune time for launching its latest spending-lending program.

Customarily these pump-priming ventures are begun when business activity is at low ebb. At the present moment, however, all signs point toward improvement immediately ahead. Industrial production indices are rising; car loadings are increasing, and the steel industry is giving an especially good account of itself, showing a sharp contra-seasonal advance in activity. Furthermore, a good many of the larger company statements, currently appearing, show that earnings for the first half of this year have been much better than during the same period of 1938 and that prospects are bright for the future.

The abnormally low level of new financing, as distinguished from new issues for refunding purposes, is one of the few conspicuous dark spots in a generally cheerful business picture. But that situation will automatically tend to change for the better if business continues to improve and nothing is done to prevent the revival of financial confidence.

It is, therefore, important to remember now that the stimulative effect of business recovery upon private investment activity can easily be destroyed by legislation authorizing huge pump-priming outlays. By increasing the public debt these send private capital into hiding. Given assurance against Government invasion of the investment field, private capital will enter it whenever there is a fair chance for profitable employment of funds.

The zeal with which the spending-lending bill is being pruned by the Senate Banking Committee shows a waning faith in the efficacy of spending panaceas, or possibly a mounting fear of financial disaster ahead. What Congress ought to do, of course, is to reject the whole ill-timed program, and give reviving business a chance to show what it can accomplish toward achieving a well-balanced recovery.

For Clean Government

Passage of the revitalized Hatch-Dempsey bill by Congress is a courageous as well as a dramatic stroke in behalf of clean government. The House responded admirably to the call for a decisive showing of strength against political racketeering. And, with admirably little regard for immediate political consequences, it voted to divorce virtually the whole administrative branch of the Federal Government from partisan activity.

The measure is truly sweeping in its implications. The frantic efforts of politically minded Congressmen to defeat it by any means at their command foreshadow far-reaching repercussions from the bill in the 1940 campaigns. But any dismay felt by Mr. Farley is, in this instance, a cause for rejoicing by the rank and file of citizens. They are more concerned with efficient Government service than with the creation of gigantic political machines.

Perhaps the most persuasive argument against that section of the bill forbidding political activity on the part of Government employes was made by Representative Hobbs. The foundation stone of this Government, he said, is the right of all citizens to participate in their Government. As a generalization, his statement is beyond challenge. But it ignores the basic abuses at which the bill is aimed.

In answer to Mr. Hobbs, Representative Rees and other supporters of the bill pointed out two conditions which make the restriction of political activities on the part of Government employes imperative for the future security of democracy. One is the tremendous growth of bureaucracy during recent years; the other is the vast increase in Federal funds distributed to various groups in the form of public aid.

When a vast army of Government employes is free to lead and support political campaigns, the will of the people as expressed at the polls may be frequently distorted. In effect, party workers are paid out of the public purse. The result is not only to give the party in power a tremendous political advantage, but also to demoralize the Government service by "spoils" psychology.

Congress long ago recognized the practical necessity of divorcing the civil service system from politics. But not until Thursday had both houses recognized the desirability of making this safeguard general. Now both Senate and House have approved the extension of the civil service ban on political activities to all non-policy-making employes in the executive branch. Politicians have no more incentive to install their henchmen in Federal offices, because their usefulness in campaign management will cease.

No objective citizen familiar with recent political trends can doubt the urgency of this significant reform. It is a severe blow at the spoils system as well as at "pernicious political activities." It is the more important because many of the employes now free to manage campaigns for the politicians who secured their jobs are engaged in the spending of Federal funds or the distribution of relief jobs. The corruption uncovered in the 1936 and 1938 elections is a clear indication of what might be expected if this disastrous alliance between politics and loose public spending were permitted to continue.

The willingness of politicians to coerce destitute voters, plus the fear of building up a gigantic machine directed by Federal office holders, produced a storm of indignation in the House. It subordinated political implications to the welfare of the country, as the Senate had previously done. Both houses are to be congratulated for what will undoubtedly prove to be one of the most important acts of the present Congress. And the measure is so clearly in line with the President's frequently expressed desire to extend the merit system that its reception at the White House can scarcely be in doubt.

Curious Ethics

Three months ago Administrator Andrews advocated exemption of persons whose regular earnings exceed $200 per month from the operation of the wage-hour law.

The reasons which prompted him to endorse an amendment excluding these groups are as valid today as they were then. Only a brief testing period was needed to demonstrate that it is administratively impracticable, and generally unnecessary, to try to apply the restrictive hours provisions to higher-paid workers. As a group—of course with some exceptions—such employes are able to protect themselves against unduly long hours. Furthermore, a great many of the more highly-paid white-collar workers perform tasks that cannot be made to fit into a rigid schedule of hours. That is one reason for their good wages.

Mr. Andrews' present retreat from his earlier position is made without explanation, except for the feeble and irrelevant argument that since organized labor has supported him it would be "unethical" for him to maintain his indorsement of an amendment which is opposed by organized labor. Under this definition of ethics, log-rolling of every kind would become admirable and the statesmanship of Hitler and Mussolini would be placed above reproach.

To most people it will seem distinctly unethical for a responsible administrator to oppose a change in regulatory legislation, which he has previously admitted to be administratively desirable, for no better reason than subservience to group pressure. It certainly savors of the unethical for a Government official to change his well-considered views at the urging of special interests. The fact that organized labor has "done such a swell job of fighting my battle for me" does not excuse Mr. Andrews' failure to press for reforms which he himself knows to be desirable from the public viewpoint.

Reward Of Merit

The appointment of William J. Patterson as a member of the Interstate Commerce Commission is welcome as a well-deserved case of promotion for a career man who has long occupied responsible positions in the Government service. His connection with the ICC dates from 1914, when he came to Washington as a safety appliance inspector. Later Mr. Patterson was appointed to the post of assistant director of the Bureau of Safety, and five years ago he became director of that bureau.

As a former railway employe Mr. Patterson is especially acceptable to the railway brotherhoods, who want a representative of labor on the ICC. That body of course has no responsibility for wages and working conditions on the roads. Nor does it administer the statutes having to do with labor controversies. Furthermore the value of the ICC as a supposedly impartial regulatory agency would be seriously impaired if its members were selected as spokesmen for any particular group—whether labor or management.

Hence Mr. Patterson's affiliations with railway labor organizations, and his first-hand knowledge of labor problems, are important in this appointment only insofar as they add to his knowledge and usefulness as an administrator. The chief reason for congratulating the President on this nomination is because Mr. Patterson's advancement follows meritorious service of a kind that should qualify him for efficient discharge of his important duties as an Interstate Commerce Commissioner.

Timid Tenor

Somehow, we are unable to work up much sympathy with the objections that Mr. Frederick Jagel has been raising to "The Star-Spangled Banner."

He complains, for one thing, that it is too low for high voices and too high for low voices, which is somehow suggestive of the girl in the old vaudeville joke who was "too light for heavy work and too heavy for light work." And it is also reminiscent of vaudeville, particularly the publicity side thereof, to hear reports that Mr. Jagel is contesting the legality of the act of Congress of 1931, whereby "The Star-Spangled Banner" became the national anthem of these United States. He appears to consider that act a clear violation of the Bill of Rights, since it constitutes a cruel and unusual punishment upon singers.

It seems rather odd for a grown-up professional singer like Mr. Jagel to be conplaining about the rigors of a tune that millions of school children carry every morning. Offhand, we should have supposed "The Star-Spangled Banner" to be just the kind of song a robust tenor would delight in, much as coloraturas delight in such calesthenics as "The Magic Flute" or "Caro Nome," and as even amateur bassos delight in the bottomless profundos of "Loudly the Bell in the Old Tower Rang." We hate to say it, but Mr. Jagel's point seems the least bit sissified.

As much could be said of another of Mr. Jagel's objections to "The Star-Spangled Banner." He calls it "a bar-room melody," and probably means that the air was borrowed from an eighteenth century bacchic choral: "To Anacreon in Heav'n." Are we then to suppose that a sober modern tenor admits himself no match for one five-bottle Hogarthian quartet?

Still another of Mr. Jagel's complaints is that the words written to this tune by Francis Scott Key are "unpoetical." Here, at least, we might feel inclined to agree. But since, as shown recently in a poll by the American Institute of Public Opinion, hardly anybody is able to remember the words, it is difficult to see why they make much difference.

An Italian seer says the world will come to an end on October 13 of this year. But we've been disappointed so many times about this.

The world is a pretty tough place in which to live, but perhaps it beats having no place at all to live in.

The average person believes wholeheartedly in a majority rule only when he is a part of the majority.

Our Own Interests

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your paper has shown the truth in these puzzling days, when a small group of people led by a few blind Senators block the will of the American people for fair play. Therefore you may be interested in extracts from a document which came to me from a pacifist missionary in China this morning.

Speaking of Japan, he says, "China is to be completely her slave. To do this she has killed a million Chinese youth, created some 30,000,000 refugees, bombed and burnt thousands of civilians, shot tens of thousands of prisoners. Torture and mass terror are Japan's methods, Cremating China alive is her threat."

"Why should we stand by and see China tortured, murdered and enslaved, and at the same time lose our own just interests as well? Defending our just interests coincides with justice for China and without justice peace can never come. The sin of the West against China is not our trade interests in China, but our iron and oil interests in Japan. Justice and future peace demand that we sacrifice these profits, which are paid for by Chinese blood."

With hundreds of your readers I hope that your splendid paper will continue to show the light, so that our country may be stopped from longer being the partner of the cruelest efficient gangsterism that the world has yet seen.

Slum Dwellers

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The phrase "slums in the shadow of the Capitol" has been spread throughout the Nation by visitors to the Nation's Capital, who are repeatedly struck by the extreme contrast between the palatial Government buildings, the beauty of our city, and the terrible, indescribable slums.

While realizing that the replacement of these slums by new dwellings would be the most fundamental solution, we also must recognize that it would take a considerable period to accomplish this aim. In the meantime the situation could be alleviated considerably by establishing such minimum regulations as would require the installation of running water, inside toilets, etc., and thus safeguard, to an extent, the health and safety of the slum dwellers. Women's Employment

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Concerning a letter in your paper of recent date signed H. L. P., I wish to add my hearty approval of the sentiments expressed therein.

I, too, believe it high time for the powers that be to take notice of the deplorable unemployment conditions.

To my view, the women's associations espousing the employment of married couples merely represent their own individual opinions, and not those of the women at large.

A prominent woman recently stated wives are working through necessity. That may be true in isolated cases; but it is also common knowledge that husbands in Government positions frequently draw $3,000 per annum, and in the same or an other department the wife is drawing $1,800 or more. Does that come under sheer ncessity? H. E. T.

Jubilation in Berlin

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Senator Borah and those other Senators who share his views on repeal of the arms embargo may have noted the reaction in Germany, especially to their successful effort to block revision of that section of the neutrality law. In France it was called a sad blow to the prospects for peace, and the British were greatly disappointed. In Berlin there was undisguised jubilation. Hitler and his crew hailed the development as a defeat for the President and a weakening of his influence for peace. Hitler's personal organ renewed its vitriolic attack upon him, ascribing to his desire to give this Nation a free hand in helping to avert the war continually threatened by the axis nations only the most petty political motives.

It must be interesting reading for those who brought about such a situation. They are not consciously aiding and abetting the bullies of Europe, but that is the plain result of their work.

Something For Our Money

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your correspondent, Mr. Henry H. Douglas, voices what appears to be an almost universal opinion in calling for an embargo on all "war materials" to Japan. The materials that he considers vital to Japan's military program are presumably such things as raw cotton, oil, scrap iron, copper, etc., which are not "lethal weapons" but the things which nations under international law may declare contraband of war.

At the same time he advocates a Franco-British alliance with Soviet Russia, all of this to "aid enlightened, progressive China."

I must say the propagandists have done their work well in this country. Such men as Mr. Douglas—good, conscientious Americans who are all for making the world better—read the infamous Fanaka Memorial and believe that Japan is out to conquer the world. No one tells them that if Japan is defeated in China, Soviet Russia will step in; and how much trade do we have with 200,000,000 Russians today? About $40,000,000 a year. Why? Because there is no free trade in Russia and if Stalin is successful in China there will be no free trade with 400,000,000 Chinese either.

The Japanese are realists. They cannot be hoodwinked by a lot of silly emotionalism about "enlightened, progressive China" for they have had to deal with the terrible rabble that parades as a "republic." They have seen the effects of the impact of communism on this mob. It has been very close to Japan for many years. We have had a touch of it in Mexico, when Villa raided the border. Technically we did then just what Japan is doing now. We invaded Mexico because the Mexican government could no longer control its own nationals. And this was done by our own idealistic, "too proud to fight" Woodrow Wilson.

I am not a jingo nor a Fascist. I have no sympathy with hit and miss, but I am not a Communist either. I think we better not try to take sides in the Far Eastern mess until we know what we are fighting for and what we are fighting against.

Let us ditch the Messianic complex. We don't have to save the world! Let them fight each other to a frazzle if they wish and next time they're gasping for breath and want our help, let's get something for our help in advance, like trading Sumatra for a few boatloads of shells, or French Indo-China for a couple of battleships. Hobbs Bill

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As an American citizen, I have been accustomed to think of our Nation as one established on the tradition of freedom and justice for citizens and for prospective citizens.

Today that freedom is being jeopardized by a flood of anti-alien bills with provisions which savor of the totalitarian states, which we as Americans condemn.

One bill in particular, introduced by Representative Hobbs of Alabama, which passed the House and is now on the Senate calendar, provides that deportable aliens who (for any reason) do not leave the country within 90 days, shall be confined in concentration camps—ostensibly until they can get clearance to their country of origin, but actually, in some cases, forever. For how could a Cezecho-Slovak get a passport to his country of origin? And where is the justice in sending a Jew or Catholic back to Nazi Germany? The concentration camp, the symbol of intolerance, has no place in American life.

No American should tolerate the bullying or suppression of any minority. The Nazi domination of Germany today is founded exclusively on the bully principle. First, they have bullied the Communists, then women, then Jews, then Catholics, and tomorrow it will be another group.

At this time, in our own country, Nazi tactics have begun. The Hobbs bill is but one example of the witch hunt which is singling out the alien as its victim. Those who are willing to tolerate this bullying should cast a glance at the grim examples across the Atlantic. Today, our self styled "patriots" aim to protect themselves from the aliens; tomorrow they will snipe at the labor unions, or women workers, or farmers, or little businessmen. We must work to see that it, the bill, does not pass the Senate.

Private Investment

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Congratulations and thanks are due President Wendell L. Willkie, of Commonwealth & Southern Corporation, upon his courage, skill—and luck—in averting TVA confiscation of his company's Tennessee Basin utility properties.

It marks, I believe, "High tide at Gettysburg" for the New Dealers' Federal power program.

Mr. Willkie's service to the country and to free enterprise is comparable to that of Gen. Meade when the latter turned back Lee's invading army.

Future Federal administrations may further develop Government owned and operated electric service systems, may even finally take over the entire industry.

Mr. Willkie's spirited and successful defense of the privately owned properties entrusted to his management has made it fairly certain that, insofar as Government may hereafter take over the electric service industry, it will do so in line with the statement made to me in the last year of his life by the late great Robert Marion LaFollette:

"I have become convinced the electric service industry should be governmentally owned and operated. But I shall never consent to the confiscation of a single dollar of the legitimate private investment in the industry."

Change And Decay

LIKE A GOOD MANY Washingtonians, nearly every year I go back home. This year I went in June. June is a good month to go, when the strawberries are ripe.

"Well, how did you find things back in the old home town?" a friend inquired.

"About the same," I replied. "The place hasn't changed a bit in the last 20 years."

But I got to thinking about it later, and I knew I lied. Mine was the easy and common reply, but it wasn't true. In fact, was there anything that had not changed?

There was our neighbor with whom we used to exchange work during haying and harvesting. His boys had all left home, and he had lost his wife. Things weren't the same with him, and he seemed like a different person. He was having a hard time of it.

One evening while I was home I went up to the high school for our alumni reunion. Hardly any of the "old gang" was there. All the teachers I knew were gone except one, and this was her last year of teaching. Even the schoolhouse was new and awakened no old memories. The boys were now playing baseball where the old schoolhouse had stood. I looked for an oak tree that our class had planted but could not find it.

Downtown, on the corner as you go up Cemetery Hill, is Dan Barnard's house. Dan was something of an eccentric who kept a hardware store that bordered on the nature of a museum. He was one of the richest men in town, as riches went there. Now he is dead, and his big house is falling apart. Across the street is a new row of squat shops where once had stood a "big" three or four-story building that contained the "op'ry house." It burned two years ago.

I asked about the blacksmith and learned that he had been forced to put his shop on wheels and go around the countryside looking for work to do. His business is fast dwindling; it will not come to him any more on all fours; he has to go after it. The spreading chestnut tree has been killed by blight, and the smithy stands now in Henry Ford's Greenfield Village.

And how about the industries—the basket factory, the mill, the cheese factory? Just about all gone, I was told—all except the canning factory, and "that ain't what it once was. They won't pay hardly enough for the cherries and berries to pay for the picking."

Six of us one day took a hike to the Devil's Wash Bowl, which used to be a sort of show place of our community. You can tell that people don't go there much now, for there are no fresh-cut initials on the beech trees. We followed the creek up from the road and on under the railroad trestle. There, under the wooden beams, was the phoebe's nest, just as it used to be. And then on up the rocky gorge, overhung with hemlocks, beeches and maples. Ferns and moss lined the banks, where flood waters had not gouged them, leaving pendent dripping roots in midair. In the creek bottom was the soft shale rock, in some places so square-cut that one wondered whether it had not once been quarried there. Everything seemed just as we remembered it. The vireos still sang, and the wintergreen bank was still there at the top of the ridge.

We climbed the first of the two waterfalls expectantly, and then the second, the higher and steeper one. The cliff was formed of layer upon layer of the slippery, mossy shale, just enough projecting to furnish rather precarious stairs. Only a few feet beyond the top would be the object of the steep ascent—the Devil's Wash Bowl, a large rock with a natural basin hollowed out in it, and near it in the same rock another hollow in the form of an oversize human foot, which we called the Devil's Footprint.

But this time the rock was gone, and it was a sad moment when we realized that there was no more Devil's Wash Bowl and that no one ever again would see this little natural wonder. The whole rock, in last spring's torrent, had been washed from its ancient moorings and swept over the cascade and broken to pieces in a heap below. A few days later we visited Niagara Falls and saw how there, too, time is crumbling the rocks and gradually changing the face of this great cataract, but of the two geologic tragedies the passing of the Devil's Wash Bowl was to us the more serious.

Nibbling our sprigs of wintergreen, we waded back down the ravine and went back to town. We knew well enough that the town had changed, as all towns do, but we had dared to hope that the natural earth itself—the rocks and rills and woods and hills—would defy the years and remain undisturbed and solid.

Such are the disillusionments that come to those who go back to the old home town. They are disillusionments that come gradually, increasing until one truth eclipses all powers of nostalgia, remembrance, sentiment and hope. That truth is that nothing is unchangeable, nothing whatsoever.

Perhaps next time the wintergreen bank, the wild strawberries and the phoebe's nest will be gone. More likely the changes will be something unexpected, unthought of. But nonetheless they will come, and we shall see "that there hath passed away a glory from the earth," with nothing quite good enough to take its place. PAUL H. OEHSER.

Terse Suggestion

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: After careful and repeated observation at the intersections of streets, I notice that the majority of pedestrians still watch the autos and not the lights. When the way seems clear they scoot across the street, with furtive glances each way.

I am sure that if a sign reading "Watch the lights—not the autos," was conspicuously displayed, many thoughtless persons would heed this terse and greatly needed suggestion.

Fair Enough

Some Facts Of Life

THERE IS A GOOD deal of what might be called honest, sincere hypocrisy in the belief that this country should slap an impartial embargo on war materials in the event of war in Europe.

The truth is that Germany and Italy are enemies of this country, not particularly as the United States, although they do hate us by name, but as a non-Fascist, non-axis nation. They have declared their contempt and hatred for all countries outside the axis and their intention to expand by intimidation and, when intimidation fails by war, at the expense of those nations, except Russia. They are mysterious about Russia.

It is futile to attempt to believe that they have made an exception of the United States. They have repeatedly affirmed their conviction that they are chosen peoples, destined to rule the earth and dominate, enslave or exterminate the weaklings. We are included among the weaklings because we are a democracy and as such have no right to exist, except in a subdued condition, subject to their discipline, and for their purposes. Czecho-Slovakia was a weakling.

'Historic Wrongs' Also On This Side

IT IS IN the cards that when the ruin of the Civil War has been tidied up and the trains have been made to run on time, Fascist axis Spain will begin to fling at this country her equivalent of the Italian cry of "Tunisia! Corsica! Savoy!" For there are in this hemisphere several tempting equivalents of Tunisia, Corsica and Savoy. And an axis which had disposed of Great Britain and France, thanks in part to this country's boycott in a time of military need, would support Generalissimo Franco or his successor in a noble ambition to "right historic wrongs" on this side of the world and restore to Spain her former possessions and power in the Americas. Precisely the same formula that has been followed by Germany and Italy would be followed by Spain.

But with Spain still combing brick dust and mortar out of her hair and heretics out of her cellars it is a little difficult for Americans to picture a situation in which that nation would be actually and formidably truculent toward the United States. The more immediate threat has been uttered by Germany and Italy, and we are included only by inference, but very plain inference.

U. S. Is Number 3 On List Of Enemies

DOMINATION of the world by the chosen, self-acknowledged superior peoples of Germany and Italy is the proclaimed purpose of the axis. And if they are not stopped by Great Britain and France or deterred from causing war by the knowledge that the United States would help Britain and France by measures "short of war" this country's turn must come to fight them alone. These are unfortunate, unpleasant facts, but they can be read in a thousand books and state speeches by Hitler and Mussolini and their subordinates and in their relations with other countries. They mean business, and the facts of life cannot be changed by wishing.

It is naive to search for reasons why Americans should like or hate the British and French, the Germans and Italians. It is a plain, simple question of "who is the enemy?" Britain and France obviously are not, but Germany and Italy just as plainly are. The question of democracy may be ignored, because this country would fight even a democracy if some democracy were to threaten us. The United States just happens to find itself on the Hitler-Mussolini list of enemies, after Great Britain and France. Russia, incidentally, isn't on the list at all and neither is bolshevism. Bolshevism was just a stall. They could make a deal with Russia any day without the slightest embarrassment or sacrifice of principle on either side because they are all the same kind.

Britain, France Our Stand-Betweens

IT IS MY contention that the United States should offer to sell not only non-military goods but arms, explosives, anything at all impartially to belligerents in this war, if any, knowing that the Germans and Italians couldn't come and get them and that the British and French could, because the British and French would use them to this country's advantage.

Many Americans who sincerely vow that they would acknowledge no enemy until he invaded American soil forget that France was invaded last time and that in Germany not a divot was taken in four years of brawling. If Britain and France fight this war using our tools and lick the chosen peoples who have notified the world that the United States is third on their list, we get a bargain even though they should default their debts again.

D. C. Flier Fails In Record Attempt

Baltimore, July 21 (AP).—Charles Gilfillan, of Philadelphia, and Iwan Bowman, of Washington, aviators attempting to set a world endurance record for light planes, were forced down today after 15 hours aloft.

The grappling device used to haul gasoline aboard their light plane fouled in the tail assembly, forcing the ship to ground, where a landing wheel was crumpled. The fliers said they would renew their assault on the 218-hour record tomorrow or Sunday.

British Ocean Plane, To Carry 150, Tested

Lea Rail Bill Called A 'Sell-Out'

Debate to Run Into Next Week; Passage This Session Doubted

By the Associated Press

A LONG-AWAITED battle over legislation designed to provide uniform regulation for rail, motor and waterway transportation started on the House floor yesterday and threatened to add several days to the waning session of Congress.

Militant opponents of a provision which would place certain water carriers under jurisdiction of the Interstate Commerce Commission signified their intention of talking against the proposal as long as possible. Indications were a final vote would not be reached until Monday or Tuesday despite the leadership's decision to hold the House in session today.

Representative Warren (Democrat), of North Carolina, leader of a ten-member steering committee opposing the waterways section, opened the offensive with a declaration that the bill represented "an outrageous sell-out" of the Nation's producers and consumers. Its sole purpose he declared, was to lift water transportation rates to a practical parity with rail charges.

Boost in Waterway Rates Held Certain

MEMBERS FROM widely scattered sections echoed Warren's charges that the bill inevitably would boost the cost of waterway transportation and contended it was designed primarily to help the railroads.

Chairman Lea (Democrat), of the House Interstate Commerce Committee, which drafted the bill, replied that it was intended to provide the same type of regulation for water carriers as is now imposed on railroads and trucks.

Asserting that President Roosevelt supported the measure, Lea told the House the bill would provide a "rounded-out" system of regulations for all forms of transportation except aircraft, already regulated by the Civil Aeronautics Authority.

"What the transportation agencies of this country need is an umpire," Lea said, "and that's what this bill would give them."

The Senate already has enacted a widely different bill, a fact which impelled many members to express doubt the legislation would reach the White House this session.

Roosevelt Assures Labor He's for It

HYDE PARK, N. Y., July 21 (AP).—Representatives of railway labor and management have been informed that President Roosevelt wants House action on a bill for regulation of railway, water and highway transportation.

The President said at a Press conference today he had so advised E. E. Norris, president of the Southern, and B. M. Jewel, head of the Railway Employes Department of the A. F. L., at a White House conference in Washington yesterday. Norris and Jewel are members of a "committee of six" which drafted, for the President, recommendations for aiding the railways.

Mr. Roosevelt said he did that on two grounds:

That a year ago, he thought something ought to be done and he recommended that Congress act. Congress has been in session 6½ months and has done nothing to help the railroads.

Action would be absolutely in line with what he had been advocating for years—getting all forms of transportation coordinated so that wholly separate Government agencies would not be running transportation policies.

Nazis Intimate Danzig Solution

in a propaganda machine. • • • Berlin refuses to admit that it knows privately that Poland is determined and that Poland is solidly united with the western powers."

Polish circles expressed surprise that the Berlin declaration should have come immediately after the departure from Warsaw of British Maj.-Gen. Sir Edmund Ironside after four days of conference on coordination of British and Polish military strength in time of emergency.

Sir Edmund, inspector general of British overseas forces, returned to London by air. There had been a feeling in Warsaw that his visit was a gesture of British-Polish cooperation that Berlin could not ignore.

London Response

The declaration met a cool response in London.

A government spokesman said Britain had made it clear that any decision affecting the status of Danzig rested with Poland and that there had been no change in this policy.

"Rather than plunge all Europe into war," the German spokesman said, "some power will brutally call Polish Chauvinists to order and tell them Danzig is not worth a world war."

His reference to "some power" was taken as an obvious allusion to Britain which, along with France, has given a pledge of aid to Poland.

"As for ourselves," he went on, "we have not the slightest desire to provoke a crisis."

"It is obvious, however, that the present state of things cannot go on indefinitely. The solution must come not in years, but in months and possibly weeks."

In emphasizing Germany's pacific attitude, the spokesman said:

"Our Fuehrer is 100 per cent for peace. . . . Germany has not the least desire for a conflict of arms to bring about the uncompromising solution which we confidently expect. We reject 100 per cent such a warlike solution and would regret extremely if that were the only way."

He conceded that the European air was "heavily laden with crisis possibilities."

"But, in the German opinion, Poland never would have gotten into what the spokesman called her present state of patriotic and uncompromising fervor if Britain had not stiffened her back.

Hints Offer to Poland

"The minute Britain ceases to support Polish claims to Danzig, official Germany is convinced, Poland will deem it wise to come to amicable terms with her powerful neighbor.

"A solution is quite possible—and by that I mean a peaceful solution," the spokesman insisted.

"No British or French statesman has ever denied that Danzig is German. So long, however, as it is not a part of the Reich it is a source of constant friction between the two neighbors.

"Isn't it a reasonable thing to rejoin Danzig to the Reich and compensate Poland by making favorable neighborly arrangements of various kinds? The possibilities along that line are numerous."

As examples he cited mutual guarantees of boundaries, trade amelioration and improvement in general relations.

Sure of British Mediation

Pressed to reduce the German demand for a peaceful solution to a simple formula, the spokesman said: "Danzig is German and belongs unconditionally to Germany."

Then he predicted that Britain, as a country of realism, would press Poland to recognize Germany's demands.

So certain is Germany of ultimate British mediation, he indicated, that plans are going full speed for making the Nazi Party convention September 2-11 in Nuernberg truly "the party of peace" as it was designated by Hitler months ago.

It was pointed out to him that certain military preparations are being made in Germany which could not be explained in any other way, but he said. "Whatever military measures we have taken or may take are not threats but purely defensive preparations. We cannot overlook the possibility of a nonpeaceful solution, despite our wishes and intentions for 100 per cent peaceful settlement. We are maintaining our demands uncompromisingly for the unconditional return of Danzig to the Reich."

So strong was the spokesman's emphasis on Britain as the power which would convert the Poles to the German point of view that many of his listeners suspected that negotiations between London and Berchtesgaden already were underway secretdly.

Poles Keep Public Calm

One responsible Polish spokesman said of the Berlin declaration:

"This is one more example of the way Germany clings to certain illusions, not least to a faith in a propaganda machine. In spite of the repeated declarations of Chamberlain and Halifax (British Prime Minister and Foreign Secretary) and statements of Polish leaders, Berlin refuses to admit what it knows privately, that Poland is determined and that Poland is solidly united with the Western powers.

"To say that Poland is unyielding because of British backing is to ignore the public acknowledgement of Chamberlain that Poland made her decision (to stand against German demands for Danzig) before she received any guarantee from Britain."

Concern Not Lessened

Meanwhile, the flower of Great Britain's territorial army (equivalent of the National Guard in the United States) continued preparations to bring over the week-end the most intensive period of field training this fighting arm has experienced in peace time.

Concern over German intentions in the near future was not lessened by the official announcement in Berlin that Field Marshal Gen. Herman Wilhelm Goering, Nazi air chief, had chosen the Dutch frontier and the North Sea as the scene of this summer's air maneuvers. In their present preparedness efforts, the British authorities are centering special attention on defenses against a "Blitzkrieg," which would feature, by surprise, raids of German bombers over British territory.

Instead of the usual two-week summer encampment, the territorial detachments are being called up this summer in rotation for a full month each. The government desires to have as many men as possible under arms when it is thought the next crisis may occur. Obviously, too, the longer period of training will help to whip the territorials into more efficient fighting units.

Soviet-Reich Talks Resumed

Moscow, July 21 (INS).—The Soviet government announced tonight that Russia and Germany have resumed negotiations for a trade and credit agreement.

The talks are being held in Berlin, it was stated by the official Soviet news agency.

Announcement of the resumption of Soviet-German bargaining at this particular time evoked belief that negotiations for an Anglo-French-Russian military entente against further aggression are lagging and may be near a possible breakdown.

Some of Moscow's foreign diplomatic observers held that the Soviet announcement, hinting at closer economic relationship with the Reich, might have been given out principally for the purpose of gaining added concessions from Britain and France in the entente negotiations which have been in progress for three and a half months and now apparently are deadlocked.

Danziger Seized In Polish Territory

Free City of Danzig, July 21 (AP).—Polish spokesmen here announced tonight that a Danzig customs officer was captured today as he "invaded" Polish territory along the western border of the free city.

Poles asserted this otherwise trivial incident assumed importance because it established their contention that Danzig border authorities frequently cross the frontier on mysterious missions.

It was significant, Polish spokesmen added, that the new incident followed so closely on the shooting of a Polish frontier soldier by a Danzig officer who, they alleged, had stepped across the line.

Carnegie Official Back From Europe

Dr. James Brown Scott, director of the Division of International Law, Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, returned to Washington from Europe last night with the statement that "it is clear that the people do not want war."

His principal objective abroad was to attend the thirtieth annual meeting in Paris of France-Amerique, presided over by Marshal Petain. Dr. Scott, who was accompanied by his wife, also visited The Hague. They live at 1201 Nineteenth street northwest.

An Ancient Principle

By Mark Sullivan

The Right to Appeal

EVERY WRITER of news from Washington faces each day a bedevilling difficulty. This difficulty is illustrated by a measure now before Congress, the Logan bill, and the effort of the New Deal to defeat it.

The constant, daily difficulty is to make clear to the reader the issues that arise here. The facts are intricate. The principles are even more intricate. For some of the New Deal (though by no means all) involves an attempt to overturn, or quietly get away from, some of the oldest principles of government and law. Much of what goes on in Washington is a conflict between old principles of society, and principles that have been introduced to the present generation very recently. The main acquaintance of the public with the new principles, so-called, is in the use of them in the new authoritarian governments of Europe.

To the public, the new principles are not understood because they are new. The old principles are not understood just because they are old.

These old principles have been so long taken for granted that we do not think about them. We no more analyze them than we analyze the air we breathe. But it is imperative that we learn these ancient principles anew, and, one hopes, cherish them anew, defend them anew.

THE OLD PRINCIPLE involved in today's story is so much a part of American life and law that it has crystallized into familiar sayings. One such saying was quoted by Supreme Court Justice Felix Frankfurter in an address some two years ago. Speaking of the rights of the citizen, he said: "Historic experience lies behind the right to a day in court—and a full day."

Another saying, expressing the same ancient principle, was quoted the other day by Senator Logan, of Kentucky, defending his bill to preserve the principle: "The sole issue presented to Congress is whether we shall have a Government by men or a Government by law. There are persons connected with the present Administration who believe it ought to be a Government by men—and so they are very rabidly opposed to this bill."

The principle, as it lies vaguely in the mind of the average citizen, is that no official of Government shall have power to lay hands on the citizen's person or property, without the citizen having the right to appeal to a court. The court must be an impartial court—a court before which the citizen and the official stand equal—a court not beholden to Government, but only to law—a court which holds the scales even between the citizen and the Government official.

This principle, much of the New Deal wishes to overturn.

AS I MAKE that statement, another of our daily difficulties arises—the difficulty of being fair and exact, within the limitation of newspaper space. To be fair, one ought add that the weakening of this old principle did not wholly begin with the New Deal. It had been under way, in a slight degree, as a tendency, for many years. But it remained for the New Deal to make the attempt in a wholesale, organized, deliberate way.

Overturn of this old principle is practically indispensable to the New Deal. For an essential element of much of the New Deal is to control the citizen and his affairs so minutely and constantly, that appeal by the citizen to the courts is simply impracticable. When Triple-A tells a farmer how much of a crop he may plant, it is hardly practicable for the farmer to appeal to courts. Planting seasons will not wait; the sun will not stand still. The ultimate objective of Triple-A is to control all the farms of the country as if the whole of them were one immense farm operated by one super farmer. And the daily decisions of a superfarmer cannot practicably be appealed to courts.

In measure after measure of the New Deal, provision has been made to limit the right of appeal to courts. The habitual attitude of New Deal officials, especially minor ones, is hostility to courts, insistence upon "you go to" toward the citizen.

THIS ATTITUDE is strong in the National Labor Relations Board. Here, again, is difficulty. There is not space to give example and proof, to describe the actual actions of the Labor Board and its agents which illustrate the condition.

To check the invasion of the citizen's right to his day in court, Senator Logan, with Congressman Walter, of Pennsylvania, both Democrats, wrote a bill. The purpose of it is in the following words:

"The establishment . . . of . . . judicial review of all administrative rules and all administrative decisions and orders . . . issued by or rendered by . . . administrative agencies of the Federal Government."

In the Senate the bill was passed by unanimous consent. Just now New Deal Senator Minton, of Indiana, is trying to get the Senate to reconsider—which probably the Senate will not. But the the New Deal may beat the bill in the House, where it is on the calendar for next week.

At this point is yet another of a writer's difficulties. For the reader's understanding, the bill ought to be analyzed. But it contains some 4,000 words. Yet I cannot leave the reader with the impression that the bill, in its present form, is perfect. I have talked over the bill with a New Dealer of reasonable mind, and have been told by him that one part of the bill goes too far and would unreasonably and unnecessarily impede Government administration. But the bill in some form, is imperatively needed.

Japan's Scapegoat

By Barnet Nover

Tokyo Blames The British

NOT LONG AGO Tokyo reported that Russian planes had flown over the Manchukuoan border and bombarded a couple of towns deep in the interior of that Japanese-protected state.

In the language of another day, this was clearly an act of war. Yet, paradoxically, the Japanese took it very calmly. There were no demonstrations before the Soviet Embassy in Tokyo; no demands for the severance of relations with the Soviet Union; no clamor for reprisals against Siberian towns.

Instead, the Japanese government and army sat tight and did nothing. Within the framework of a chronic hostility, Russo-Japanese relations have apparently achieved a certain norm in which no undue offense is taken at acts of war if these are kept within "reasonable" bounds.

DURING THE FIRST year of the undeclared Sino-Japanese war, Germany supplied China with no less than 60 per cent of its arms and munitions. The free exchange which the Nazi regime could get from China by way of payment and which the Third Reich desperately needed outweighed the fact that Japan was linked with Germany by way of the anti-Comintern pact.

Later, under pressure from Japan, Germany cut off her sales of war supplies to China. But during recent months these sales have been resumed and it is estimated that at the present time about half of all the arms, munitions and implements of war which are reaching Chiang Kai-shek's army are from German sources.

Yet, officially, Japan and Germany are the best of friends and powerful elements in the Japanese army are pressing for the conclusion of an offensive and defensive alliance with the Third Reich.

No country has addressed to Japan sharper notes than has the United States. They have poured in an almost unceasing stream out of Washington, each more vigorous and denunciatory than the last.

Have these notes made any impression on the Japanese? Not the slightest. It is doubtful if any foreign land is viewed in Japan with greater friendliness than is the United States. This Nation is regarded by the Japanese people almost as an ally which, in effect, we are, since without the scrap iron and oil and other essentials we have sold the island empire, Japan might not have been able to wage the undeclared war.

INDEED, the Japanese people have through persistent propaganda been taught to believe that Japan has only one enemy and that enemy is not Russia, nor the United States, nor even China which is viewed merely as a nation to be pitied because its leaders fail to recognize the advantages of "co-operating" with Nippon. That enemy is Great Britain.

Against no other nation is feeling in Japan so bitter. Within a few days two gigantic demonstrations have been held before the British Embassy in Tokyo. And it was more than happenstance that while, during the blockade of Tientsin, other foreigners were relatively unmolested the Japanese guards took particular delight in subjecting English men and women to the greatest humiliations.

HOW EXPLAIN this violent Japanese animus against Great Britain?

For 20 years—from 1902 to 1922—Great Britain was Japan's ally, a circumstance which made it possible for Japan to fight Russia in 1904-'5 without fear of the kind of European intervention that had deprived her of the fruits of her victory over the Chinese Empire in 1895.

Had it not been for the very hesitant attitude of Great Britain in 1931-'32, it is unlikely that Japan's assault on Manchuria would have gone practically uncontested, as it was. And since the beginning of the present hostilities in China, Britain's position has been very decidedly defensive.

TO BE SURE, Great Britain has rendered the Chinese government important financial assistance, but no more, broadly speaking, than the United States has done. Japan has ignored the Export-Import Bank credit to China. She has also closed her eyes to the military assistance given Chiang Kai-shek by Moscow. The support of Chinese currency by the British treasury, however, has been played up in the Japanese press as a most unfriendly act.

Why? The answer is that Japan is desperately in need of a scapegoat. Two years of war have profited Japan nothing. She is no nearer victory than when she began, even though her outward gains are impressive.

THE JAPANESE militarists, upon whom rests the responsibility for the war and its conduct, cannot afford to be candid with the Japanese people. They cannot tell them how badly they miscalculated the extent and nature of Chinese resistance. They cannot admit that they were throwing dust in the eyes of their nation when they promised the war to be over in six weeks or at most three months.

They need a scapegoat, and they have found a most convenient one in Great Britain. She is, in Japan's eyes, the most vulnerable of great powers, the least capable of hitting back, and yet, at the same time, the one with the greatest stake in China of any Western power. So all of the bitterness of frustration which the Japanese feel is being directed against the British.

How far should the United States go in protecting American interests in China? You'll find America's answer to this important question in the Gallup Poll in tomorrow's Post.

D. C. Lunacy Bill To House Monday relieve the problem of congestion and the co-mingling of violent and quiet patients in the psychopathic ward.

Dr. George C. Ruhland, District Health Officer, appeared before the committee in behalf of the bill, while representatives of various welfare groups were in attendance at the meeting to urge that it not be permitted to wait over until the next session of Congress.

Taxicab Bill Dropped

Sox other bills were approved by the committee at its final meeting. Among them was one sponsored by Representative Nichols (Democrat), of Oklahoma, to permit motorists to drink beer in their cars.

Others would exempt the American Friends Service Committee from taxation, add reckless driving violations for which compulsory liability insurance is mandatory, allow the District to purchase additional parking meters, exempt group hospitalization from taxation and amend the real estate law so as to include persons engaged in "business chance" ventures.

Rather than face "certain defeat again" on the floor, the committee voted to let the controversial taxicab limitation bill and the bill to amend the optometry law remain over until next session.

Hatch Bill Sent To President

district attorneys, customs and tax collectors and postmasters—would all be forbidden to take their time-honored part in political primaries, conventions and election campaigns.

This provision of the law was retained in the House bill after a desperate fight by organization Democrats, including top members of the Judiciary Committee, to eliminate it. Many State machines, peopled with Federal patronage employes, are threatened with collapse because of the new legislation.

Hatch announced to the Senate that he was "advised there is now a move on foot to assemble Senators and to pledge them to vote to send this bill to conference" in order to cut out the heart of the bill.

Urges Forthright Stand

"If the Senate says, 'We did not mean what we said,' then let the bill go to conference and let it die." Hatch challenged. "But," he added, "I would much prefer that if Senators do not believe in this philosophy they stand forthright on the floor of the Senate of the United States and say, 'I do not believe in it; it is wrong; it ought to be killed and I am going to kill it.' If it is to die, let it die an honorable death."

Standing beside Hatch, Senator Clark (Democrat), of Missouri, often mentioned in the Presidential candidacy lists, declared that the Senate and House bills "are bills with teeth in them to prevent the use of Federal patronage for political purposes in this country."

Following Minton's speech, the Vice President banged his gavel and announced that the bill had passed.

Police Refuse To Talk in Quiz

tioned about cases that have been tried by a Police Court judge who is under investigation, but just as many say that the questions put to them had nothing to do with this judge.

Most of those summoned believe that the G-men don't know exactly what it is they are after; that they are on a "fishing expedition."

One police official was asked about his real estate holdings. He also was asked whether his wife worked in the Government, and whether he was assigned to a particular precinct when the Warring gang was getting started.

There never has been any great love between members of the Police Department and J. Edgar Hoover's G-men. The current investigation, however, has brought about a situation where members of the local force are outspoken in their dislike of the Federal agents.

Murphy Is Silent

Their argument is this: If the Federal men have "something on" members of the local force, why don't they go to Police Headquarters, lay their cards on the table, and ask high police officials to cooperate with them? Is it, they ask, that those in charge of the local department can't be trusted? And why, they ask further, this business of trotting up to the Department of Justice Building, there to be questioned by young lawyer-sleuths, some of whom are young enough to be the sons of those called on the carpet?

That is their side of it. The other side could best be told by Attorney General Frank Murphy. Thus far he has chosen to tell only part of it, meanwhile asking interviewers to be patient until the investigation is over.

Promotions Held Up

The investigation of a judge of the Police Court, the Department of Justice says, is a serious matter, but it indicates that only "one or two" policemen are likely to be found untrustworthy.

The first policeman to be called to the Department of Justice several weeks ago—about 70—were summoned directly from their homes by Federal agents. Those summoned in the last two days, however, were directed to go there by their superior officers after a list of names had been forwarded to headquarters by the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Only one summoned thus far is on the list of 14 who have been recommended for promotion, but whose promotions are being held up because of the investigation.

Senate Favors U.S. Jobs For Self-Made Lawyers

The Senate approved yesterday a bill which would permit "self-made" lawyers to hold Government jobs.

Senator Sheppard (Democrat), of Texas, said some departments now required attorneys to be graduates of schools which are members of the Association of American Law Schools, or to be approved by the American Bar Association.

Bill And Adolf Talk

Wilhelm—Don't tell me, Adolf, you're really going ahead with plans for war?

Adolf—How can I help it? I'm being encircled.

Wilhelm—Still using that one, eh?

Adolf (sternly)—You keep out of this!

Wilhelm—I wish I had obeyed that sort of advice 25 years ago.

Adolf—We have a new Germany, a mighty Germany, an unconquerable Germany.

Welhelm—Yes, yes, I remember all that.

Adolf—We cannot be beaten. We are invincible.

Wilhelm (staring at the woodpile)—I guess there will be enough left?

Adolf—Bah! You're living in the past.

Wilhelm—On the contrary, I'm trying to forget it.

Adolf—Just because you lost a war you think I'll lose.

Wilhelm—I admit it is hard to overlook the records.

Adolf—You should have taken Paris in six weeks.

Wilhelm—That's what I thought!

Adolf—Why, you should have won the war in six months if your generals hadn't blundered.

Wilhelm—I take it you are using anti-blunder generals exclusively.

Adolf — If there are any blunders this time I'll make 'em.

Wilhelm—Stop boasting!

Adolf—You're a pessimist.

Wilhelm—Yes, and I've trained for it until I'm in the pink. Say, what do you want war for? Germany has got her strength back, her people are happy; she's recaptured her self-respect. Why war?

Adolf—Germany must have room to expand. What are you laughing at?

Wilhelm—I didn't think anybody would revive that one.

Adolf—We have got to show the entire world we cannot be shoved around.

Wilhelm—I see you're still taking in plenty of territory.

Adolf—England and France must be put in their place.

Wilhelm—It's a good trick. . . if you do it.

Adolf—Do you doubt Germany can do it?

Wilhelm—Listen, after what I went through you can't expect me to give a testimonial that it's easy!

Adolf (hopelessly)—Ach du lieber! You forget I have the axis. You never had an axis, did you?

Wilhelm (with another look at the woodpile)—I've had 'em for the last 21 years, only I spell 'em with an "e."

Chandler, Murphy To Discuss Harlan

Frankfort, Ky., July 21 (AP).—Gov. A. B. Chandler said today he would confer with Attorney General Murphy in Washington Monday about "arranging a peaceful settlement of all Federal and State prosecutions" arising from strife in the Harlan County coal fields.

Chandler said the proposed trip was in response to Murphy's invitation of Wednesday to meet him "to discuss how our joint efforts may now be co-ordinated in accomplishing . . . a durable and lasting peace" in the area.

Garner Stresses His Clerical Lack

Vice President Garner gaveled through the Senate yesterday a bill to provide additional congressional clerks after he had noted:

"Every member of the House and every member of the Senate had his clerk hire increased except the Vice President and he was left off by his own consent."

Miss Marion Nulsen Becomes Bride Of Ensign Elliott in Ft. Myer Chapel

Reception Held at Army and Navy Country Club After Wedding; Couple to Live in San Pedro, Calif., Base of His Ship

DECKED WITH A profusion of white blooms, Fort Myer Chapel yesterday afternoon was the scene of the marriage of Miss Marion Georgette Nulsen and Ensign J. Duncan Elliott, jr. Both are descendants of families long identified with the service.

The bride is the daughter of Col. and Mrs. Charles Kilbourne Nulsen, who, although stationed at Charleston, Va., have been in Washington for the last two weeks for the attendant festivities. Ensign Elliott is the son of Col. and Mrs. J. Duncan Elliott and a great-great-grandson of Commander Jesse Duncan Elliott.

The ceremony took place at 4:30 with the chaplain of Fort Myer, Col. Walter Zimmerman, officiating. Palms and ferns as well as white flowers decorated the chapel and a further adornment was an altar cross—a family heirloom.

It was an all white wedding, with the bridesmaids in bouffant organdy and the officers in their crisp "whites."

Mrs. Charles Hines Is Matron of Honor

The bride who was given in marriage by her father, wore a white net frock with short puffed sleeves and high round neckline. The panel of rose point lace down the front had been worn by the bride's mother at her wedding. The filmy frock ended in a long train. Her tulle veil worn over rose point applique, was held in place by a small wired bow of lace. She carried a round bouquet of lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Charles Hines was matron of honor. The bridesmaids were Miss Joan Boye, Miss Anne Page, and Miss Betsy Wyche. They were all gowned in white organdy frocks made with square necklines and short puffed sleeves. Bands of embroidered organdy decked their voluminous skirts. Their large natural leghorn hats were banded in bright French blue and they wore matching slippers. Their old fashioned bouquets were outlined in frills of paper lace.

Col. Elliott Serves as Best Man

Col. Elliott was best man for his son. Ushers were Ensign Clay Goodloe, Ensign Richard Colbert, Ensign Paul K. Taylor, Ensign C. A. Holmstrom, Ensign Joseph Dalton and Lieut. Charles Hines, U. S. A.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the Army and Navy Country Club. Mrs. Nulsen, who assisted the young couple in receiving, wore a gown of embroidered net in an ecru shade and a wide-brimmed Baku hat of brown.

When the young couple left for their honeymoon, the bride was wearing a beige gabardine suit with brown accessories. Ensign Elliott will take his bride to Bremerton, Wash., where his ship will be stationed for three months, and from there the two will go to San Pedro, Calif., the West Virginia's home base.

Judge Hears Arguments on Magistrate Act

Decision Reserved in Md. Test Case on Reform Law

By the Associated Press

Annapolis, July 21.—Legality of the law reforming the State magistrate system was tested today before Circuit Judge Ridgely P. Melvin, who reserved decision after arguments in three mandamus actions.

The test case, challenging one of the basic administration-backed statutes enacted in the last Legislature, grew from the refusal of George B. Woelfel, justice of the peace, to relinquish his post to James C. Woodward, trial magistrate named under the new law.

Woelfel contended the new law is unconstitutional, in that it reduces his salary during his term of office. Woelfel also argued the new magistrate holds office illegally, as the magistrates' reform law specifies magistrates shall be named by the Governor and confirmed by the Senate. The Senate adjourned before the "new law" magistrates were confirmed.

The State filed mandamus action to oust Woelfel and force him to turn over papers of his office to Woodward. Woelfel countered with mandamus actions asking that Anne Arundel County and the city of Annapolis, which share his salary, be forced to continue paying him.

The three suits were heard together by agreement. William C. Walsh, attorney general, and William L. Henderson, assistant attorney general, and Marvin I. Anderson, Anne Arundel State's attorney, appeared against Woelfel who argued his own case.

Walsh argued that even if the court held the attempt to reduce Woelful's statutory salary was illegal, the balance of the magistrate's law was valid.

Judge Melvin directed that the attorneys file supplemental briefs before he rules.

South Maryland Road Bids Asked

Baltimore, July 21 (AP).—The Maryland Roads Commission asked bids today, to be opened August 1, on two southern Maryland road improvement projects and one on the Eastern Shore. The projects are:

Asphalt paving on 4.8 miles of Solomons Island road south of Port Republic, in Calvert County.

Macadam paving .22 mile of Queens Chapel road, from Prospect avenue to Oakwood road, in Prince Georges County.

Asphalt shoulders on .62 mile of the Salisbury road relocation from College to Ohio avenue.

News Coastal Highway To Have Parking Strips

Ocean City, Md., July 21 (AP).—Heavy sand may force the Maryland Roads Commission to build paved parking areas beside the new coastal highway to the Delaware line.

Commission officials said the plan was under consideration and construction of the areas might begin when the road paving is completed this month. They explained the 20-foot road is wide enough for two lines of cars only if neither lane is blocked by parked cars. The sand beside the road is so deep that cars pulling off the paving may be unable to get out.

Press' Opportunities Greater, Maj. Bottom Tells Va. Editors

Energy, Higher Professional Skill Seen Needed to Realize Chances for Service; Fewer Papers, Larger Circulation Cited

By the Associated Press

Hot Springs, Va., July 21.—Maj. Raymond B. Bottom, of Newport News, president of the Virginia Press Association, told fellow Virginia publishers and editors at the opening of their annual convention today the press has "greater opportunities for useful service than ever have existed."

His address highlighted a day devoted largely to discussion of practical problems of newspaper editing.

Frank Kent, Washington correspondent, spoke tonight at a Virginia Associated Press members' banquet, at which members from Maryland, Pennsylvania and the District of Columbia were guests.

Kent took the place of Robert McLean, of the Philadelphia Bulletin, president of the Associated Press, who was unable to attend because of illness.

Circulation Greater

Major Bottom said the opportunities for the press of today existed, although "the newspaper stands today fewer in number, greater in circulation, lower in integrity," and "poorer in substance."

Energy, enterprise, initiative, diligence and higher professional skill, he asserted, were essential if the opportunities were to be realized.

"Calamity-howling brethren to the contrary notwithstanding," he said he believed the principles underlying press freedom and integrity were "still sound."

"I think" he said, "that those of our calling who are continually shouting wolf from public platforms are making people sick with having to listen."

Allen B. Sikes, Eastern manager of the Bureau of Advertising of the American Newspaper Publishers Association, presented this afternoon illustrated slides showing a scientific analysis, by Gallup Poll methods, of reader interest in news stories and advertisements in a Rochester, N. Y., daily.

Interest is Surveyed

He said advertisers showed a keen interest in findings on how readers responded to ads of various sizes, compositions and positions in the paper. This work is being done by the Advertising Research Foundation to provide 'research and sales ammunition" for sellers of newspaper advertising. The research is being continued on a broad basis with the findings to be made available at intervals to papers and advertisers.

Virginia WPA Rolls to Be Cut Another 13%

Will Be Additional To 20% Reduction This Month

By the Associated Press

Richmond, Va., July 21.—In addition to a 20 per cent cut in Virginia WPA employment in August, Administrator William A. Smith said today a further drop of 13 to 15 per cent "may be expected" for September.

"Due to greatly reduced appropriations for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1939," he said, "and in order to conform to specific requirements of the emergency relief appropriation act, immediate action must be taken looking toward a heavy reduction in WPA employment and the termination of the employment of those relief workers, excepting veterans, who have been employed continuously in the WPA program for a period of 18 months or more.

"It is estimated that total terminations due to continuous employment of 18 months or more will approximate 30 per cent of present WPA employment on a State-wide basis. These terminations should be made effective with least damage to the program and to individual projects and all must be completed not later than September 1, although it is realized that the operation of certain projects must necessarily be suspended."

Notice of the impending reductions was sent to all State sponsors. The August employment is to be reduced to 23,480, and the proposed September cut would bring the figure down another 3,000 to 3,600.

These terminations of employment, Smith said, were not furloughs but actual "separations" from employment.

E. W. Hudson Rites In Charlottesville

Baltimore, July 21.—Maryland factory activity this year rose to the second highest point in the last decade, Labor Commissioner John M. Pohlhaus reported today.

"The first half of 1939 is well above the same period in 1938 in both employment and pay rolls and is higher than any other similar period in the last decade except 1937," his June report said.

Employment in June was .1 per cent above May, compared to an average decrease of 1.3 per cent. Pay rolls were 3.2 per cent higher, compared to average drop of 1.1 per cent.

For the whole State, employment was 95.9 per cent of the 1929-31 average, a rise of 8.1 per cent above June of last year. The pay rolls mark of 110.4 per cent of the 1929-31 average were 23.9 per cent above last year. June was the seventh successive month in which the averages were above the comparable month of the year before.

Average weekly factory earnings were 55.5 cents per hour and the average number of hours worked per week was 38.7.

"The only unusual change in nonmanufacturing industries," Pohlhaus said, "was the large increase in employment and pay rolls in coal mines. This is an indication that the majority of workers returned to the mines after the settlement of the general stoppage in April and May."

Employment in building construction in June was 17 per cent below the figure for June, 1938, and 3 per cent below the May figure. Coal mine employment was 220 per cent above May and pay rolls were up 1,097 per cent. Employment in retail department stores was 3 per cent above May, in limited-price stores it gained 4 per cent, but other retail establishments reported their employment had fallen .9 per cent.

St. Mary's Group Presses Action On Power Line

Baltimore, July 21 (AP).—Residents of St. Marys County asked the public service commission today when they could expedite action on the Tri-County Co-operative's request for permission to extend its rural electric lines.

The commission had already set the case for hearing July 25.

H. C. Boyd, of Compton, writing for other residents of the St. Clements Shores area, said they wanted to know when construction would begin.

The co-operative, the first in the State, is already serving parts of Prince Georges, Charles and St. Marys counties. The extensions requested call for 100 miles of new line to serve 369 customers.

Diesel Electric Trains Studied For Virginia Use

Richmond, Va., July 21 (AP).—A study of the estimated cost of substituting Diesel electric equipment for some of the present steam passenger trains which the Southern Railway Co. seeks to discontinue in Virginia will delay temporarily a decision on the railway's petitions, Thomas W. Ozlin, member of the State corporation commission, said today.

The commissioner expressed hope, however, the commission would be able to decide the cases by August 10.

Cases under advisement involve trains now operating between Norfolk and Danville, Richmond and Danville and Charlottesville and Washington.

Hampton to Be Host To State Rotarians

Suffolk, Va., July 21 (AP).—The 187th Rotary assembly, including delegates from Tidewater Virginia and eastern North Carolina, voted unanimously today to hold the 1940 State convention in Hampton at the invitation of Past District Governor John Weymouh.

W. A. Sherman Elected

Wells A. Sherman of Ash Grove, Va., has been elected lay delegate from the Vienna Methodist Church to the Baltimore Conference in October. Mrs. Seber K. Whitesill, of Oakton was chosen reserve lay delegate.

Forgey Convicted In Virginia Killing

Gate City, Va., July 21 (AP).—Jamee (Sambo) Forgey, colored, was found guilty of first degree murder here today and his punishment fixed at 20 years in prison in connection with the slaying last April of Roosevelt Thomas, also colored.

James Cole, white youth under indictment for murder in connection with Thomas' death, is scheduled to go on trial next Tuesday.

Woman, Hit by Golf Ball, Dies of Injuries

Norton, Va., July 21 (AP).—Mrs. Mat Bullitt Taggart, wife of Jack K. Taggart, died at a Richlands Hospital today. She had been injured on the head by a golf ball while playing at the Lonesome Pine Country Club here Thursday.

Mrs. Taggart was a daughter of the late Joshua F. Bullitt, for many years a leading southwest Virginia attorney.

U. S. Seeks to Condemn Md. Land for Park

Special Dispatch to The Post

Frederick, Md., July 21.—Condemnation proceedings have been filed here by the United States District Court on 810.3 acres of land in the northwestern section of Frederick County. The Federal Government seeks the land as part of the 10,000-acre Catoctin National Park area.

The 52 owners of the property have been notified of the proceedings and are given until August 25 tot file objections. Total value of the land to be acquired is placed at $6,807.

Leny Manor Horse And Pony Show to Lure Society Today

THE ANNUAL Leny Manor Horse and Pony Show, starting this morning at 9:30 o'clock, is the most important sporting event in Virginia today. It will be held on the estate of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Buchanan, on the Bethel road near Warrenton. All riders, officials and judges of the show will be under 21 years of age and proceeds are for the benefit of Fauquier County Hospital in Warrenton.

Luncheon will be served on the grounds by "Johnny," proprietor of the Mayflower Inn. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wallach and their sons, Marshall, Robert, jr., and Henry, are giving a luncheon during the recess hour to which they have invited the officials, judges and a few friends. Miss Jane Wilbur entertained at an afternoon party yesterday for judges who arrived for the week-end. Judges are Miss Ellie Wood Keith, of Charlottesville; Miss Evelyn Thompson, of Uniontown, Pa., and Miss Margaret Hill, of Bethesda, Md.

A PET CLASS, open to all, with no age limit, will be a feature of the day. Prizes will be awarded the most original pet and the one agreed to have the most personality. Many novel entries have already been received and as there will be post entries, many more are expected.

Another exciting class will be the high jump, won last year by Birthday Party, owned by Anthony Rives, of Cobham, Va., who has entered his horse today. Victorian, the sensational jumping pony owned by Billy Greenhalgh, who won the championship last year, will perform today also. Among other entries—and there will be post entries today—are Miss Lizbeth Stieg, Fred Hughes, Col. D. S. Stanley, David Belding and George Rexrode, of Washington.

MISS ANN BAYLY will show her pony Camelot, and to see her ride is well worth the trip to Warrenton. Miss Joyce Fontaine and her brothers, Jack and Jimmy Fontaine, have several ponies to ride. Other exhibitors include Miss Peggy Hamilton, Miss Peggy Drury, Miss Mildred Gaines, Mrs. John Anderson, Miss Elizabeth Marsh, Miss Nancy Lee Peckham, Jimmy Hamilton, Alex Calvert, Martin Macy, Josiah Macy, Baylis Grimes, C. Oliver Iselin, jr., and Edward Barker.

Officers of the show are Miss Jane Calvert, president; Henry Wallach, vice president and Miss Jane Forbes Wilbur, secretary and treasurer. Mrs. William Standley Stokes, of Philadelphia, is chairman of the advisory board. She was formerly Miss Polly Buchanan, of Warrenton, and organized and started this show about five years ago.

Subscription Dance Scheduled Tonight At Warrenton Club

THERE WILL BE a subscription dance tonight given at the Warrenton Country Club, with music furnished by Bob Riley's orchestra. Mrs. Claude Honicon is entertaining a number of friends this afternoon at her home near Leesburg. Her daughter, Miss Betty Honicon, will assist in receiving.

MRS. ALBERT E. PEIRCE, Jr., who developed pneumonia while en route from Florida to Warrenton, is reported to be much improved. She is in Gar Field Hospital, but will soon go to Sumfield Farm, Warrenton, with her mother, Mrs. De Forest Willard Morton. Mrs. Peirie was to have been matron of honor for her sister, the former Miss Margie Garrison Morton, whose marriage to Joseph Frank Bear took place in Warrenton last Saturday. When it was found Mrs. Peirce could not attend the wedding, Mrs. Robert Cates, of Washington, sister of the bridegroom, acted as matron of honor, wearing Mrs. Peirce's costume, which fit her perfectly. Mrs. Peirce was formerly Miss Mary Morton, of Warrenton.

Screen Star Says Bustle Will Persist

New Emphasis Points To Stabilizing of Ultra-Feminine Modes

By Genevieve Reynolds.

WOULD-BE style martyrs, who throw up their hands in protest against the avalanche of bustles on fall clothes eventually will succumb to the new trend, according to the prediction of Miss Kitty Carlisle, vivacious star of the screen and stage, who is appearing at the Olney Theater this week in "Tonight or Never."

Kitty Carlisle

Miss Carlisle, who was awarded recently the medal for the Best Dressed All-Around American Girl, believes that the new movement featuring bustle effects, minimizes figure shortcomings instead of accentuating them.

"Bustles," she said, "hide excessive protruding and fat on the back of hips. However, they should not be worn indiscriminately but should be molded to the individual's form, so as to obtain a flattering instead of distorted effect. And when wearing a bustle do not wear jewelry or fancy necklines. Keep the front and back neckline simple and unadorned. Otherwise, the silhouette will fall into a row of bulges instead of appearing slim and well proportioned.

A Feminine Style

"The emphasis on bustles this fall is significant only in that it points to the stabilizing of the ultra-feminine modes. Therefore, I believe that women's clothes will become more and more luxurious and elegant. It will be a long time if ever again before the mannish clothes of the 1918 period return as high style favorites."

Although indorsing the present soft, feminine fashions, Miss Carlisle advises against the wholesale adoption of frills and furbelows. Furthermore, she confutes the theory that frilly, lacy clothes inspire romance.

"The average woman," she declared, "should be leery of too many frills and ornamentations. Generally, she looks better groomed in soft, simple-tailored lines. Besides being more becoming they are always in good taste. Remember, that it isn't the soft clinging chiffon or starched frills that gives a woman the come-hither appeal. It's the woman herself beneath the doodads. All the frills in the world can't give a woman charm if there's nothing else there."

Prefers Simple Clothes

Miss Carlisle prefers simple, well-tailored clothes for her own personal wardrobe. This fact was revealed when she appeared in a trim, tailored print dress at the WJSV broadcasting station, where she was cornered long enough to answer a few facts about the oncoming fall fashions for Elinore Lee and The Post. When pressed for an answer as to the most important consideration in being well dressed, she replied: "Not money, not expensive dressmakers, not elaborate materials—but ample shopping time and a preplanned wardrobe according to your needs."

Here are a few of her suggestions for choosing clothes:

"Plan the wardrobe in its entirety season by season.

"Stick to a few basic colors and plan around those. Either match with accessories or contrast with two or more colors.

"Never buy a dress at the last minute just because you want or need it. Select it with much care as an integral part of your entire wardrobe. It is better to do without a dress than to buy one in a hurry.

"Strive for individuality rather than following a style just because it is popular.

"Consider the line and color that are most flattering to you.

"It is better to have a few good clothes than a lot of cheap ones."

For a complete summer wardrobe Miss Carlisle offers the following: Three wash dresses, one evening dress, one evening wrap, one sports coat, one knitted sports dress, two 3-piece play suits, two bathing suits, two pairs of beach sandals, one pair of sports shoes, one pair of evening shoes.

Lipstick Trick

Hollywood, Calif.—Every star in Hollywood seems to have an individual trick for making lipstick permanent. Lola Lane does it by putting cream rouge on her lips first, following with lipstick, blotting and powdering.

Bustles for Evening and Daytime Frocks

Dame fashion presents her latest whim—the bustle. Above are illustrated two advanced versions of the bustle effect that will predominate in the new fall clothes. Both are designed to conceal excessive fat below the lower hip area. At left is an evening frock of sanforized muslin with an exaggerated bustle. The bustle is formed by drawing together a pair of strings attached to the sides of the skirt. The two-piece black faille dress at right has a snugly fitted bodice, a skirt that is straight and slim at the sides and front, with a modified bustle consisting of a flat bow hung over the hips

Time to Cultivate Good Posture Is In Youth

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

SUMMER, with its outdoor possibilities of exercise and activity, is the ideal time to get fit and stay fit. In order to make a program for the development of the body really successful, one should begin at the fundamentals.

Begin with posture.

Posture is defined by the Oxford Dictionary as "an attitude of body or of mind."

This definition is highly praised by Dr. Armitage Whitman in his book, "From Head to Foot" (Farrar & Rinehart, New York).

There are few diseases that might be said to be 100 per cent material in nature. Posture is an attitude of body and also mind. If you stand as if you felt well, you are more likely to feel well than if you slump.

Some people naturally have a good posture. Others naturally slouch. The cause of bad posture is usual some underlying condition resulting in fatigue. It is not easy then to improve posture, and it must be done slowly by improving the underlying condition and the mental attitude.

Two Views

Two points of view on posture and the difficulties of correction are well explained in the column of my colleague, Mr. Damon Runyon. Mr. Runyon should be made a doctor for writing that article. He notices that Mr. Walter Winchell advises middle-aged gentlemen to hide what he calls their bay windows. Mr. Runyon prefers to give it its scientific name, "the watermelon." Mr. Winchell says, "Don't be lazy. Hold in the stomach muscles so they will harden. Sit tall, walk tall."

That is all very well for Mr. Winchell to say because he is naturally slender and a very handsome figure of a man, with practically no watermelon at all. But as Mr. Runyon points out, the idea of holding the stomach muscles so they will harden is quite a task and requires such eternal vigilance that a man can hardly think of anything else. And then, if for one moment you let go, out pops the watermelon.

Time Is in Youth

The time of life to cultivate good posture is in youth. A summer's care devoted to correct posture will go far toward promoting a general feeling of bodily health.

The greatest obstacle to good posture was placed in our way a long time ago, when one of our very early ancestors decided to stand on his hind legs. Man was never designed to assume the upright attitude.

But since he assumed it, let us make the best of it. The back should be straight, the head up, "looking for enemies."

How to cultivate this posture? Dr. Whitman warns against the slogan, "Throw your shoulders back." Doing so gives you a still further hollow back and potbelly. The most important thing posture accomplishes is to give the abdominal organs support and keep them from puddling. If you tighten your abdominal muscles, you strengthen and lengthen your spine, and you look healthier and more successful, you feel that way and are that way.

The Gentler Sex

Office Visitor

"Hello there! Don't work so hard! . . . Oh I didn't mean to make you jump! I just thought I'd surprise you. They tried to stop me at the desk outside, but I just said, 'Now look here, I'm an old friend of Miss Blink's and I'm going right in. Anyway I won't be but a minute'—Is that your phone? . . . Oh yes, certainly go ahead. That's perfectly all right.

"Well, how are you, Grace? . . . You're looking fine . . . All right, I will sit down a minute, but I know you're busy and I'm not going to stay—say Grace, there's some boy out there acting as if he wanted something . . . Oh, that's all right. Don't let me be in the way.

"What? . . . Oh I just got in this morning. I just said to myself, 'Now Grace Blink's the very first person I'm going to look up. You know, Grace, a lot of people at home have been saying you've gone high hat . . . Yes! I just told them, 'Well, it'll be no use for Grace to try to be high hat around me. I've known her too long for that . . .' What? . . . Oh I don't know who said it. Anyway you know how people will talk . . . Yes, some of them said 'You'll never get into see her' and I just said 'Now you watch me! . . .' What? . . . Oh yes, go right ahead and make the call. I don't want to interfere with your work at all.

"Well, Grace, do they keep you awfully busy? . . . You really oughtn't to work so hard. You always did work too hard. I tell you it doesn't pay to take things so seriously. As I always say 'Now a hundred years from now —' say there's some woman out there with some papers. Does she want to see you? . . . Oh that's all right. Go right ahead. Don't let me be in the way.

"Well, Grace, it just seems ages since I've seen you. Why don't you ever write? . . . Oh yes, I know everybody's busy. Say, I had the best visit with Ethel Geeser the other day! You remember Ethel, don't you? . . . Oh, you do, too! She married one of those Stepp boys. Well, anyway, her name's Bounce now, and she's living in Chicago. I looked her up—there's your phone again! . . . Oh, go right ahead. I don't mind at all.

"My, it's certainly busy around here. Say now, Grace, if you have anything to do, just go ahead. I don't want to be a nuisance, and I want you to kick me right out if I'm in the way. As I was just saying about Ethel Geeser—by the way she asked about you, and we had the best time talking about all the old crowd—Did you know that Bert Posey—say, here comes a telegraph boy, Grace . . . Oh, yes, go right ahead.

"Now, Grace, don't let me keep you from your work. I would have telephoned, but I just thought it'd be so much more fun to run in and surprise you. You know you haven't changed a bit, Grace . . . No, I'd know you anywhere. What? . . . Oh yes, of course, go right ahead and make your call. Don't let me interrupt.

"What? . . . Well, I thought I'd be here about three days. Maybe we can do some sightseeing together. And then I have the names here of several other people I want to look up. Do you know anybody by the name of Biffelbaum . . . or Pinchbeck—say, there's another girl out there with some papers . . . Oh yes, go right ahead. I love to watch you work.

"It's certainly interesting to be in a place like this. It would make me awfully nervous though. I can't stand excitement. Say, Grace, guess who I ran onto in Chicago? Elmer Beedle! . . . Oh, you do, too, remember him—is that your phone again? . . . What? . . . Oh certainly, go right ahead to your conference . . . Come back? . . . No, I just believe I'll wait here in your office. I love to watch people work. Yes, you just go right ahead. Don't worry about me at all. I'll make myself perfectly at home."

Anybody Can Learn To Relax, Scientists Say; Here's How

IT'S ALL very well for the natural born relaxers to talk about the beauty nap they take every afternoon and how refreshing it is. You already know that a nap is the world's best wrinkle chaser. But when you happen to be the type that couldn't "drop off" if your life depended on it, the assumption that sleep is possible just any old time can be very irritating.

The truth is, however, that anybody can learn to relax. It is generally agreed in scientific circles that you can learn to relax just as you can learn to play the piano—or a harmonica! One expert on the subject goes so far as to say that not only can you master the art of relaxing at will, but that you can also avoid much needless tension while you are working.

First Lesson Like This

You would probably be satisfied if you could rest when you had the chance. Well, each of the relaxing experts has his own technique, but your first lesson would go about like this:

Lie down on the floor on a mat or blanket. Raise one arm straight up overhead, then let it drop with a thud to the floor. Do the same thing with the other arm. Flex one leg, with the foot on the floor. Then let it go limp and drop down on the floor. Now, try it with the other leg. Raise the head slightly off the floor, and let it drop back. Close the eyes, drawing the lids together lightly so there is no tension in the eye muscles. Try to form words soundlessly with the lips and finally let the mouth hang open. Keep your mind on what you are doing without concentrating too hard—that's better than trying to make it a blank! Whenever you try not to think of anything, your mind goes off on a regular rampage!

Will Feel Refreshed

The highly strung person would benefit from lying down for an hour each day and practicing these instructions. You may not be able to free yourself from tension at first, but you will gradually feel more and more rested after your respite. When you are able to relax completely you will feel refreshed after a much shorter rest period.

Sitting in the sun is a wonderful tonic for tense nerves. Something in the sun's rays—the pleasant warmth, perhaps—gives you a luxuriously lazy feeling. After half an hour in the sun you are more apt to daydream than to worry.

Exercise is a necessity for all of us, but it should be compulsory for the nervous person—especially healthful outdoors activities, such as swimming. A normal fatigue of the muscular system does more than anything to relax the nerves. Do not, however, drive yourself to exercise when you are overtired.

Salad Suggestions For Summer

Here are a few basic salad ideas that may give a housewife some new slants on summer meals:

Make a fruit gelatin ring, then serve it with the center filled with a mixture of salad dressing and cottage cheese, half a cup of cheese to a cup of dressing.

A ring of jellied tomato juice is a gay and flavorful holder for crabmeat salad.

Lemon gelatin makes a delicious base for sliced cucumbers, cooked asparagus, sliced radishes, minced green peppers and pimientos. Flavor up with just a suggestion of chopped onions, catsup and horseradish. Chill until firm and unmold on any salad green and top with mayonnaise.

A Woman's New York

Alice Learns to Keep Mouth Closed at Movie Premieres

Hollywood, July 21.

LESSON ONE in attending picture previews here is to keep the tongue carefully guarded, for you never know who is in the row ahead. We Gotham emigrees had a comical experience in this line a few nights ago, when we went to have a first look at "Andy Hardy Gets Spring Fever," worthy entrant in that fine series.

ALICE HUGHES

As the picture wore along, with Mickey Rooney and Lewis Stone and the rest doing their amiable stuff, a lovely new face came into view. The program said her name was Helen Gilbert, and she was playing a high school dramatic coach for whom Mickey developed a wondrous and horrible attack of calf love. None of us had ever seen the girl before—and we thought she was both unusually beautiful and very promising as an actress. And we muttered to each other about her, using all kinds of hoopla adjectives like "luminous." And then, the film over, the lights came up—and who was sitting directly in front of me but this young Helen Gilbert, with her mamma and her papa!

My gracious! We all goggled and choked, happy that we had murmured only nice things about a pretty kid just starting her movie career. Suppose we had said, audibly, "Who's that empty-faced piece of fluff?" It would have been a pretty dark moment in life. But as it was, it worked all right. Everybody beamed at everybody else—and all over again I learned the lesson of keeping mouthe closed when seeing films or plays surrounded by troupers.

GIRL ABOUT HOLLYWOOD. Yesterday we spent a cozy afternoon on the homelike RKO lot, meeting old friends and making new. Eating in the commissary were Tamara Geva, the lovely ballet dancer of many a Broadway hit, and little Lillie Messinger, the talented story editor of that studio.

SHOOTING had just started on the big remake of "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" (which means Lon Chaney to older movie fans. Charles Laughton is starring in the new version, and I had a long talk with 18-year-old Maureen O'Hara, a Dublin redhead, who appeared with him in "Jamaica Inn" and has now been a few weeks in Hollywood for a role in "The Hunchback.' Never saw such a self-possessed youngster as this Maureen. Takes it all in stride—not a bit ruffled or daunted by the strange sights and sounds of Southern California. Grave, natural, pretty—and very little brogue indeed.

Helen Gilbert, Young Actress, Shows Promise

ON THAT LOT we saw big Victor McLaglen and Joseph Calleia (film gangster now playing a priest) make a short scene for the forthcoming film called "Full Confession." It was an exterior, with the pair walking along a street while the camera preceded them on a "dolly," or rubber-tired go-buggy. And it was shot through a studio fog, made by sprayed mineral oil and incense. Hall muttered "I always see McLaglen in a fog—first in 'The Informer' and now this baby!

Mary Haworth's Mail

Should Wife Resist or Submit to Restless Husband's Desire to Move and Change Jobs Frequently?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I have been married for three years, not very happily, due mostly to my husband's chronic dissatisfaction with anything and everything. When first we married, I used to think that by remedying the specific subject of complaint we could find happiness. But for everything that was remedied, he found fault with at least three other things, so that now I have come to believe that he can never be satisfied with anything for long.

For instance, we have moved four times during the three years we have been married; and would have moved oftener except that we were held by leases. After we move, he is pleased for a short time, and then he begins to find fault. He has held his present position four years—the longest period he has ever held one job, so he tells me. He has not been contented, but had not been successful, until now, in contacting an opportunity for change.

Now he has found a place in another city which will pay him almost $200 a year more than his present salary. The chances for advancement, however, are no better, if as good as those offered in his present position. And if he takes this new job, as I believe he will, it means that I must give up my position in order to go with him. Now, I am not a "career woman," and after three years of combining office work with housework, I long for the time when my husband will be able to support me. But out of his earnings, he must support his mother, sending her one-fourth of each month's salary. Since she is not very old, and in fine health, this burden promises to exist for years. It has been necessary for me to pay my share of our expenses all along—sharing the rent, food bill, etc., in addition to clothing myself.

My husband is infuriated to think that I would hesitate one moment about going with him. He thinks it is a wife's duty to go with her husband at all times, anywhere. He contends that since the new job will be in a smaller city, things will be much cheaper. But a cousin of mine who lives there tells me that while rents are slightly less, everything else costs about the same. Faced with this fact, my husband says, furiously, that he will go, regardless . . .

I feel sure that he will soon tire of this new position, just as he has of other places in the past, and that in going we would be starting on the first lap of a journey which would offer me no financial security and would keep me continually upset. I feel, on the one hand, that nothing could be more foolish than to give up my good position here and go with him; and yet I feel, on the other hand, that I do still care for my husband, in spite of his shortcomings, and thus cannot bear to send him out of my life. I know, too, that in his own selfish way, he cares for me. So please advise me. L. J. S.

The Modern Marriage

DEAR L. J. S.: Whatever marriage may have meant in past centuries and different societies, it exists today primarily as a partnership arrangement, in which the best interests of the firm as a whole must take precedence over the whimsical preferences of the individual. The enlightened view holds that neither partner has the moral right to enforce his will on the other partner if, in so doing, he would be jeopardizing the latter's social and economic security, or dangerously disturbing his peace of mind—and all to no demonstrable benefit to the partnership as a whole.

Assessing your predicament in the light of this view, one cannot feel that you are under any moral compulsion whatsoever to relinquish such security as your own job affords, simply to be your husband's Man Friday on the wild goose chase he plans. Common sense, as a matter of fact, seems to argue against such a course. What your problem boils down to, in essence, therefore, is whether you care enough for him to be willing to sacrifice security for such consolation as his companionship affords. And that is a question which only you can decide.

It seems obvious, however, that your marriage has rather slim chances of happily surviving the wear-and-tear of a lifetime. Its major weakness is the dissimilarity of social objectives entertained by husband and wife. Your husband holds change and chance adventuring to be experiences of greatest desirability; whereas you, with a more mature philosophy, aspire to stability and security as the better pattern of existence. It is a pity that neither of you took these conflicting points of view into account before contracting marriage; and it was inevitable that, failing to do so, you would come eventually upon this sorry day of reckoning which now confronts you.

Perhaps if you were to take an immovable stand (bulwarked by common sense considerations) against giving up a "sure thing" for a doubtful enterprise; and if, in taking that stand, you forced your husband to face the fact that, in going against your sober judgment, he would be making the move which would break up your home and bring about a separation—perhaps, then, he would stay where he is. But he would never be happy in such a compromise, and his unhappiness would communicate itself to you. Yet, if you were to yield to his leadership, it is likely the same results might ensue, with the shoe on the other foot.

However, since this is a fairly new marriage, and you are both still young and much in love—it just might prove worth the risk, if you were to give him one more chance to play the game along his lines. That is to say—give up your job; go with him; and let him become the sole bread-winner, supporting his wife as well as his mother. Maybe that heavy load of responsibility is just what he needs to bring him down to earth, once and for all. Maybe, another time, he won't be in such haste to upset the apple cart merely for the sake of change. If it doesn't work out, you still have your professional experience to draw on, in finding another job for yourself and becoming self supporting; and you will have, in addition, unanswerable argument against the advisability of becoming a nomad. M. H.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

Check Your Table Manners

YES, FAY is unpleasantly surprised at Bill's "lunch counter" table manners—the way he cuddles his plate, punctuates his talking with a loaded fork.

Too bad Bill doesn't know it's correct to keep his "free" hand in his lap while he is eating—that he should put down his fork while he talks.

Well-bred people do notice your table manners—judge you by them. It's sensible to give yours a "rating" once in a while.

You're less likely then to appear in polite society with "enamel-top" habits — pushing your plate away when you've finished instead of correctly waiting for it to be removed, wiping silverware on a napkin instead of taking spotless silverware for granted.

You won't take several bites from the same large forkful, but will take just enough for one bite on your fork.

Dining at a friend's house, do you know when to use fingers or forks? If canapes are served in the living room you pick them up with your fingers. If canapes are served at the dinner table, use your fork. Asparagus you may take with the fingers if stalks are short and dry—otherwise use a fork.

Everywhere you have a better time, win nicer friends, if your etiquette's worry-proof. What does a girl say to her dancing partner when she leaves him to dance with a man who's cut in? A smiling, "I enjoyed our dance."

If you write a message on your visiting card, the engraved name becomes a signature, so cross out the Miss, Mrs. or Mr.

Who goes first up the theater aisle—you or your beau? What is correct form for introductions? Our 40-page booklet, "Etiquette for Every Day," gives you the modern rules for introductions, dining, dancing, motoring. Tells what's correct at the theater, on dates, at games, at hotels. Gives pointers for hostess and guests.

Send 15c in coins for our booklet, "Etiquette for Every Day," to The Washington Post, Home Institute, 100 West Nineteenth street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

Incidental Tables Should Accent Room

Utility, as Well as Beauty, Important In Choosing Them

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin.

ONCE IN a blue moon it's not a bad idea to cock a shinning eye at your incidental tables. Are they odds and ends you've picked up at random? Are they fads that you bought in moments of madness and wish you could get rid of now? In either case, there's no reason why you shouldn't begin to weed out the tables that don't really do things for your rooms. For these should be accents that carry out a definite responsibility in the design of the room. Fortunately small tables aren't so expensive that a lady shouldn't be able to wangle a new one out of the budget every once in a while until she has a selection that is worthy of the other furnishings. Here are some notes on small occasional tables we've picked up recently:

GLASS AND MIRROR TABLES—They're very smart details for almost any of the more formal types of rooms. Don't have more than one in a room however—at the very most two—for they are quite glittery and can easily be overdone.

BENTWOOD TABLES—These are featured at the San Francisco Golden Gate Exposition and will be shown at the New York World's Fair. Smartly simple for modern or provincial rooms, we predict that they'll be turning up before very long at very reasonable prices.

EIGHTEENTH CENTURY TABLES—There are many perfectly lovely and intricate designs for incidental tables in our heritage from eighteenth century England and France. How those craftsmen of that period adored to turn out a novel little table design for some special purpose! There were wig stands, shaving stands, basin stands, not to mention all sorts of plant and pier tables that have been adapted delightfully for contemporary use. But nobody has reproduced the old rent table! Though goodness knows who would want it anyway except as a charming antique. This was an intricate drum type table with little cubbyholes in its base that could be dated. 'Twas made for the landlord to keep track of his rent files.

ABRACADABRA TABLE—This is the table that moderns in small quarters use for dining; then between meals it closes down to practically nothing at all and slides up against the wall demurely. Available in all the popular woods, styles and finishes. But select this type with much care—a lot is expected of it.

Coarse-Stitch Trim

Paris (AP).—Navy blue linen frocks with spreading-out skirts, are being treated to simple trimmings of coarse hand-run stitchings in white. These, arranged in close parallel rows, have the effect of white braid, as they pursue a straight or crooked path along navy linen edges.

Augustanans To Start Rites In New Church

First Service Slated Tomorrow in Former St. Andrew's Building

The Augustana Lutheran Congregation will hold its first service of worship in its new church building tomorrow at 11 o'clock. Dr. Arthur O. Hjelm, pastor of the congregation, will preach on "With Our Eye on the Vision."

The new building has been purchased from the St. Andrew's Episcopal Parish, whose rector, Dr. Alfred Wilder, has been invited by Dr. Hjelm to attend tomorrow's service and bring a greeting to the Augustana congregation.

Work has already been started on the renovation of the church. Tomorrow's service and all subsequent services up to the time of dedication in the fall will be held in the Sunday school auditorium.

Incarnation. On July 27, 1919, the Rev. Henry J. Manken, jr., pastor of Incarnation Church, officiated at cornerstone-laying exercises for the new building at Fourteenth and Gallatin streets northwest.

Tomorrow he will preside in the same ministerial capacity at services commemorating the twentieth anniversary of the event, preaching at 11 a. m. on "Living Stones in a Spiritual House."

Reformation. Continuing a series of special Sunday evenings in July, Dr. Oscar F. Blackwelder will preach tomorrow evening on "How Jesus Builds Personality."

The Rev. Ralph W. Loew, assistant pastor, will preach at the matins service at 8:30 a. m. and at the 11 o'clock service. His subject for these sermons is "The Right to Be Happy."

Sunday school departments and classes are maintaining their regular schedule throughout the summer, convening each Sunday at 9:30 a. m.

Atonement. The parish has organized for an ambitious evangelistic program the coming year. For effective prosecution of this plan the congregation proposes to call an assistant pastor. The first candidate will be James T. Powers, a resident of Northampton, Pa., who graduated from Muhlenberg College and Mount Airy Seminary in the class of 1939. He will deliver the sermon tomorrow at 8 a. m.

Luther Place. Dr. Carl C. Rasmussen is to preach on "The Supernatural Endowment of the Christian" at 11 o'clock. Mrs. G. J. Chaillet will sing "Be Near Me Still."

The Senior and Young People's Luther Leagues will unite in the 7 o'clock service tomorrow evening in the church parlors. Herman Roos will speak on missions.

St. Paul's. Dr. Henry W. Snyder, pastor, will take as his morning theme, "After the Juniper Tree."

At 7 p. m. the church will participate in a union service on the lawn of All Saints' Episcopal Church, at which the Rev. Henry W. Snyder, jr., son of the pastor, will speak on "The Disciple From Missouri."

Grace. Guest preacher at the 11 a. m. service will be Dr. L. M. Zimmerman, pastor emeritus of Christ Lutheran Church, Baltimore, now of Washington. Dr. Zimmerman will have for his theme "The Elements of Answered Prayer."

Matins will be conducted at 8:30 a. m. by the pastor, Dr. Gerhard E. Lenski, who will preach on "The Test of True Religion."

Christ. At the 8:30 a. m. service the pastor, the Rev. J. Frederic Wenchel, is preaching a series of sermons on the mountain experiences of Christ. Tomorrow morning he will speak on "Christ Viewing Jerusalem From the Mount of Olives."

Georgetown. "An Open Window" will be the subject at 11 a. m. of the Rev. Harold E. Beatty, pastor.

Trinity, Mount Rainier. "God Will Provide" will be the sermon topic of the Rev. Edwin E. Pieplow, pastor, at the 8:30 and 11 a. m. services.

The Rev. Mr. Pieplow and James W. Kibler, who has been elected lay delegate, will attend the convention of the new Southeastern District of the Missouri Synod Lutheran Church at Conover, N. C., tomorrow through Friday.

Rev. Mr. Raum to Speak At Y. M. C. A. Services

The Rev. A. F. T. Raum, pastor of the First Methodist Church, will be principal speaker at the Y. M. C. A.-sponsored religious services tomorrow at 4 p. m. in Lincoln Park, East Capitol street. Group singing will be led by William R. Schmucker and Mrs. Margaret R. Moffat will be organist.

How One Church Beats the Summer Doldrums

This picture of an air-cooled softball game was taken at the picnic of the East Washington Heights Baptist Church Sunday school this week in Rock Creek Park. The Rev. Glenn Faucett, pastor of the church, is at left umpiring, while Harry Jenkins, 11, is the business-like young man in the mask, and Dot Haines, 15, is the mischievous looking lady with the bat

Rev. Mr. White To Take Babel As His Topic

At St. John's Episcopal Church the summer sessions of the church school under the direction of Robert S. S. Whitman will meet in the parish hall tomorrow at 9:30 a. m.

The Rev. William Curtis White, clergyman in charge during July, will preach at the 11 a. m. service on "Babel." A. Harlen Castle will be the guest soloist. There will be a celebration of Holy Communion at 8 a. m.

All Saints. The Rev. Henry Teller Cocke, rector, will have "Thinking in the Light of the Eternal" at the 11 o'clock service. There will be Holy Communion at 7:30 a. m.

The Rev. Henry Snyder, jr., son of Dr. Henry Snyder, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, will speak at the Chevy Chase Union Protestant vesper service on "All Saints' lawn at 7 p. m.

Transfiguration services are at 7:30 and 11 a. m., the Rev. J. J. Queally, rector, officiating and preaching.

Dr. J. M. Dudley, Layman, to Give 6 Sermons Here

Dr. Harold M. Dudley, secretary to Senator James J. Davis, of Pennsylvania, has been asked to serve as guest speaker in several churches during the next six weeks, an unusual honor for a layman.

Dr. Dudley

Tomorrow at 11 a. m. he will speak in the services at Walter Reed Hospital Chapel and at 8 p. m. in Francis Asbury Methodist Church. On the following Sunday he will speak before the Christie Men's Class of Calvary Methodist Church, of which he is a member.

He speaks on August 13 at Petworth Methodist Church; August 20 and 27 at Waugh Methodist Church, and on September 3 at Calvary Methodist Church.

Dr. Clare to Speak At Union Service

All Souls' Church (Unitarian), Mount Pleasant Congregational Church and the Universalist National Memorial Church will continue their annual series of summer union services in All Souls' Church tomorrow at 11 a. m. The Rev. Lawrence Clare, D. D., minister of the Church of the Messiah (Unitarian), Montreal, Canada, will preach on "Religion and the Creative Ideals of Democracy." Dr. Clare was born and educated in England, coming to Canada in 1928. This is the eleventh year of these co-operative services.

Dr. Taylor To See Mission Posts in Brazil

Dr. James H. Taylor, pastor of Central Presbyterian Church, will sail on the S. S. Argentina, Friday, for Rio de Janeiro to visit mission stations of the Southern Presbyterian Church, especially the station at Lavras in the state of Minas Geraes.

Dr. Taylor will be met at Rio by his sister, Mrs. D. G. Armstrong, who has been a missionary in Brazil for years. He also plans to visit Mackenzie College in Sao Paulo, of which Benjamin Hunnicut is president. Hunnicut formerly had charge of the agricultural work of the Presbyterian Missions.

Tomorrow morning at Central Church the Lord's Supper will be observed, and in the evening Dr. Taylor will continue the series on "Witnessing," having as the topic, "The Witness of Faith."

Sherwood. Dr. James Shera Montgomery, chaplain of the House of Representatives and formerly pastor of the Metropolitan Methodist Church here, will be guest preacher at the 8:50 and 11 a. m. services.

The Rev. Thomas L. Coyle will preach in Pittsburgh, as the guest of the First Presbyterian Church of that city.

Metropolitan. At the 11 a. m. service, Dr. J. Lowrey Fendrich, jr., pastor, will speak on "The Reality of God."

Georgetown. "A Question for Christians Today" will be the theme of the sermon to be delivered by Dr. W. L. Darby, executive secretary of the Washington Federation of Churches.

Gunton-Temple. Dr. Bernard Braskamp, pastor, will discuss "Building the Altar" at the 11 a. m. service. The Young People's Society will meet at the home of Reginald Bailey, 1725 Taylor street, at 6:45 p. m.

Falls Church. "Their Own Company" is the theme of the sermon to be delivered tomorrow morning by Dr. Alton B. Altfather at 11 a. m. The Pioneer, Fireside and Round Table groups of C. E. will meet at 5:15, 6 and 7 p. m., respectively, in the Fireside room.

Rev. Mr. Armstrong To Deliver Sermon At Cathedral

The Rev. J. Gillespie Armstrong 3d, rector of Christ Church, Georgetown, will be special preacher at people's evensong in Washington Cathedral tomorrow at 4 p. m.

The Rev. Mr. Armstrong is the third of a series of Washington rectors who have been preaching at the Sunday afternoon cathedral services during July. On the last Sunday in July the special preacher is to be the Rev. A. L. Wills, rector of the Church of Our Saviour, Brookland, District of Columbia.

The Rev. William M. Bradner, canon precentor, will preach at the 11 a. m. service tomorrow. Other services in Washington Cathedral tomorrow will include celebration of the Holy Communion at 7:30 and 9:30 a. m. The bishop's garden will be open from 12 noon to 2 p. m. tomorrow.

Congregational Topic Is 'Keepers of Light'

"Keepers of The Light," is the subject the Rev. Walter G. Borchers, jr., will speak on tomorrow at the 11 a. m. service at First Congregational Church.

The church night dinner will be Thursday at 6:30 p. m. with reservations taken at the church office until Wednesday at 5:30 p. m.

Dr. H. V. Roop To Speak at Columbia Hgts.

The guest speaker tomorrow morning at the Columbia Heights Christian Church will be Dr. Hervin V. Roop, president of the Columbia College of Christian Education. He will take for his topic, "Christ's Call for Our Allegiance."

The minister, the Rev. A. P. Wilson, is teaching at the adult conference of the Disciples of Christ, at Bethany Beach, Va. A. C. Ridgeway, chairman of the board of elders, will preside at the morning service.

Park View. "The Landscape of Life" will be the subject of the sermon by the Rev. J. Lloyd Black at 11 a. m. The theme of the sermon at 8 p. m. will be "The Challenge of Christ's Way."

Third. "Apostolic Greetings" will be the subject of the morning sermon by the Rev. P. A. Cave. The Lord's Supper will be observed.

Son of Minister To Lead Service In Chevy Chase

Those attending the weekly Chevy Chase Protestant union vesper services tomorrow evening on the lawn of All Saints' Episcopal Church will hear something a little different.

The Rev. Mr. Snyder, Jr.

Instead of a minister from one of the participating churches, as has been the custom, the speaker tomorrow evening will be the son of one of those ministers — the Rev. Henry W. Snyder, jr., son of Dr. H. W. Snyder, of St. Paul's Lutheran Church.

At the service, which is to begin at 7 p. m., the Rev. Mr. Snyder will speak on "The Disciple From Missouri."

Christian Science Topic Tomorrow Is 'Truth'

"Truth" is the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, tomorrow, at 11 a. m. and 8 p. m. Sunday School is at 11 a. m.

The golden text is from John 17:11-17: "Holy Father, keep through thine own name those whom thou hast given me, that they may be one, as we are . . . Sanctify them through thy truth: thy word is truth."

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "O send out thy light and thy truth; let them lead me; let them bring me unto thy holy hill, and to thy tabernacles." (Psalms 43:3.)

The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Christian Science brings to light truth and its supremacy, universal harmony, the entireness of God, good, and the nothingness of evil." (Page 293.)

Rev. Mr. Keese To Preach at Westminster

Rev. C. H. Lambdin to Speak in His Place at Metropolitan Memorial

The minister of Metropolitan Memorial Methodist Church, the Rev. William Andrew Keese, will be absent from his pulpit tomorrow, preaching the sermon to the Young People's Institute at Western Maryland College, Westminster, Md.

In his absence the service will be conducted by the Rev. Charles Howard Lambdin, minister in the North Avenue Methodist Church, of Baltimore. The Rev. Mr. Lambdin was pastor some years ago of the Anacostia Methodist Church of this city.

Foundry. The pulpit will be supplied for the next six weeks, during the vacation of the minister, Dr. Frederick Brown Harris, by the Rev. Chesteen Smith, D. D., who came to Washington in 1935, as the minister of Metropolitan Memorial Methodist Church, from Baltimore, where he had served as a district superintendent. He also was the pastor of Hamline Methodist Church, this city, for two years.

Dr. Smith will preach tomorrow at 11 a. m. on "Unrealized Expectations," and at 8 p. m. on "Humanity's Cry for Bread."

David Manley, tenor, will sing at both services in place of Justin Lawrie.

Trinity. The Rev. Edward B. Wilcox, minister, will take for his morning sermon topic "The Mirror of Criticism." Union services at 8 p. m. will be held in the First Methodist Church.

Hamline.—Dr. H. W. Burgan, minister, will preach the third sermon of the series of four on "Mountain Top Experiences with God," at 11 a. m. The topic will be "God Reveals His Power."

At 7 p. m. the Epworth League will be the guests of Miss Annabel J. Spangle, director of Christian education, at her home 2907 Thirteenth street northwest.

Union. Dr. John R. Edwards, pastor, will speak at 11 a. m. on "Life's Alternatives" and at 8 p. m. on "Beyond Nature's Bounds," a study of the miracles of Jesus, as recorded by St. Matthew. Miss Jean Shirley Albert will sing at the morning service and Harold Lee in the evening.

First. At 11 a. m. the Rev. A. F. T. Raum, will speak on "The Waster."

At 8 p. m. the Southeast union services will be held in First Church. Dr. J. Lowrey Fendrich, jr., minister of the Metropolitan Presbyterian Church, will speak.

Lincoln Road. "The Romance of God's Word" will be the sermon theme of the Rev. R. H. Stone, D. D., at 11 a. m. At 8 p. m. there will be a gospel service, at which time the Brigadier Male Quartet will sing two numbers, and the sermon topic will be, "Witnessing for Christ."

Eldbrooke. At 7 and 11 a. m. the pastor, Dr. Walter M. Michael, will preach. The subject of the sermon is "The Right Beginning" and the story sermon for the children is "The Narrow Road That Grew."

Petworth. At the 11 o'clock service, Dr. Frank Steelman will have for his sermon subject "Meditation as a Fine Art."

The Epworth League will again unite with the minister for the evening service at 7:30. Audrey Newman will be the leader and Fred Church will speak for the young people. Neil Coggins, Anna Hathcock and Murrell Lank will take other parts in the service.

Lewis Memorial. At morning worship the Rev. John A. Trader will preach on "The Challenge of the Master."

Chevy Chase. Dr. G. Ellis Williams, superintendent of the Washington District of the Methodist Church, will speak at the 11 o'clock service. Dr. Williams has chosen as his subject "The Church Today." The Rev. Edward Gardiner Latch is assisting at a young people's conference at Westminster, Md.

—Arlington. The sermon theme for morning worship and meditation will be, "We Choose Christ." At 8 p. m. the subject chosen is "Wake Up and Live!" by the Rev. Lewis F. Havermale.

Calvary. The Rev. Orris Gravenor Robinson, minister will preach on "The Greatest of These," at 8:30 and 11 a. m. There is no evening service.

Emory. The Rev. Horace E. Cromer will continue his series of sermons from the First Psalm. The subject for the morning is "His Delight."

Vespers at 7:30 o'clock will be a special service of reports from youth conferences. Dr. A. L. Howard will preside and Miss Virginia Leichhardt, Miss Shirley Russell, Miss Margaret Fowler, Carl A. Winkler will report.

Francis Asbury. In the absence of the pastor, Dr. Robin Gould, who is on vacation, Dr. E. C. Beery, former pastor of the church, will speak at 11 a. m. on "People Who Outgrow God."

St. Patrick's Chapel to Erect New Sunday School Building

St. Patrick's Chapel, mission of St. Alban's Episcopal Church, will build a new Sunday school unit within the very near future to house the growing membership, the Rev. Frederick E. Warren, vicar, told The Post last night.

According to the cleric, plans already have been authorized for the new unit, expected to rise in the spring of 1940 on the present site at Foxhall road and Greenwich Parkway northwest, and which will accommodate 150 additional pupils of the school.

Future plans, the Rev. Mr. Warren pointed out, call for the present chapel being used as a parish hall and the original frame chapel nearby being razed to make way for a church unit, within the next six or eight years.

The remarkable growth of the school, with a membership of 235 and an average attendance of 200, is attributable, it seems, to the unswerving loyalty of the teaching staff, consisting of 26 men and women, six of whom had perfect attendance records in 1938.

The vicar serves as superintendent of the Sunday school, whose main department instructors include Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Schoonmaker, Mrs. F. E. Warren, Miss Isable A. Smith, Mrs. L. H. Wanamaker, G. W. Chamberlin, R. B. Knight, Mrs. H. E. Knott, Miss Ruth Counts, Clarence H. Counts, and Miss Sally Jorey.

Primary unit leaders are Mrs. F. De W. Shelton, Mrs. Joseph Balster, Mrs. George Rawlins, Mrs. John Ross, Mrs. Elsie N. Schwier, Miss Mary E. Davis, Mrs. Melvin W. Woods, Miss Edna Hill, Mrs. George Elze and Mrs. John Monteith, the latter pianist. Mrs. E. C. W. Davis is superintendent. Other Sunday school officers are J. A. Grimes and Coleman B. Jones, jr., secretaries, and C. C. Boswell, treasurer.

Among St. Patrick's most dependable organizations is the Vicar's Aid, which financed the $1,335 purchase of the electric organ used in worship. It was installed in September, 1936. Officers are Mrs. E. C. W. Davis, president; Mrs. L. W. Prior, vice president; Mrs. Frank C. Duncan, secretary, and Mrs. W. H. Franklin, treasurer.

Also numbered among its accomplishments is the baking of plum pudding, 480 pounds of which were sold in 1938 at congregational benefits.

As in all Episcopal bodies, the financial matters are handled through a vestry, and, in the case of a mission, an auxiliary vestry, led at St. Patrick's by George R. Hagan, senior warden. Others are Clarence May, junior warden; F. W. L. Hill, registrar; C. C. Boswell, treasurer; Guy Chamberlin, Frank Crown, W. M. Daniels, J. A. Grimes, B. F. Holland, P. E. Morse, Brigadier General George T. Tymer and H. C. Wakefield.

For youngsters from 12 to 15 is the Junior Auxiliary, which each year sends Christmas cards, games, scrap books and clothing to underprivileged children in North Carolina, Florida, Cuba and the Philippines, as well as various items to the Episcopal Eye, Ear and Throat Hospital, the city missions and other places.

Officers are Miss Joy Palmer, president; Miss Margaret Barnes, vice president; Mildred Wakefield, secretary, and Miss Helen Clements, treasurer.

The Altar Guild, which is in charge of vestments and other altar supplies, is led by Mrs. H. C. Wakefield, president; Mrs. George R. Hagan, vice president, and Mrs. M. I. Wanamaker, secretary-treasurer.

Music, another important element at St. Patrick's, is under the capable leadership of William O. Tufts, jr., associate of the American Guild of Organists, choirmaster-organist; F. M. Thuney, president; Mrs. Jeanette Jackson, secretary-treasurer; Jack May, crucifer, and Howard Surface, assistant crucifer. A junior choir is recruited from Sunday school members.

St. Patrick's Guild, which gathers monthly, has as leaders Mrs. W. R. Pick, president; Mrs. George R. Hagan, vice president; Mrs. C. C. Boswell, secretary, and Mrs. M. A. Smith, treasurer. The young people's fellowship, headed by Carl Glezen, president, and Coleman Jones, vice president, helps promote a social club. Ping-pong and other equipment in the basement of the building is used by the club, open to everyone in the community, regardless of denomination.

Dr. Charles T. Warner, now rector of St. Alban's, on the cathedral grounds, with the help of the late Dean Bratenahl, of the Washington Cathedral, helped to organize the mission in 1911, its members first meeting in a private home in the Foxhall road section. In 1914 a chapel was built and, with the widening of Foxhall road in 1935, the old chapel was razed and the present structure erected. It was first occupied in September, 1936.

Native of England, where he received his early education, the vicar came to America in 1906, later being graduated from Virginia Theological Seminary, Alexandria. A greater part of his ministry was spent in Richmond, and prior to coming here in April, 1933, was stationed at Bristol, Va. His immediate predecessor at St. Patrick's was the Rev. Paul Lineawaver, now chaplain of the United States Navy.

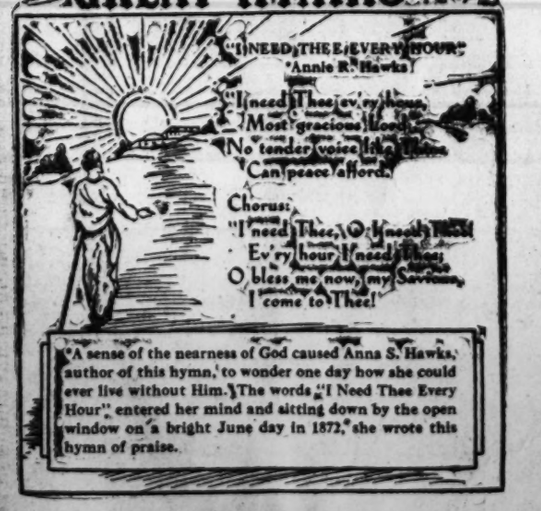
Little Stories about GREAT HYMNS



"I NEED THEE EVERY HOUR"
Annie R. Hawks
I need Thee ev'ry hour,
Most gracious Lord;
No tender voice like Thine
Can peace afford.
Chorus:
I need Thee, O I need Thee!
Ev'ry hour I need Thee;
O bless me now, my Saviour,
I come to Thee!

"A sense of the nearness of God caused Anna S. Hawks, author of this hymn, to wonder one day how she could ever live without Him. The words "I Need Thee Every Hour" entered her mind and sitting down by the open window on a bright June day in 1872, she wrote this hymn of praise.

Montgomery Hills Tax Act Held Dubious

Commissioners' Legal Counsel Question Its Constitutionality Pending Court Ruling

Constitutionality of the act passed by the General Assembly relieving residents of Montgomery Hills, Md., of paying front-foot benefits on street improvements was declared dubious in a report to the Montgomery County commissioners made by counsel to the board, Miss Vivian V. Simpson and Joseph B. Simpson, jr., it was learned yesterday.

The commissioners' counsel reported that the act apparently is special legislation attempting to exempt certain properties while other properties similarly situated are burdened. In addition the statute as passed failed to state the source from which funds would be drawn to pay refunds to property owners who have paid their benefit charges, and to pay for outstanding obligations on improvements, Miss Simpson said.

Court Ruling Sought

Because of the large amount involved, approximately $37,000, and because of the doubt as to constitutionality of the act, counsel recommended that the commissioners await a ruling of the courts before making any effort to comply with the act.

A suit filed by Attorney Walter W. Dawson on behalf of Willis E. Monty, one of the property holders, asks the Montgomery County Circuit Court to issue a writ of mandamus directing the commissioners to levy for the refunds.

The act provides that properties abutting Forest Glen road, Seminary road, Second avenue and Georgia avenue in Montgomery Hills, which now have been listed as State roads, should receive 100 per cent exemption from the benefit charges.

Special Laws Barred

Properties abutting on Summerfield road, Stratton road, Sutton place and Columbia Boulevard would receive 50 per cent exemption, the act states.

Simpson & Simpson, however, point out that the constitution provides that the legislature shall pass no special law for any case for which provision has been made by any existing general law and that compliance with the acts would burden all taxpayers of the county with costs of the improvement.

Original Costs Studied of Vepco, Founded in 1787

Richmond, Va., July 21 (AP).—The Federal Power Commission and the State corporation commission have entered upon an original cost examination of the Virginia Electric & Power Co., which traces its corporate lineage back to George Washington.

The outgrowth of the combination of 133 companies over a long period of time, Vepco's oldest ancestor was the Upper Appomattox Co., chartered by the General Assembly December 17, 1787, to operate a navigation canal built by George Washington.

The examination involves only the light and power operations, not extending to Vepco's street railway and bus lines.

Jack G. Holtzclaw, president of the power company, during testimony before the corporation commission a few years ago, said as president of Vepco he was a "corporate descendant of George Washington."

Mrs. Wrightson Gets 1st Crop Insurance Check in Maryland

The first Federal crop insurance check in Marland yesterday was received by Mrs. Marie B. Wrightson, of Neavitt, Talbot County.

Paul E. Nystrom, State supervisor of the insurance program, said Mrs. Wrightson's check was for $84.48, representing the cash value of 128 bushels of wheat which she lost because of a spell of dry weather in May.

Under the Federal policy, Mrs. Wrightson was assured of a production of 745 bushels. She harvested only 617. The program provides that farmers may insure up to 75 per cent of their average yield against all unavoidable damage. Mrs. Wrightson's premium on her policy was $9, Nystrom said.

Berkeley Springs, W. Va., July 21.—The State Conservation Commission is being asked by resolution of the Kiwanis Club here to purchase Hemlock Forest (better known as Spruce Pine Hollow, lying half-way between here and Martinsburg on the State road) and hold it for development as a roadside park when funds are available.

P. S. C. Weighs Ferry Rates At Annapolis

Claiborne Service Also Under Scrutiny Of State Board

By the Associated Press

Baltimore, July 21.—An inquiry into the rates charged and service given by the Claiborne-Annapolis Ferry Co. was launched today by the public service commission.

The ferry, main traffic link between the Eastern and Western shores, is one of the few major utilities in the State whose property has not been valued for rate-making purposes.

First step in the inquiry is a study of the company's affairs by the commission's engineers. This will probably take several months. When it is completed, the findings will be presented to the commission at an open hearing.

The ferry company will be allowed to present its contentions at this hearing. The commission will then decide whether rates or service should be changed.

The inquiry is being made under the commission's policy of making periodic checks of the operations of State utilities. These cover the actual value of the equipment and plant and the rate of return on the investment.

The company reported that in 1938 it had fixed capital of $1,455,824 and received an operating revenue of $452,179, of which $89,596 was net income. During the summer it operates 20 round trips a day with a charge of $1.50 for small and $2 for large cars one way. Passenger fares are 50 cents.

The company, formed in 1919, received a State subsidy of $20,000 annually until a few years ago. The subsidy was paid by the State Roads Commission on the theory the ferry, by carrying cars across the bay, was a part of the State roads system.

North Takoma Playground Gives Pet Show Prizes

Dalton Leary, jr., 10, won the prize for the rarest animal at the annual pet show yesterday at the North Takoma Playground, Albany and Buffalo avenues. The pet was a Siamese cat with tan and brown markings.

The prize for the prettiest pet went to John Eby, of Silver Spring, Md., who entered a wire-haired terrier. Robert Banning took honors with his entry of a guppy as the smallest pet, while James McWilliams, of Staten Island, N. Y., grandson of Maj. and Mrs. William F. Fischer, of Takoma Park, Md., won the award for the largest pet, exhibiting a St. Bernard.

Miss Ida Fisher and Mrs. E. R. Brown were judges. Miss Mary Donna Becker and Donald Tabbutt, instructors at the playground, were in charge.

Dedicate a Monument to Gen. Bee, Who Named Jackson, 'Stonewall'

Shaft Dedicated to Gen. Bee, Who Gave Jackson a Title

By Scott Hart

Down at Manassas, where the fat cows graze peacefully now on long grass and buttercups of the Henry House Plateau, a slim white monument was dedicated yesterday to Brig. Gen. Barnard Elliott Bee, who paused from fighting the damyankees a moment to change the name of Thomas Jonathan Jackson.

Bee was a great soldier of a fine South Carolina line of folks; he had fought well in Mexico; his services were requested by Gen. Joseph E. Johnston in the Army of the Shenandoah. But his stature as a military man has been overshadowed by his one famous remark on the Henry House Plateau, July 21, 1861, a speaker said yesterday.

"Look, there is Jackson standing like a stone wall. Rally behind the Virginians," Bee shouted to his demoralized South Carolinians, Col. J. Rion McKissick, president of South Carolina University, the dedication orator, related. And in a moment later Bee was mortally wounded, clutching the sword his State had given him, but Thomas Jonathan Jackson had a nickname.

A South Carolina woman heard that Dr. McKissick would speak on Bee at Manassas, so she called him on the phone, urging him to bear lightly on South Carolinians having to "rally behind Virginians," he said. But the lines were already cut in the monument erected where Bee was struck.

"Gen. Barnard Elliott Bee, of South Carolina, commander, Third Brigade, Army of the Shenandoah, was killed here July 21, 1861. Just before his death, to rally his scattered troops, he gave the command, 'Form! form! There stands Jackson Like a Stonewall. Rally behind the Virginians."

Dr. McKissick said posterity may never know exactly what Bee said. There were many versions given. And into the complications was the version from the beneficiary of Bee's rhetoric, Jackson, who contended that Bee referred to the brigade and not to himself.

But it was Bee the soldier rather than the phrase-coiner whom McKissick described. And Bee was wild-eyed and his great horse was foaming when he found Jackson's Second, Fourth, Fifth and Twenty-second regiments strung across the plateau. His lines were demoralized, retreating, Bee told Jackson. The former V. M. I. professor of artillery tactics and natural philosophy was very cool. "We will give them the bayonet," he said.

Dr. McKissick swept his arm across toward the field and Maj. Peter Pierre Smith, 95, of 619 G street southeast, Washington, adjusted his gray, brass-buttoned coat, and looked distantly, as at old sights. He had fought at Petersburg and Gettysburg in the Second Corps after Ewell took it over. He saw Jackson once, in Winchester, a dusty figure, on a horse.

Robert B. Cushing, 93, of near Manassas, looked beyond the speaker, too. He remembered how the Manassas firing, 78 years ago yesterday, shook the window panes in his father's house.

And Bee was honored in his home State, Dr. McKissick went on. His body was taken to Charleston, first, to be met by the local military companies and officials. The city was in mourning and the bells tolled.

Virginia State Senator John W. Rust, president of the Manassas Battlefield Association, told the audience of 500 that the monument was the gift of the Mary Taliaferro Thompson Southern Memorial Association, C. S. M. A., of Washington, and the officers were Mrs. Norma Hardy Britton, president; Mrs. Henry G. Clay, chairman, monument committee; Mrs. Wallace Streater, treasurer, and Mrs. Walter Lee Phares, Mrs. Frank Morrison, Mrs. Edward Campbell Shields and Mrs. Elizabeth C. Fred.

Fifteen-year-old Anne Rives Evans, of 1754 Lanier place, president, Charles M. Stedman Chapter, Children of the Confederacy, unveiled the monument. Dr. Warren Stuart, of Virginia, a fourth cousin of Maj. Gen. J. E. B. Stuart, offered the invocation. The Washington Elk's Boys Band played.

Falls Church Weekly Wins V. P. A. Honors

Places First in State On Basis of General Excellence

By the Associated Press

Hot Springs, Va., July 21.—The Sun, weekly newspaper published at Falls Church in Arlington County by Howard B. Bloomer, jr., won top honors in the 1939 better newspaper contest conducted by the Virginia Press Association, it was announced today at the organization's fifty-first annual convention.

The Sun was awarded a Rhame certificate for the best handling of display advertising and won the sweepstakes honors, on a point basis, for general excellence in newspaper production.

The Eastern Shore News, published at Onancock by John T. Borum, placed second to the Sun in the general excellence division and won a Rhame certificate for the best general makeup among the weekly newspapers entered.

Other certificate winners were:

Best front page, the Farmville Herald, J. Barrye Wall, publisher, and for best press work, the Quantico Sentry, of which Mrs. C. M. Payne is business manager and Miss Daphne Dailey is editor.

The Caroline Progress, of Bowling Green, another newspaper published by Mrs. Payne and Miss Dailey, placed third in the sweepstakes division, while fourth place went to the Salem Times-Register, of which J. H. Thornton is publisher.

Judges of the competition were: Vernon T. Sanford, secretary-manager of the Oklahoma Press Association and president of the Newspaper Association Managers, Inc.; Allen E. McGowan, manager of the Minnesota Editorial Association, and Frank B. Hutchinson, field secretary of the New York Press Association and journalism professor at Syracuse University.

Newspapers winning honorable mention in the four divisions of the contest were:

Parkhurst, Inc., Granted Charter

The State Corporation Commission has granted a charter to the Parkhurst, Inc., with principal offices at Arlington, Va.

The nature of the business and objects will be to purchase, lease, or otherwise acquire, manage and sell real state, with capital stock of 100 shares, minimum at 10 shares without nominal or par value. Prince Georges Slot-Machine Case Delayed

Judge Green Grants Continuance to Two Arrested Wednesday

A court test of Prince Georges County's drive to get rid of slot machines was postponed a week by Police Judge Walter Green at Upper Marlboro yesterday.

Slated to have been tried on charges of setting up and maintaining gaming tables were A. R. Young, 28, of Cottage City, and Edward Roach, 43, of 923 Eighth street northwest. The continuance was granted on request of Defense Attorney Charles Marbury.

Young and Roach were arrested Wednesday by County Policemen Richard Earnshaw and Francis Richards in raids on two establishments. Seven coin devices were confiscated.

State's Attorney H. Winship Wheatley, jr., is directing the drive against the machines, illegal under a State law. He claims distributors are attempting to circumvent the law by marking the machines with signs reading "For amusement only" and then paying off over the counter when a "hit" is made.

Sentence Suspended in Shooting

Charles Soper, 51, of Woods Corner, Md., was given a suspended sentence of six months in the Maryland House of Correction on an assault charge growing out of the shooting of two colored boys, who were picking blackberries near his home.

Pleading not guilty, Soper said he couldn't recall shooting Thomas Robertson, 11, and his brother, Albert, 9, last Sunday. The youngsters were peppered with buckshot.

Chisox Snap Yankees' Eight-Game Streak, 4-1

40,000 See Edgar Smith Stop Champs

Southpaw Allows Five Hits, Bests Pearson; Losers' Run Unearned

By the Associated Press

Chicago, July 21.—The courageous White Sox, who just got through knocking over the second-place Boston Red Sox four out of five times, kept up their winning ways with a clean-cut 4-1 victory over the champion New York Yankees here today.

Edgar Smith, a southpaw, outpitched Monte Pearson to stop the champions' winning streak that had reached eight games. About 40,000 ladies' day fans saw Smith hold the Yanks to five scattered hits.

The Sox managed eight hits off Pearson and combined them in the first, third, fifth and seventh, to score one each time.

In the first, Walker singled to score Kreevich, who was safe on a fielders' choice, and Walker's sacrifice fly scored Kreevich again in the third.

The third Sox run came when Kreevich doubled and scored on a squeeze play. Then Walker singled in the seventh, stole second and came home when Appling singled.

The lone Yankee run came in the first inning when Rolfe was safe on Hayes' fumble, went to third on Henrich's single and scored when DiMaggio forced Henrich.

Browns Lose In 11 Innings To Bosox, 6-5

Williams Ties Score For Boston in 9th, Wins Game With Single

By the Associated Press

St. Louis, July 21.—The St. Louis Browns faltered again in the ninth today and the Boston Red Sox won in 11 innings, 6 to 5.

Going in the ninth, St. Louis led, 5 to 4, having jumped out to a big lead in the first inning, when Joe Grace cleaned the bases with a triple. But the troublesome Jimmy Foxx tripled and came home on Ted Williams' single, to tie the score.

In the eleventh, Williams came to bat again with the singling Bobby Doerr on second and two out. His sharp blow of George McQuinn's glove sent Doerr home with the winning run.

Holy Cross Star Paces Golf Play

By the Associated Press

Eastern Point, Conn., July 21.—Eddie Foy, of New York, golfing football player from Holy Cross, today eliminated the defending champion, Dom Soccoli, of New Britain, Conn., 1-up in a 19-hole match to lead eight survivors into the quarter-finals of the Shennecossett Men's Invitation golf tournament.

By his victory, the husky 21-year-old moved into the next round against another 21-year-old collegian, Sammy Nield, jr., of Providence, R. I.

Nield, a junior at Notre Dame, played 20 holes in two under par as he turned back Edward Clark, of Ridgewood, N. J., former Princeton golfer, 5 and 4, in the second round, after winning 4 and 3, from Walter O'Rourke, of Brooklyn, in the first round.

It's a Long Stretch and Little Estalella Can't Quite Make It

Roberto Estalella, the Nats' squat Cuban outfielder, who had singled to open the second inning, tried to score all the way from first base when Cleveland's Jim Webb threw into rightfield trying to force him at second on Travis' grounder yesterday. Catcher Rollie Hemsley is shown tagging Estalella at the plate despite his apparent attempt to stretch all the way to the plate

Johnstown Seeking Turf Crown Today

'Big John' Favored in $50,000 Arlington Classic This Afternoon; Field of Eight Will Go to Post at Chicago

By the Associated Press

Chicago, July 21.—Johnstown, winner of five of the six major stakes for 3-year-olds this year, goes back to work tomorrow in the $50,000 Arlington Classic.

The presence of "Big John" has his eight challengers almost scared silly. In fact, no more than five possibly will face him. He had no trouble in defeating his rivals in the Kentucky Derby, the Wood Memorial, Belmont, Whithers and Dwyer stakes. If victorious tomorrow, the big son of Jamestown, owned by William Woodward, New York, beaten only in the muddy Preakness, undoubtedly will be crowned king of three-year-olds for 1939.

WOODWARD

The race at a mile and a quarter will have a gross value of $50,100 with $37,275 going to the triumphant owner.

If the track remains fast, Johnstown likely will go to the post a 3 to 5 favorite, with Challedon, the Maryland horse owned by W. L. Brann, as second choice. Challedon led Johnstown home in the Preakness. Johnstown will be ridden by Jockey Jimmy Stout, who piloted him in all his victories this season. Besides Challedon, the four others expected to try to defeat Johnstown are Sun Lover, owned by Mel Emerich, Chicago; John Hay Whitney's Heather Broom, and the entry of Herbert Woolf, of Kansas City, Mo., Technician and Unerring, the latter a filly.

Sun Lover developed slowly this year. He defeated Challedon in the Kent Handicap at Welaware Park, making up seven lengths in the stretch, and finished a length behind Johnstown in the Dwyer Stakes. Technician ran a poor fifth in the Kentucky Derby, but apparently was not at his best. The thoroughbred was given a rest and then at Arlington Park recently ran to victory in a six-furlong race in 1:11.

L. S. U. Frosh Wins Eastern Net Singles

New York, Judy 21 (AP).—Bill Umstaedter, Louisiana State University freshman from Millburn, N. J., today won the Eastern junior singles tennis championship when he defeated Richard Bender, of Elizabeth, N. J., 6—4, 6—3, 6—3, at Forest Hills.

Publinx Champion All Set for Battle At Baltimore

Baltimore, July 21 (AP).—Al Leach, the former WPA worker who won the National Public Links Golf championship last year, arrived here today from Cleveland, "feeling fine" and ready to defend his title in the tournament opening Monday.

LEACH

"I have been playing considerable golf this year—I have been consistently in the low 70's recently and a pair of 68's have served to bouy my confidence," Leach said. It's going to be a tough battle next week but the boys will find I am ready for them."

Leach found about a third of the 200 players who will compete in the 36-hole qualifying rounds Monday and Tuesday already were on hand.

Pirates Whip Giants, 4-3, on Klein's Homer

Hits With 2 On in 9th; Giants Drop 7th Straight Game

By International News Service

New York, July 21.—Chuck Klein today continued his furious batting and clouted a homer in the ninth inning with two mates on base, enabling the Pittsburgh Pirates to nose out the Giants, 4 to 3.

It marked the twentieth game in which Klein had hit safely, and also was the seventh straight defeat for the Giants.

Brubaker, pinch-hitting for Truett Sewell, singled to start the ninth, Rizzo walked after two were out and Klein followed with his circuit smash. Sewell, who had succeeded Tobin on the hill for Pittsburg, was the winning hurler.

Rookie Tom Hafey, recalled by the Giants from their Jersey City farm to play third base, accounted for all the Giant runs with a three-run homer in the sixth inning.

A hit, a walk and a double steal were combined to score the Pirates' first run in the second frame.

Giants Recall Hafey From Jersey City

New York, July 21 (AP).—The New York Giants today took steps to strengthen their crippled infield, recalling Tom Hafey from their Jersey City farm of the International League. Hafey is expected to play third base. Mel Ott has held down since Lou Chiozza broke his leg. The Giants sent Infielder George Myatt to the Jersey City club on option and obtained Chick Ramsey from their Clinton, Iowa, farm for Jersey City.

Eddie Brannick, secretary of the Giants, also said the Giants were talking with Skeeter Scalzi, former New Orleans shortstop and property of the Cleveland Indians who recently was declared a free agent by Commissioner Landis.

Navy Gridders To Start Work On August 20

Plebes Get First Call To Duty; Varsity Will Start September 20

Special Dispatch to The Post

Annapolis, July 21.—Football for 1939 will start at the Naval Academy on August 20, when the squad of the plebe class reports to Johnny Wilson, who will direct the first-year men this season. Navy people say that the plebe squad this year looks like one of the best the academy has ever had.

The varsity players will not be far behind, and will report to Capt. Emery Larson, head coach, on September 20. Until the seniors arrive, however, the varsity coaches will help Wilson with his monster squad of plebes.

Coaches attached to the regular athletic staff at the academy have all been assigned their work. Keith Molesworth will be head backfield coach, and Edgar (Rip) Miller will again be chief mentor of the line candidates. He will be assisted by Ray Schwartz.

A number of young naval officers, players on recent Navy teams, will be assigned to the Naval Academy for the season to help with the coaching.

Salt Lake City's 'Iron Men' Put Bullpen on Block

Salt Lake City, July 21 (AP).—Any baseball club owner want to buy a bullpen?

There's a slightly used one for sale here—cheap.

That's because Salt Lake City's Club in the New Pioneer League has four iron men for pitchers—youths who finish virtually every game they sart.

Manager Eddie Mulligan's Bees have won eight of their last nine games, his hurlers starring each time.

This display of endurance has carried the Bees to a tie for second place, hot on the heels of leading Pocatello.

Metz Shoots 4 Under Par on Last 9 Holes

Guldahl Far Back With 74; Nelson, Mangrum Close Behind With 68s; Snead Hits Trouble; Encounters Some Daffy Experiences

By the Associated Press

Chicago, July 21.—Dapper Dick Metz, the "come-back kid" of golf, handed par and the rest of the field a neat trimming today in the opening round of the fortieth Western Open championship at the Medinah Country Club.

Two years ago the handsome 30-year-old Chicago professional was so severely injured in an automobile accident that his fairway career seemed at an end. Today, with another sample of the courageous game that has brought him uphill into golf's upper bracket of experts, Metz blazed over the difficult No. 3 course in 67 strokes—a 4-under par performance that set a new competitive course record.

METZ

Considering the difficulty the field encountered with the two wooded, rolling courses played—only five players broke par—Metz's round was remarkable. Out in 36, even par, Metz gave regulation figures a belting coming home. He had no bogies and dropped putts from 6 to 30 feet to clip par on four holes for a 31 on the 36-35—71 layout.

Open Champ Close

One stroke off the pace were Lloyd Mangrum, of Los Angeles, and Byron Nelson, Reading, Pa., the National Open champion. Mangrum had 68 on the same course Metz played. Nelson was out in 34 and home in identical figures on the No. 1 course with its par of 34-36—70. Harry Adams, of Chicago, and Jimmy Hines, Lakeville, N. Y., had 69's, the former over the No. 1 course and Hines over No. 3.

Ralph Guldahl, of Madison, N. J., winner of the tournament the last three years, had a 74, getting bogies on the last three holes of the No. 3 layout. But even though he was

Leny Manor Horse Show Listed Today

Youthful Exhibitors Include Numerous Local Show Stars

The Leny Manor Horse Show, which will be held today near Warrenton, Va., on the estate of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Buchanan, is attracting a long entry list of youthful exhibitors, all 21 years old or under.

The committee, also made up of juniors, announced yesterday that a top-flight field will appear in the 15 events scheduled. Among those who have made entries are Mrs. James Hamilton's Dunnotter Pony Farm, whose mounts are well-known on the Virginia circuit; Edgewood Farm, also prominent in the pony ranks; young George Rexrode, of Washington, who recently bought Edgewood's champion bantamweights, The Iron Duke and Azalea, whose name has been changed to The Iron Duchess; C. Oliver Iseline, jr., with his breedy-looking chestnut pony, Peach Melba; Frank Christmas, another Washingtonian, with Betty Couzens' Sumouse, a newcomer to show rings; Lisbeth Stieg, of Chevy Chase, who will ride Fenton Fadeley's sturdy little jumper, Skippy, and Fred Hughes, jr., with his Black Caddy and Ring Master.

Western Open Hopes on These Putters

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

Joe DiMaggio says he doesn't know how Hank Greenberg, Charley Gehringer and other American League batters feel about it, but the pitcher he does not prefer to face, above all others, is Cleveland's Mel Harder. He says so in the current Collier's.

POVICH

We don't know the extent of Writer DiMaggio's research among his fellow big leaguers on the subject, but as far as they are concerned his statement about Harder should be about as startling as the announcement that the game is played with a round ball. The reading public may interpret great pitching in terms of Feller, Ruffing, Gomez and Grove, names that are standing headlines, but for more than a half dozen years the fellow up there at the plate with a bat in his hand has rated Mel Harder with any and all of them.

In four years in the big leagues, DiMaggio has hit only .210 against Harder, he points out. "A league full of Harders," he says, "and I'd probably be picking clovers in some minor league park." The secret of Harder's effectiveness is apparent to DiMaggio as it is to every hitter in the league.

"Harder nips the corners with regularity against me. He gives me large chunks of nothing to hit. I've tried waiting him out, hoping he would get in a hole. But when I think I have him, he comes across on a corner with something I can only lay part of the bat on. It's like hitting a sack of barley."

It's control pitching, of course, and the pitcher with the proverbial world of stuff doesn't annoy a hitter in the least if he can't get his pitch over the plate. A good pitcher with control is better than an even bet against the best hitter as the averages attest, an average of .350 entitling a hitter to be rated with the best in the big leagues.

They Must Have Control of That Ball

Writer DiMaggio voices another impression that is scarcely startling when he says "Control would make Bobby Feller the game's greatest pitcher. He's the fastest in the big leagues today, and his curve is a beauty." But too often Feller has to sacrifice a share of his speed to get the ball over the plate. He is forced to let up, and that is the ball that hitters bang over and against the fences.

One of the top pitchers in the big leagues would be Joe Krakauskas, if he had the control of a Harder, a Ruffing or a Grove. He can fog the ball in with speed only slightly less than Feller's, but with a 3-1 or 3-0 count staring him in the face, he can't rear back and let fly with any confidence. He is forced to ease up for the sake of accuracy, and against big league hitters you can't ease up and get away with it.

But DiMaggio, for all of his .400 batting average, and his recognition as the greatest hitter in either big league, is not quite a 100 per cent authority when he attempts to rate the league pitchers in point of trouble they give a batter. Because, you see, Joe DiMaggio never bats against two of the pitchers who would figure in any rating.

He never bats against Red Ruffing or Lefty Gomez, his Yankee teammates, which might explain, in part, the loftiness of DiMaggio's batting average. There are big leaguers who would class Ruffing with Harder. The big Yankee right-hander has one advantage over Harder; he is the possessor of a fine fast ball when he needs to throw it. But in the main, Ruffing is content to pitch to the batter's weakness with his curve, calling on his fast ball only as a change of pace.

Gomez is the antithesis of Harder and Ruffing, in many respects, but still a great pitcher, of course. Gomez can hardly rely on his curve or his let-up ball. He must blow his fast ball past the batter if he would get by. But he can do that because he happens to be a left-hander with control.

Tosses Orchids to Washington's Knuckler

DiMaggio hammers home his emphasis on control pitching by pointing out, too, that Walter Johnson, Herb Pennock, Christy Mathewson and Grover Alexander turned in some of their greatest pitching after they had passed 30. By that time they were bereft of most of their speed and were chiefly control pitchers, although that could not be said of Pennock who was a frail sort and never pretended to be anything but a control hurler. Pennock, in the parlance of the hitters, would "throw up a set of dishes" to the plate, but never indiscriminately. Always he was pitching to the hitters' blind spot.

In DiMaggio's piece there are orchids for Washington's Dutch Leonard, whom he rates with the better pitchers in the league. But when DiMaggio writes of Leonard it makes for amusing reading, because he refers to the Nats' knuckle-ball star as "this kid from Washington, Emil Leonard." That will probably please Leonard no end, seeing as how Dutch will be 30 on his next birthday.

DiMaggio errs slightly, too, in declaring that fast balls don't worry most hitters, he says: "I know I'm not afraid of Feller's fast one, nor the fireball tossed by Emil Leonard, a Washington youngster who is nearly as fast."

Because one of the reasons why Leonard is not a truly great pitcher of this era is because he never owned a fast ball.

Milnar Checks Nats As Tribe Wins, 5 to 2

Special Dispatch to The Post

Cleveland, July 21.—Breaking up three promising little rallies of their own with a brand of base running that smacked of the psychopathic ward, the Nats lost a 5-2 ball game to the Indians today before 2,000 cash customers and 6,000 Ladies Day guests.

The Indians won the ball game when they unloaded five hits against Rookie Joe Haynes and sent four runs clattering across the plate in the fourth inning. But the Nats lost it with a display of batting futility against Second-String Pitcher Al Milner, frequently supported by their queer base-running antics.

They started tossing off runs as early as the second inning, when Bobby Estalella attempted to score all the way from first base on a wild throw to second and was nipped at the plate when First-baseman Hal Trosky retrieved the ball and rifled it to Catcher Hemsley.

The next inning starred George Case, who had bashed out a single to right field, to reach base with two out. While searching for four-leaf clovers, or something, Case discovered that the Indians had treacherously picked him off the base, Milnar to Trosky to Webb.

The fourth inning was not without its incident, either. In what was probably the most damaging lapse of all, Buddy Lewis was picked off first base by Catcher Rollie Hemsley at a time when none was out and two Nats were on the bags.

The Nats were held to seven hits by Milnar who outlasted young Haynes in what started out as a pitching duel. It lost all semblance of a duel in the fourth inning when the Indians bombarded Haynes with

Adrian Quist Defeats Bobby Low to Gain Longwood Finals

Aussie Tops Young Star, 6-0, 6-3, 6-3

Conqueror of Hunt Never Has Chance; All-Foreign Final Round Not Unlikely

By the Associated Press.

Brookline, Mass., July 21.—Adrian Quist, the stocky Australian Davis Cup star, became the first foreigner in 14 years to qualify for a Longwood Bowl tennis final today when he raced through a 6—0, 6—3, 6—3 victory over Bobby Low, wiry Stanford sophomore, in about 45 minutes.

It is possible that this 47-year-old grass event may wind up with its first all-foreign final in history, for Jack Crawford, another Australian, and Gene Mako, the United States Davis Cup doubles player, are the only others left in the men's singles field. They will play their semifinals match tomorrow.

Quist did not spare himself against young Low. So great was the pressure he exerted that his opponent seldom had time to think about anything besides getting the ball coming both at him and over the net.

While he was eliminating such seeded players as Gil Hunt, of Washington, and Dave Freeman, the National Junior titlist, Low displayed a diversified attack and sound court judgment.

Quist Breaks Through

Quist, however, refused to permit him to call upon those assets and swept through eight games before the youngster could hold his own service. The California collegian held firm through his next two service games, but Quist broke him for the fifth time to run out the second set in the ninth game.

After the Australian had reeled off the first two games in the third, Low managed to catch the shifty Quist out of position long enough to break him down with placements to the far corners. But he was unable to repeat that feat and Quist finished the match in easy stride.

The women, whose competition is scheduled for a Saturday windup, reduced their singles and doubles fields to the finalist quotas. An all-Eastern singles finale developed when Katharine Winthrop, of Boston, turned back Mary Arnold, of Los Angeles, 6—4, 6—4, and last year's winner, Helen Bernhard, of New York, overwhelmed Pauline Betz, the national indoor titlist from Los Angeles, 6—1, 6—2.

Mako, Parker Win

Miss Winthrop also will figure in the doubles final, for she and Mrs. Virginia Rice Johnson, another Bostonian, bested Miss Betz and Miss Arnold, 2—6, 6—4, 6—1, while the Midwestern combine of Elizabeth Blackman, of Detroit, and Marilynn McRae, of Little Rock, Ark., were disposing of Patricia Cumming, of Westfield, N. J., and Florence Leboutillier, of New York, 6—3, 6—3.

Mako and Frank Parker, of Pasadena, Calif., had an easy time qualifying for the men's doubles final by defeating Johnny Doeg, of Rumson, N. J., and Gardnar Mulloy, of Coral Gables, Fla., 6—3, 6—3, but Quist and Crawford had to buckle down to gain the semifinal round at the expense of the slam-banging Norman Bickel and Frank Froehling, of Chicago, 8—6, 6—4.

Late in the long opening set, Quist and Crawford noted that their opponents' overheads were their weakest spots and they hammered on those flaws during the remainder of the match.

The Australians meet William and Chester Murphy, of Chicago, in tomorrow's semifinal.

Effective Ball in Pinches Wins Game; Lodigiani Is Hero

By the Associated Press

Detroit, July 21.—Henry Pippen, Philadelphia rookie right-hander, handcuffed the Detroit Tigers in the pinches today as the Athletics scored a 6-to-2 victory in the opening game of a series.

Dario Lodigiani, A's third baseman, drove in three runs with a two-base hit and a home run. Skeeter Newsome's double with Bob Johnson and Sam Chapman on base scored two more.

Benny McCoy, just recalled by the Tigers from Toledo, played second base in errorless fashion and contributed a single and two doubles to the attack, driving in both Detroit scores.

Phils and Cardinals Split; Cooper Winner

Hurls Shutout Ball to Take Nightcap, 7-0, After Redbirds Drop Opener, 16-2; Medwick and Gutteridge Hit Homers

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, July 21.—The Phillies walloped the St. Louis Cardinals, 16 to 2, in the first game of a doubleheader today, but couldn't hit Mort Cooper in the nightcap and lost, 7 to 0.

A home run by Don Gutteridge with Joe Medwick on first in the second inning gave Cooper all the runs he needed to win. He was in trouble several times, but, aided by three double plays, kept the Phils from scoring. Ike Pearson started his first Major League game and gave way to a pinchhitter in the eighth.

An eight-run splurge in the fifth inning featured the Phils' 22-hit attack in the first game. Kirby Higbe chalked up his sixth victory of the year.

Nats Lose To Indians By 5-2 Count

five of their nine hits of the day to take a 4-0 lead. One of the runs Haynes walked across the plate.

Hemsley led the fourth-inning barrage by singling into left field on Hayne's first pitch. Weatherly followed with a single and so did Ben Chapman, the latter blow reaching the right field wall and scoring the first run. Trosky fanned, but Heath singled through the box to score Weatherly, and then Keltner singled to left to score Chapman. Haynes then walked a run home by walking Hale and Webb.

Back in the second inning, Estalella had led off for the Nats with a single to left center, and Washington apparently had a break when Shortstop Webb threw wild to second for an attempted force-play on Travis' grounder, but it was then that Estalella made his futile attempt to reach the plate.

In the fourth, Welaj opened the inning for the Nats with a walk and galloped to second on Lewis' single to right, but the glowing scoring opportunity was snuffed out when Lewis was caught off base. For seven innings Milnar pitched four-hit ball, however.

It wasn't until the eighth that the Nats averted a shutout, and by that time the Indians had a 5-to-0 lead. Giuliani opened the eighth with a single off Webb's glove, and Pinch-hitter Gelbert, batting for Haines, struck out. Case grounded out to Trosky, but Welaj scored Giuliani with a double to the left-field corner. The rally expired when Lewis took a third strike.

Estalella was responsible for the Nats' only other run. He opened the ninth inning with a three-bagger against the wall in left and scored while Webb was throwing out Travis.

Walter Masterson pitched the eighth for the Nats and the inning's only excitement was caused by Jeff Heath, who protested violently at a called strike and threw Umpire Grieve's little whiskbroom far out on the field for emphasis.

Dodgers Split Double-Header With Redlegs

Flock Wins Nightcap 4-3, After Losing First Game, 4-1

By the Associated Press

Brooklyn, July 21.—The Brooklyn Dodgers ended a four-game losing streak in the second end of a doubleheader with the league-leading Cincinnati Reds today after dropping the first game.

The Dodgers copped the second, 4 to 3, after being humbled in the first by a 4-1 count.

In the last hole of the seventh the Dodgers scored twice to win when Johnny Hudson singaled, Gene Moore beat out a bunt to the box, Hugh Casey followed with another bunt for a hit, which Johnny Vander Meer, the Red pitcher, promptly tossed into left field, scoring the tying and winning runs.

In the first game Bucky Walters won his sixteenth game of the season when he hurled six-hit ball to dump the locals by 4-1.

Dick Metz Bags 67 to Pace Field

7 strokes back of Metz there was no inclination to count the fast-finishing Guldahl out of the picture just yet.

Henry Picard, of Hershey, Pa., the national P. G. A. champion, got a 72, as did slamming Sammy Snead, who soon plans to enter a hospital to have several infected teeth treated. Snead, who "blew" the National Open title with that memorable 8 on the eighteenth, at Philadelphia, had a disastrous 7 today on the par 4 eighth hole as his ball sunk into the mud of a creek and then stuck to the club head on his next shot.

Also in the 72 bracket were such aces as Ernie Harrison and Johnny Bulla, of Chicago; Ray Mangrum, of Oakmont, Pa., and the long-hitting Jimmy Thomson, of Shawnee-on-Delaware, Pa. They were a stroke behind another veteran professional and two amateurs. Vic Ghezzi, pro from Deal, N. J., had a 71, as did the two top simon-pures, Don Armstrong, of Aurora, Ill., and Milton Beal, of Davenport, Iowa.

Juno II Wins Opening Race At Annapolis

Melville Grosvenor, Washington Pilot, Finishes Fourth

Special Dispatch to The Post

Annapolis, July 21.—A visiting boat, the Juno II, owned and sailed by William James, of the Ocean City (N. J.) Yacht Club, led a fleet of 30 Star craft across the finish today, the first of the three-day series of races directed by the Gibson Island Yacht Club.

The 20-knot near gale which drove the 22-footers over the leeward and windward course of about 7 miles, proved just to the liking of the Juno II and its skipper, and the lead at the finish of over three minutes was decisive considering the fast time made in general over the course.

With the Escape, Melville Grosvenor, of Washington, owner and pilot, in fourth place, the next three boats, with the Arcs, Henry Wilmer, Corinthians, of Philadelphia, and Mizar, Mrs. William H. Crouse, of the Ocean City Club, second and third, finished under a blanket, only 14 seconds separating the second and fourth boats.

With the heavy wind for the small boats, changingfl to the inner course was considered, but it was decided to let the stars take the weather.

One mishap occurred just after the start and put two of the contenders out of the race. The Wave, Dave Dunnigan, of the Gibson Island Club, was run down and mismasted by the Dauntless, John Todd, of the Chesapeake Bay Club.

Order of finish, name, owner, club and time, in that order:

Juno, Will James, Ocean City (N. J.), 1:05.06; Arcs, Henry Wilmer, Corinthian, Philadelphia, 1:06.12; Mizar, Mrs. William Crouse, Ocean City, 1:06.16; Escape, Melville Grosvenor, Gibson Island, 1:08.28; Juno, William Kuehnle, Chesapeake Bay, 1:11.11; Restless II, William McCoy, Chesapeake Bay, 1:12.32 Pegasus, John Williford, Chesapeake Bay, 1:14.08; Pussyfoot, John Deckart, Chesapeake Bay, 1:47.17; Pisa, Henry Strong, Gibson Island, 1:14.40; Barracuda, Judy Henderson, Gibson Island, 1:15.30; Vesper, Hammond Gibson, Chesapeake Bay, 1:16.28; Phantom, Ridgely Melvin, Gibson Island, 1:16.36; Sailfish, Miss Muriel Grymes, Chesapeake Bay, 1:20.05; Merry Widow, M. A. Hershoff, Chesapeake Bay, 1:21.15; Swordfish, Bob Manges, Gibson Island, 1:23.32; Folly, Veazey Craycroft, Gibson Island, 1:28.32; White Wake, Jimmy Wolfe, 1:36.54.

Wave, Dave Dunnigan, Gibson Island Yacht Club, was fouled by the Dauntless, John Todd, Chesapeake Bay Yacht Club, the former losing her mast and the latter being disqualified.

The Okla III, James Bauer, Chesapeake Bay Yacht Club, did not finish.

Beltsville Holds First Horse Show

A horse and pony show, expected to attract 150 entries, will be held at the Beltsville schoolgrounds today at 2 p. m. Arthur Godfrey, radio announcer, will present awards.

The show, first of its kind in the Beltsville area of Prince Georges County, is under auspices of the Beltsville Recreation Center, assisted by the Vansville District Citizens Association.

There will be 15 classes, four of which will be for ponies ridden and handled by childen under 16. One horsemanship class for youngsters under 16 also has been scheduled.

The events will include saddle competitions, jumping, and "knock-down and out." Judges for the jumper class will be Lt. Col. J. R. Sperry, of Fort Meyer and Dr. L. S. Oyster. The saddle classes will be judged by Prof. Kenneth Ikeler, of the animal husbandry department at the University of Maryland, and the pon yclass by J. David Schaffer.

Cub Home Run Beats Bees, 3-1

By International News Service

Boston, July 21.—Carl Reynolds today walloped a home run with two on base in the seventh inning to give the Chicago Cubs a 3-to-1 victory over the Boston Bees.

The Bees reached Charley Root for 14 hits, but were kept from damaging blows in the pinches by the wiles of the 40-year-old veteran. It was Root's fourth success of the season.

Chicago rapped 11 hits off Jim Turner, who hurled the distance for Boston. Galan and Bartell each made two hits for the Cubs.

Man of the Month

By Walter Johnson.

Tommy Welaj, Bobby Estalella and Angelo Giuliani were the feature performers for the Nats at Cleveland yesterday and drew down the chief awards in the latest Man of the Month contest point distribution.

To Welaj, three points, because his two-bagger was one of the Nats' seven hits and drove in their first run.

To Giuliani, three points, because he opened the eighth inning with a single that led to the Nats' first run.

To Estalella, three points, because he made two hits and scored a run with his ninth-inning triple.

To Jimmy Bloodworth, one point, because he made a hit and did not get caught off base. The totals:

Taft Wright	26	Jim Bloodworth	8
Cecil Travis	18	Bobby Estalella	7
Johnny Welaj	15	George Case	6
Dutch Leonard	14	Rick Ferrell	5
Buddy Myer	12	Ken Chase	4
Joe Krakauskas	12	Jake Early	3

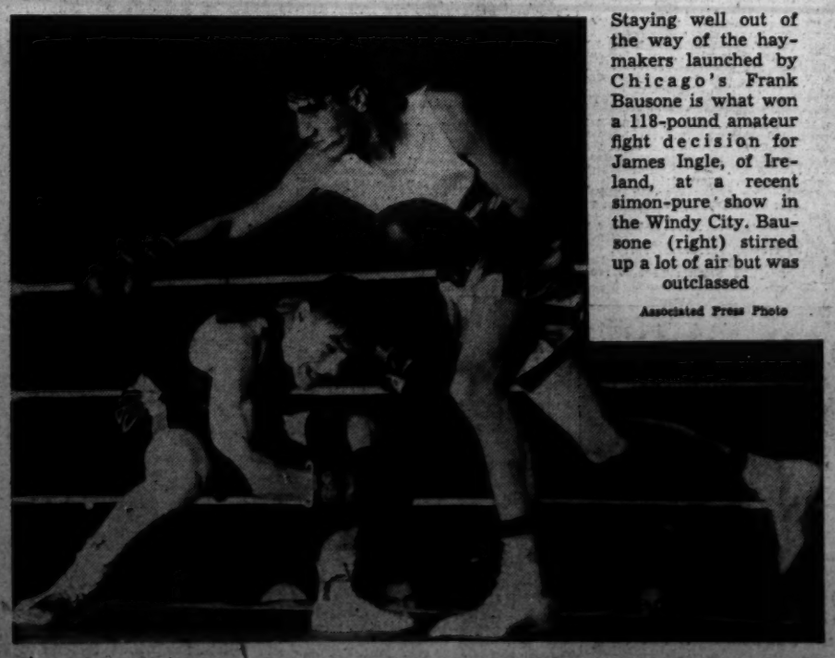
Nice Form, but Not a Very Effective Fight Method



Staying well out of the way of the haymakers launched by Chicago's Frank Bausone is what won a 118-pound amateur fight decision for James Ingle, of Ireland, at a recent simon-pure show in the Windy City. Bausone (right) stirred up a lot of air but was outclassed

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

New York, July 21.—Strictly poisonal:

Since everybody who walks down a gangplank immediately becomes an authority on the second world war, Bobby Riggs was asked his opinion when he stepped off the S. S. Manhattan, after a long inspection of the battlefront around Wimbledon . . . "Will there be a war?" a reporter asked . . . "How the hell do I know?" tart-tongued Robert replied, the first sensible reply any of the pseudo authorities have made . . . Bobby, who is unlike the average tennis player, in that he has to shave every day, was most impressed with the queen mother, to whom he was presented after winning the Wimbledon title . . . "Say, she's a nice lady," he said . . . "That's some place, that Wimbledon," he marveled. "They sell the joint out every day." . . Riggs verified the fact that the professional tennis tournament that ran in opposition to the French hard-court championship, an amateur event, outdrew the amateurs about ten to one.

CONSIDINE

Byron Nelson was so wedded to his golf game, on the way up the ladder, that he used to practice it at night . . . He'd drive and practice long iron shots until dark, then retire to the putting green, drop a handkerchief near the cup, for visibility's sake, and poke putts for a couple of hours.

Open and P. G. A. Champs on Tour

Horton Smith believes that the best thing the P. G. A. and U. S. G. A. could do to spread the popularity of golf would be to hire the winners of the Open and the P. G. A. and send them on an exhibition tour throughout the country . . . Smith did pretty much the same thing with a group of lesser lights two years ago, and drew 300,000 spectators in the course of one season.

From one of those sources called unimpeachable, we learn that the biggest of the three New Jersey race plants will be exactly 12 minutes from Times Square, by way of the Lincoln Tunnel . . . It will enter into pacts with Belmont and Saratoga to avoid a conflict in dates with these prosperous New York tracks . . . If any other New York track wants to make a similar arrangement with the big Jersey parimutuel plant they will have to come to it, hat in hand . . . If they want to fight it, okay . . . The biggest of the Jersey tracks will be backed and operated by the operator of Santa Anita, and publicized by the country's foremost press agent . . . It will lure the leading horses into Jersey by the simple expedient of putting up larger purses than tracks like Aqueduct, Jamaica or Empire City can afford to offer—and even the proudest of the stables always go where the dough is.

Several residents of Beacon, N. Y., tell me that the wrong columnist was tarred and feathered . . . They're sore at me for commenting on the fact that they didn't give Melio Bettina a substantial cheer for the game fight he put up in losing to Billy Conn . . . Seems that the Beacon delegation was too shocked over the decision to utter a sound . . . They recovered their speech the next night when they gave him a torchlight parade.

Joe DiMaggio's Superstition

Lou Ambers will have plenty of supporters in his return match with Henry Armstrong, as a result of rumors about Henry's night life and the fact that Henry's thin little hands at last seem to be cracking . . . Ruby Goldstein, who made and lost a fortune during the days when Owney Madden, "Legs" Diamond and Waxey Gordon were highly respected members of the ring set, is seriously training for a comeback . . . The most welcome fight picture of the year was the one of a thin but smiling Jack Dempsey, walking down Central Park West with his daughters . . . Mike Jacobs hopes to gross an additional $500,000 by taking his two fall fights out of New York.

If Joe DiMaggio hits .400 this season, and I'd hate to have a big bet that he won't, he'll be the twenty-ninth player in the long history of the big leagues to scale that height . . . The first man to do it was R. Barnes, of the Chicago team of 1876; the last who turned the trick was Bill Terry, in 1930 . . . Ty Cobb hit .400 or better three times, as did Rogers Hornsby . . . There were 11 players who hit .400 or better in 1887, the year they were permitted to call to the pitcher to throw them the kind of ball they wanted—high or low—J. F. O'Neill, of the St. Louis team of the American Association, hit .492 that year . . . DiMag has a superstition that he can't hit after August 15 . . . He thinks he'll hit .400 this year, but that he'll have to get up around .440 or so by the middle of August so he can coast down to the region of .400.

Star Pilots to Vie At Solomons Island

Special Dispatch to The Post

Solomons Island, Md., July 21.—Granted more favorable weather than attended last year's event, officials of the third annual Solomon's Island Regatta are confident that the two-day program opening at noon today will be the most successful yet.

The regatta, sanctioned by and conducted under the 1939 rules of the American Power Boat Association, has attracted outstanding drivers from all over the East for the outboard races today and the inboards tomorrow.

Amateurs and professionals will race separately provided ten entries are received per class, otherwise the events will be "open," but for separate prizes. Each race will consist of two 5-mile heats.

Feature of today's schedule will be the race for the 225s, while a local sailboat event tops tomorrow's card.

Among the outstanding drivers entered are Fred Jacoby, national 225 champion and winner of last year's event, and Fred Chare, of Northampton, Mass., one of the most prominent pilots on the East Coast in 1938.

A special attraction will be a "fish boat" race, which will be restricted to craft owned and operated about Solomons Island.

A new course, mapped specifically for these races, will be christened today. It is said to be among the finest in the East.

Elamp, Paying $64.70, Wins Feature Race at Hagerstown

Fernbrake, The Favorite, Runs Third

Winner Puts on Late Drive to Nip Field In Stretch; Veritas Takes Place Money

By Walter Haight

A Staff Correspondent.

Hagerstown, Md., July 21.—Carrying a $64.70 mutuel tag, Elamp carried the copper and white colors of S. Crowther to a smashing victory in the "At Home" Purse featuring the Friday program of the Hagerstown Fair. Coming through the stretch with a rush, Elamp collared her rivals and was opening a gap at the end of the event staged over the six and a half furlong course. Veritas, owned by Charles Beall, was second, beaten a length with E. A. Nicodemus' Fernbrake in third position in the field of eight. Elamp stepped the route in 1:27 1-5 over a slow drying out track.

Jockey Nick Divito did the piloting on Elamp and he rode in the early stages as if he were going for a jog in the park. Fernbrake, installed the favorite, came out the gates as if she meant business and won a momentary tussle with Veritas for the early lead. On the backstretch Apprentice Walters put Veritas to a drive and the ancient mare went to the front boldly and appeared on the way to victory when Fernbrake could not match her move.

Approaching the stretch, Elamp gaining gradually up to that point, turned on a brilliant rush that took her to the front and she was drawing out on Veritas at the end of the journey.

The program was marked by five long shot victories. Brierly, in the silks of J. Fred Adams, scored at a $12.50 price in the first race, downing, among others, Canwyn and Wagold.

In the second race, Capt. Jerry, a $3.80 favorite, won the fourth purse of the meeting for owner-Trainer J. McNamara. The 10-year-old gelding probably would have bowed to Small Devil but for the fact that he was in motion and out in front of the gate when the start came. Jockey Root got Small Devil to the front but Capt. Jerry came on to win.

The daily double on the combination of Brierly and Capt. Jerry paid $48.90.

From that point to the last race long shots prevailed. Dressmaker, at $42.40, took the third race. Kissin' Kid, at $17.80, scored in the fourth event. Scout Rose, at $8.80, took down the sixth.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BRIERLY, $12.50, $5.90, $3.30; CANWYN, $7.80, $3.30; WAGOLD, $2.60.

BRIERLY, within striking distance from start, came around on outside to assume command swinging for stretch and held on gamely under urging. CANWYN, forward factor from start, closed willingly. WAGOLD, slow to begin, moved up boldly to reach contention on outside, but hung through stretch drive. OWN ROOM closed full of run from slow beginning. JOE SMOKY was rushed up in early stages and weakened from early usage. BREAKING WAVES, first away, dropped suddenly and was eased up at end.

SECOND RACE—About 6½ furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start poor. Won driving; place same. Went to post 2:40½. Off 2:51. Winner, J. McNamara's b. g. (10), by Madhatter—Trique. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $275; second, $75; third, $35; fourth, $15. Time, 1:27.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—DRESSMAKER, $42.40, $10.40, $4.70; COLONY, $4.30, $3.30; BOULDERDAM, $3.10.

DRESSMAKER, hard ridden while close up in early stages, came through on rail entering stretch and wore down COLONY to win going away. COLONY, first away, opened a good lead when MAESAK stumbled, but could not resist winner while kept to severe punishment. BOULDERDAM came with good energy at close. MAESAK stumbled and almost went down after three furlongs, recovered to rally, but weakened. The others were outrun.

FOURTH RACE—About 6½ furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:03. Off 4:04. Winner, Mrs. I. C. Mourar's b. g. (3), by Osculator—Poppy. Trained by I. C. Mourar. Value to winner, $275; second, $75; third, $35; fourth, $15. Time, 1:27 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—KISSIN KID (entry), $17.80, $5.50, $4.30; LYDE, $4.80, $5.20; GROUCHNEUR, $5.20.

KISSIN KID, steadied along in early stages, rallied willingly when placed to drive, disposed of GROUCHNEUR to get to front and held LYDE safe under good handling. LYDE, roughed about and pinched back in early stages, moved to leader menacingly approaching stretch, but hung thereafter. GROUCHNEUR went to front when MADFOOT ran out and tired after being displaced. WALLI had early speed. PARKING TICKET weakened after a half. MADFOOT set early pace and ran out, tiring thereafter.

FIFTH RACE—About 6½ furlongs. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:43½. Off 4:44½. Winner, S. Crowther's ch. h. (3), by Trojan—Blazing Ember. Trained by J. Hill. Value to winner, $325; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:27 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ELAMP, $64.70, $14.70, $5.60; VERITAS, $4.40, $3.00; FERNBRAKE, $3.20.

ELAMP, allowed to settle into best stride and far back for three furlongs, came with a bold rush on outside to dispose of VERITAS and won going away. VERITAS, steadied while at top of stretch run, was asked, but could not resist winner. FERNBRAKE was used up setting pace under hustling tactics and tired. WALMISS raced wide and showed good effort. BARRACA tired. ADHELMAR stopped.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post 5:19½. Off 5:20. Winner, W. Royle's b. f. (4), by The Scout—Raynham Rose. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $275; second, $75; third, $35; fourth, $15. Time, 2:00 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SCOUT ROSE, $8.80, $4.10, $2.80; MERIDIAN TIME, $4.90, $3.60; BRILLIANT ONE, $5.30.

SCOUT ROSE, nicely handled, lacked early speed, worked way to contention on outside, came with good energy under drive and was opening a gap at end. MERIDIAN TIME was hard used pressing and setting pace and was tiring at end. BRILLIANT ONE, taken back in early stages, closed with bold rush on outside. CHARMING MARY was poorly handled. LA LOUTRE was hard rushed to set pace and weakened. MISS ENGADINE had early speed and stopped.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place driving. Went to post 5:54. Off 5:55. Winner, Mrs. M. Watts' ch. h. Two-dollar mutuels paid—PRINCE PETTIE, $4.10, $3.00, $2.70; WORTHOWNING (entry), $3.90, $2.90.

PRINCE PETTIE, going in best form and sent to front at once, drew out gradually and won with speed in reserve. WORTHOWNING was hard ridden from start and had no excuses. LIGHT ACTION, close to pace, was taken up passing grandstand second time when Apprentice Cardoza apparently misjudged finish. GAYLASS moved up on inside after a half and weakened.

Retail Buying Gains 12% Over Year Ago

However, Review Says Sales Fell Under Week Ago

By the Associated Press

New York, July 21.—Buying in retail stores at leading centers of distribution throughout the United States this week lagged under last, but ran 7 to 12 per cent above a year ago, Dun and Bradstreet reported today. Meantime, buying in wholesale markets continued to expand.

"Although consumer demand continued brisk for light summer apparel, vacation necessities, and some lines of house furnishings, retail trade activity on the whole was moderately lower than a week ago," the survey said.

"To some extent, the decline seemed attributable to shortages of desirable merchandise; this was an important factor in department stores, where stock of many types of summer goods were frequently reported too low to warrant the usual heavy clearance promotions.

"A few stores felt that the reduction in WPA rolls was already cutting into sales totals, but the majority found no appreciable change as yet in this type of buying."

Wholesale Buying Expa-ds

While retail trade marked time, wholesale buying gathered momentum, the review said, adding: "As in the past fortnight, the main wholesale interest was centered on new fall lines. Requests for sale goods were still numerous but little summer merchandise of the desired type and quality was available.

"Wholesalers reported that the outstanding features of the fall buying continued to be the increased call for better quality goods and the strong emphasis on prompt shipments. Retailers who were satisfied last year with September delivery were found to be demanding merchandise in the stores by mid-August. Merchandise for August and September promotions was the center of interest in housefurnishing lines."

Silver Imports Slowed by Cut In Treasury Price

By the Associated Press

The Commerce Department said yesterday silver imports continued slow in the second week of July, because of the Treasury's cuts in its foreign silver price from 43 to 33 cents an ounce.

In the week ended July 14, $1,420,967 of silver came into this country. Although this was slightly more than the imports in the preceding week, during which the cuts were being made, it was still far less than the approximately $2,700,000 average of earlier weeks. Principal silver shipments were $249,802 from Canada; $504,975 from Mexico and $269,223 from Peru.

Gold imports in the week, totaling $84,513,132, were somewhat higher than in recent weeks. shipments included $50,915,414 from England; $15,328,040 from the Netherlands; $2,383,458 from Burma; $5,468,158 from Japan, and $5,028,639 from Australia. Exports in the week were $2,616 of gold and $44,480 of silver.

New Securities Total $191,933,750 in Week

New York, July 21 (AP).—Public offerings of new securities during the week ended yesterday totaled $191,933,750, the second highest for any week this year, Poor's Publishing Co. reported today. About $65,000,000 of this amount was sold to provide additional capital, the remainder to refund existing obligations.

Less than 8 per cent of the total consisted of municipal issues. Private financing reached its highest figure this year. The Shell Union Oil Corp. $85,000,000 issue of 2½ per cent debentures was the largest industrial financing in more than a year.

Owens Glass Votes 50 Cents a Share

Toledo, Ohio, July 21 (AP).—Directors of the Owens-Illinois Glass Co. this afternoon declared a dividend of 50 cents a share, payable August 15 to shareholders of record July 20.

President W. E. Levis reported net earnings of the company and subsidiaries for the year ended June 30, 1939 were $6,893,071.80 as compared to $5,806,617.33 for the preceding year. Earnings are equivalent to $2.59 a share for the current period as compared to $2.18 a share for the same period last year.

Copper Boosted 1/8 To 10⅜ Cents a Lb.

New York, July 21 (AP).—Domestic copper was boosted ⅛ cent a pound late today to 10⅜ cents by all leading producers, lifting the quotation to the highest since April 19, when 10½ cents was quoted.

Heavy buying of the red metal by domestic and foreign interests this month had eaten into domestic stocks and placed the industry as a whole in the best statistical position in many months.

Wheat Prices Advance; Corn At 6-Year's Low

Continuance of Export Subsidy Program Aids Rally

By the Associated Press

Chicago, July 20.—Although closing ¼-⅝ cent higher than yesterday wheat prices fluctuated nervously throughout the session today, touching new lows for the year at times. Corn slumped to new lows for the past six years.

Buyers returned to the wheat pit with sufficient strength to set the market toward recovery here as well as at other principal world trading centers. Short sellers accepted profits by covering and some commercial interests, including millers and bakers, were attracted by the low prices. Flour sales were reported to have picked up sharply. Some of the buying also was in sympathy with strength in securities.

Denial from Washington that the export subsidy program would be discontinued and reports that the Government was offering wheat to exporters at a substantial discount helped the rally.

At the close July wheat was 64-64⅛, September 64⅝-64¾. Corn finished ¼-⅛ lower, July 39¼-39, September 40¾-40¼; oats ⅛-1 lower; rye ¼-⅜ higher and lard 2 to 7 higher.

Central Ohio Light Co. Files Issue With SEC

Central Ohio Light & Power Co., of Findlay, Ohio, filed with the Securities Commission yesterday a registration statement covering the intended issuance and sale of $4,100,000 of 4 per cent first mortgage bonds, series "C" due in 1964. The statement also covered the intended issuance and sale of $500,000 of 3½ per cent serial notes maturing from 1940 through 1944 inclusive; and 2,200 shares of $6 cumulative preferred stock of no par value.

Proceeds from sale of the securities will be used to refund outstanding obligations, to pay debts and to reimburse its treasury for capital expenditures. The New York banking firm of E. H. Rollins and Sons, Inc., was named as the principal underwriter.

More Silver Being Shipped to England

New York, July 21 (AP).—It was reported that today New York banks and others will ship around 300,000 ounces of silver to London on the S. S. Britannic tomorrow, bringing to nearly 1,500,000 ounces the amount of silver shipped to England this week. The S. S. Queen Mary, which sailed Wednesday, carried more than 1,100,000 ounces of the white metal.

Bullion dealers regarded the reverse movement of silver to London a temporary development brought about by abnormally low stocks in London, and by the fact there was a slightly higher price ruling there than was offered by the United States Treasury here.

$100,000,000 Bills Offered by Treasury

The Secretary of the Treasury gave notice yesterday that tenders are invited for Treasury bills to the amount of $100,000,000, or thereabouts. They will be 91-day bills and will be sold on a discount basis to the highest bidders. Tenders will be received at the Federal Reserve Banks, or the branches thereof, up to 2 p. m., Monday.

Tenders will not be received at the Treasury Department.

The Market

Stock Prices Rise as Buyers Again Become Active on Better Business News; Bonds Advance

New York, July 21.—The action of the stock market continues to be pleasing to the bullish forces and today the list made up its losses incurred during the reaction of the two preceding days. The composite average registered a gain of 0.71 point, which brought it within a small fraction of the high for the move, and there was an expansion of activity in the bulge.

Turnover on the big board amounted to 1,265,170 shares. All groups participated in the advance and the close was not far removed from the best prices of the session. Leadership was displayed by the steel, aviation, metal and motor shares.

Loft Is a Feature

Standing out as an individual feature was Loft, which has been spotting the tape to the exclusion of the speculative leaders of old for the last several weeks. While it climbed 3¾ points today to another new high, Pepsi-Cola, its profitable soft-drink subsidiary, was stirring up a sweet mixture for the over-the-counter market, and the two classes of stock of Phoenix Securities on the curb also were going to new highs, the preferred advancing more than four points. The combination naturally led to rumors of shorts being caught in an uncomfortable position. Loft's turnover of 83,600 shares was nearly 7 per cent of the total business of the big board.

Street Likes Situation

The turn of political events has been generally to the liking of the financial district and with relative quiet ruling abroad, and the trend of business edging its way slowly upward, the strength of today and of earlier in the week must be credited in large measure to Washington. For there is an unmistakable swing to the right.

The growing opposition to the Administration's spending-lending bill and the certainty that it will be limited drastically before it can become law, the action by the House in passing the Hatch bill which would bar political activities on the part of Federal employes and accumulating evidence that the President is not leaning on the advice of the younger element in the New Deal family of palace politicians have done much to restore the morale of the more conservative investors. In the latter development the street finds itself siding with the Chief Executive, much as it did in his unsuccessful battle to persuade Congress to repeal the present neutrality legislation.

Business Boom Killed

But the President's assertion today that the failure of the Senate to act on neutrality at this session has killed off a nice little business boom was considered in the financial district as placing the emphasis at the wrong point. Indeed it is highly probable that the failure to repeal the legislation may lead to a more speedy boom that otherwise would have been the case. There is a wide difference of opinion in informed quarters as to what is the best course to pursue in the effort to maintain peace. In Wall Street the majority belief is that the Senate did the cause of peace no service, and that the President was right, but for him to cite this as the cause of killing an advance in business is stretching a point to lay the blame where it is not deserved.

As the matter stands, corporations in this country can sell anything to the buyers in Europe. They are doing a good business. But if war is declared, the President has no choice but to halt the exporting of certain materials, such as ammunition, guns, airplanes, etc. The view of the Chief Executive is that, with the present neutrality legislation still on the books, these buyers will look to other countries which are not subject to possible restrictions.

F. D. R. Says War Is Near

But if it is true, as he intimates, that every capital is making preparations for an eventuality believed to be fairly close, certainly Europeans will not curtail their purchases of these and other materials in the United States. On the contrary such purchases will be speeded up.

Europe to Buy More in U. S.

Leading countries in Europe maintain large balances in this country, and if there is any thought in their mind that they may have to go to war soon, and that their ability to buy here will be curtailed, they will make every effort to secure what they want in a hurry, contracts will be rushed and it is even conceivable that bonuses will be paid in order to secure delivery ahead of time. Far from killing a boom, we may easily have one as the result of this legislation staying on the books. It is true that such exports would be stopped when war was declared, but in the meantime the "nice little business boom" which the President regards as killed has probably been given a new lease on life.

Certainly Europe is not going to take orders for mechanical equipment away from the most mechanized country of the world just before it expects to face its greatest need for such equipment. Irrespective of what one may think regarding the justice of the stand of the President or of the stand of the Senate, the latter cannot be blamed for "killing off a nice little business boom."

Gains Reflect "Boom"

The "boom" was reflected in gains of 1 to 3 points in leading stocks today, so apparently the Street is not as perturbed as the Chief Executive. United States Rubber gained 2¼, Chrysler, 2⅝; Steel, 2⅜; Bethlehem, 2⅞; Du Pont, 3¼ and Telephone 2¼.

Bond Trading Advances

Fresh inquiry developed today for all classes of listed bonds, as the optimism of the equities section spread into the market for senior securities. United States Government and best-grade corporate issues were fractionally better. Speculative bonds attracted most of the buying and gains of fractions to 3 points were noted.

In the foreign section, Panama 5s surged ahead on heavy buying occasioned by reports that the new treaty will be adopted soon by the Senate. Trading in all issues totaled $7,590,000, or almost double the figure of the previous session.

New Issues in Spotlight

The investment section was quiet, not only because the speculatives attracted all attention, but also because new issues remained the chief concern of investment bankers and dealers. The Shell Union and Southern Bell Telephone bonds moved quietly into portfolios. United States Treasury bonds showed gains ranging to 8-32 point, and guaranteed issues of the Farm and Home corporations were neglected. Best-rated corporate loans were mostly higher by small fractions.

Rail Liens Attractive

Medium-priced rails proved the greatest drawing card in the speculative division. Gains of fractions to 3 points appeared in this group, while borderline and default carrier issues showed smaller advances. Local traction bonds surged forward, with Manhattan Railway issues the favorites. Holding company bonds were quiet, but industrial convertibles moved rapidly higher, in response to the gains of related equities. Other groups also were firm.

Panama 5s shot ahead 7 points in the foreign section, on a large turnover occasioned by rumors of early Senate action on the new treaty. Other Latin-American default bonds were firm. Polish bonds were dull, and German and Italian issues neglected. Japanese bonds moved ahead on prospects of agreements with Britain. Best grade foreign issues were moderately firm.

Official Notices

COMMISSIONERS OF THE DISTRICT OF Columbia, July 20, 1939. Notice is hereby given that under authority granted in public act No. 307, approved December 16, 1932, authorizing the closing of streets, roads, highways and alleys in the District of Columbia, and in accordance with the provisions of an item authorizing changes in the permanent system of highways contained in D. C. Appropriation Act for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1914 (Public Act No. 435, 62nd Congress), approved March 4, 1913, as amended by an act approved April 30, 1926 (Public Act No. 158, 69th Congress), the Commissioners of the District of Columbia will give a public hearing in the board room of the Commissioners in the District Building on MONDAY, AUGUST 14, 1939, AT 10 O'CLOCK A. M., to interested property owners to determine as to any property rights which may be affected, or as to the equity, justice or advisability of closing the street and alley area, and concerning the proposed changes in the permanent system of highways, all in the District of Columbia, as described as follows: 1. Closing U street between 1st and 2nd streets nw. 2. Closing alley in Square 3402, Buchanan street se., and a public alley running south from said B street in Square 3402, and closing part of Ridge road southeast of Anacostia road se.; and providing for a dedication for widening Anacostia road and Ridge road southeast, and for other additional street area in Parcels 198/30 and 203/21. 3. Proposed change in the plan of the permanent system of highways affecting property in the Southeast section, bounded on the north by East Capitol street, on the northeast by Burns street, on the south by D street, proposed, and on the southwest by Ridge road, affecting B street, C street, Anacostia road, and other proposed street area in the southeast section, all as shown on said plan. 4. Proposed change in the plan of the permanent system of highways affecting property in the northwest section bounded on the north by Van Ness street, proposed, on the east by Fordham road, on the south by Upton street, proposed, and on the west by the Dalecarlia Reservoir grounds, affecting the location of a proposed street in Parcel 8/13. 5. Proposed change in the plan of the permanent system of highways in the northwest section, affecting Potomac avenue, proposed, from Nebraska avenue to Weaver place nw., and providing for the elimination of a proposed street, being approximately an extension of Cushing place, from Sherrier place to Potomac avenue, proposed. Maps showing the street and alley area proposed to be closed and the additional land proposed to be acquired by the District of Columbia, and maps showing the proposed changes in the permanent system of highways, are on file in the office of the Surveyor of the District of Columbia, Room 405, District Building (same being known as maps 2237, 2236, 2239, 2240 and 2241), and may be examined by interested parties during business hours prior to the hearing. Said maps will also be displayed at the hearing, and the Commissioners will consider any suggestions or protests concerning the proposed changes and the proposed street and alley closings, as shown on above-mentioned maps. MELVIN C. HAZEN, GEORGE E. ALLEN, DAVID McCOACH, JR., Commissioners of the District of Columbia.

Contract Bridge

By Florence Osborn.

Hubert Phillips says: "One of the best bridge televisions to date occured when I took our four women champions to Alexandra Palace—Miss Elizabeth Corke, captain; Miss Kathleen Salmons, Mrs. Pat Cohen and Mrs. Neil Furse.

"In my preliminary analysis (before the players came in) I expressed the opinion that the final contract would be:

"(a) Two spades or maybe three spades, doubled by East, which would go down two or three tricks, or (b) a game contract of five diamonds by South or four hearts by North, either of which might well come to grief. Alternative (a) was at once put out of court by an opening bid of one spade from South.

"North bid four diamonds. South ventured five diamonds. West made the brilliant lead of the heart six which put the heart finesse out of court. In spite of this, Kathleen, playing with an admirable appreciation of the position, succeeded in landing her contract."

The first trick was taken by the heart ace and immediately followed by the heart queen, declarer throwing a low spade from her own hand. West won the trick with the king and played the club ace then the queen of clubs, on which Miss Salmons shed another spade.

She played the ten of hearts to take another discard, but East ruffed with the diamond six and she over-ruffed with the seven. A small spade was trumped in dummy on the way back and the heart nine was thumped by East with the diamond eight and overtrumped once more by Miss Salmons. Another spade ruff put her back in dummy so that the nine of clubs could be trumped by South's diamond three. The queen of spades was then trumped with dummy's last diamond the jack, and the club eight was covered by East's lone diamond king, Miss Salmons overtaking with the ace. She had the queen and five of trumps remaining to win the last two tricks.

South made five diamonds, doubled, losing one heart and one club trick.

The Federal Diary

By The Diarist

The Navy Yard has a couple of chores! And the Civil Service Commission says that the applications must be on file for the positions with the Recorder of the Labor Board at the Navy Yard here not later than July 27.

They are temperer, $7.68 to $8.64 a day. The duties include the operation of furnaces for heat treating tools and forgings of ordnance parts.

Hammer runner, $4.89 to $5.85 a day. This strong arm stint includes operation of steam hammers on miscellaneous forging work.

Watertender, $6.04 to $7.00 a day. Boilers and fireroom auxiliaries will be your beat.

Sam Husbands, nominated by President Roosevelt for a seat on the board of directors of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, is a very busy man. In addition to his duties as chief of the examining division of the RFC he's president of the Federal National Mortgage Association, trustee of the Electric Home and Farm Authority and director of the Anglo-California National Bank in San Francisco.

Born and schooled in Florence, N. C., he held the position of cashier of the First National Bank there until he came to Washington in 1932. In 1916 (about the Villa era) he was a member of the National Guard on the Mexican border, and later on he served abroad as first lieutenant in the World War, returning to this country in 1919, after the firing was over.

He's a family man, with a house in Chevy Chase, a son, Sam, jr., and a daughter, Patricia.

More about Puerto Rico, haven for tired Federal employes. According to the Puerto Rico Reconstruction Administration of the Department of the Interior, it's becoming the Latin-American show-off for top developments in United States agricultural methods. The serious side of Puerto Rico is being studied by Pedro Escalante, member of the Venezuelan department of Agriculture and livestock. Escalante is spending most of his time on the work of the La Plata PRRA resettlement project, which is big-brothering hundreds of the island's farmers, who are learning how to grow subsistence food crops and living at the same time in modern concrete homes.

The Puerto Rican farmer's wife also is taking up needlework and cooking, under Government sponsorship, and the children are learning agricultural ABCs at various vocational schools.

A lighthouse built at the request of the United States is having its picture put on a Japanese stamp that is selling for six sen, or, according to our cash registers, approximately 12 cents. Located on the Garanbi coast in what the Nipponese declare is one of the beauty spots of their country, the lighthouse wasn't selected for pulchritude, but because it's at the southernmost point of the Japanese empire. Such realistic thinking, however, didn't keep the Japs from printing it in a particularly astounding shade of orange yellow.

Lo the Silos: We always thought they were pretty pieces of the barnyard landscape along with the other appurtenances of the rural scene. But it seems that as far as the farmer is concerned, they're a lot more important than that. The Department of Agriculture has just issued a new bulletin on them, and it goes to some length to warn their owners against fermentation gas.

Furthermore, through our jaundiced and myopic city eye, all silos look surprisingly alike. Actually they are surprisingly different. The bulletin says there can be nine different kinds, and some of them are below ground as well as above ground. Our astonishment at this last fact just proves that we ought to get away from it all and learn a few homespun facts.

NUTS AND JOLTS

PULITZER PRIZE NOVEL

THE YEARLING

By Marjorie Kinnan Rawlings

Chapter XLVI

"ALL RIGHT," Penny said, "I'll tell you jest how it stand. Hit's like I figgered, the wolves was about the worst destroyed by the plague of ary o' the creeturs. This pack was here last night, is all there is left. Buck and Lem has been to Fort Butler and Volusia and no wolves has been seed nor heered since the plague but these uns. Allus in a bunch. They worked over here from near Fort Gates and has been been cleanin' out stock all the way acrost. They ain't got to feed much, for they've been caught at it before they fed, and drove off. They're purely starvin', and night before last they got a heifer and a yearlin' bull o' the Forresters. Toward daylight this mornin' they heered 'em howlin'. After they was here."

M. K. Rawlings

Jody now was eager.

"Will we git to hunt with the Forresters?"

"That's it. I had me a good go-round with them jessies. We cain't see it the same way about killin' 'em. I want a couple o' good hunts, and traps around out lot and their corral. But the Forresters is bent on pizenin' 'em. Now I ain't never pizened a creetur and I don't aim to."

Ma Baxter flung her dishcloth at the wall.

"Ezra Baxter, if your heart was to be cut, hit'd not be meat. Hit'd be purely butter. You're a plague-taked ninny, that's what you be. Leave them wild things kill our stock cold-blooded, and us starve to death. But no, you're too tender to give 'em a belly-ache."

He sighed.

"Do seem foolish, don't it? I jest cain't he'p it. Anyways, innocent things is likely to git the pizen. Dogs and sich."

"Better that, than the wolves clean us out."

"Oh now Ory, they ain't goin' to clean us out. They ain't like to bother Trixie nor Caesar. I misdoubt could they git their teeth through their old hides. They shore ain't goin' to mess up with dogs that fights as good as mine. They ain't goin' to climb trees and ketch the chickens. They's nary other thing here to bother, now the calf's gone."

"There's Flag, Pa."

IT SEEMED to Jody that for once his father was wrong.

"Pizen's no worse'n them tearin' up the calf, Pa."

"Tearin' up the calf was nature. They was hongry. Pizen jest someway ain't natural. Tain't fair fightin'."

Ma Baxter said, "Hit takes you to want to fight fair with a wolf, you——"

"Go ahead, Ory. Ease yourself and say it."

"If I was to say it, hit'd take words I don't scarcely know to think, let alone speak."

"Then bust with it, wife. Pizenin's a thing I jest won't be a party to."

He puffed on his pipe.

"If it'll make you feel better," he said, "the Forresters said worse'n you. I knowed they'd mock me in the head when I takened my stand, and they done so. And they're fixin' to go right ahead and set out the pizen."

"I'm proud there's men some'eres around."

Jody glowered at both of them. His father was wrong, he thought, but his mother was unfair. Something in his father towered over the Forresters. The fact that this time the Forresters would not listen to him, must mean, not that he was not a man, but that he was mistaken. Perhaps, even, he was not wrong.

"You leave my Pa alone. I reckon he's got more sense than the Forresters."

"Now mister impudent big-mouth, you'll git yourself frammed good with a bresh."

Penny rapped on the table with his pipe.

"Leave off! Ain't it enough to have trouble with the animals, without the family quarrelin'? Has a man got to die to find peace?"

Ma Baxter turned back to her work. Jody skulked away to the bedroom and untied Flag and took him outdoors for a run. He was uneasy in the woods and did not go far. He called the fawn in and went and sat with him under the hickory tree and watched the squirrels. He decided to gather hickory nuts before the squirrels finished the crop. Mast was plentiful and the squirrels, because of the plague, were not, but he wished, crossly, not to divide the nuts on his own land. He climbed the tree and shook the limbs. The nuts fell in a shower and he climbed down and gathered a pile. He took off his shirt and made a sack of it and filled it with nuts and took them to the house. He emptied the pile on the ground in the shed and spread them out to dry. When he put on his shirt, he realized that he had stained it past all washing with the juice from the hulls. It was a quite good shirt, with only one small patch on it where he had snagged the sleeve sliding down the roof of the corn-crib. He grunted to himself. It was peculiarly difficult to know ahead of time what would get him into trouble and what would keep him out. However, when his mother was angry at Penny, she seldom noticed anything he did.

SHE SMOOTHED down through the afternoon. After all, the Forresters would get the job done. Three of them rode in toward sunset. They had come to notify Penny of the exact location of the poison, so that he might keep his dogs away from the trail. They had set it out ingeniously. They had done it entirely from horseback, so that the wolves should not scent the hated taint of man. They had prepared chunks of raw meat from their killed heifer and yearling, handling it with pieces of buckskin over their hands while they inserted the poison. The three had separated and ridden over the trails the pack might be expected to follow. They had dug holes with pointed palmetto stems, leaning from the saddle, and dropped in the poisoned bait, raking leaves over it again with their sticks. They had brought the last trail back toward Penny's lot, in a line from the sink-hole, where the wolves might water or wait for other game. Penny accepted the situation philosophically.

"All right. I'll keep my dogs tied for a week."

They accepted a drink of water and a twist of Penny's tobacco, but refused supper with thanks. They wanted to be home again before night when the pack might return to the corral. They visited with Penny a few minutes and rode away again. The evening passed peacefully. Penny filled more shell-cases, capped them and loaded his gun. He loaded Jody's muzzle-loader as well. Jody took it and propped it carefully by his bed. He was grateful to his father for including him in such preparations. He lay thinking after they were all in bed. He could hear his father talking with his mother.

He heard him say, "I got news for you. Buck told me Oliver Hutto takened a boat from Jacksonville to Boston and figgered on bein' there a while before he shipped agin. He give Twink Weatherby money and she slipped off to Jacksonville and got on a boat and follered him. Lem's rarin'. He says do he meet Twink and Oliver, he'll kill 'em all two."

Jody heard his mother's bulk, turning, creak the bed.

She said, "Now if the gal's honest, why don't Oliver marry her and be done with it? If she's nothin' but one o' them leetle ol' chipperdales, why do he mess up with her?"

"I couldn't rightly say. Been so long sincet I was a young buck, studyin' on courtin', I disremember how Oliver mought figger."

"Anyways, he hadn't ought to of let her foller him that-a-way."

Jody agreed with her. He threshed his legs under the covers in fury. He was finished with Oliver. If he ever saw him again, he would tell him what he thought of him. He hoped most to see Twink Weatherby and pull her yellow hair or throw something at her. Because of her, Oliver had gone away without coming to visit them. He had lost him. He was so angry at him that he did not care. He dropped asleep, painting enjoyable pictures of Twink wandering in the scrub and eating the wolf poison and falling dead in deserved agonies.

The Forrester poisoning killed 30 wolves in one week. There was a pack left of a dozen or two that was wary, and avoided the poison. Penny agreed to help with their extermination by the legitimate means of trap and gun. The pack ranged wide and never killed twice in the same place. It invaded the Forrester corral one night. The calves bleated and the Forresters poured out. They found the cows holding the wolves at bay. They had formed a ring, with the calves in the center, and were on the defensive with lowered horns. One calf was dying with a torn threat and two had their tails bitten off neatly at the rump. The Forresters brought down six of the pack. The next day they set poison again, but the wolves did not return. Two of their own dogs found the bait and died horribly. The Forresters were willing to track down the rest of the pack in slower fashion.
